

Austr. 54.75 P

~~L 7.3~~

R 9.4

X Y 3 1032 <36633491460016

<36633491460016

Bayer. Staatsbibliothek

24/50/11

Austr. 5475 P

[James Howell]

Decemb. 23. 1663.

Impressum.

W. H. M. H. M.

2u: 78/2704

Decemb. 23. 1663.

Imprimatur.

William Moice.

FLORUS HUNGARICUS: OR
The History
OF HUNGARIA
AND TRANSYLVANIA

Deduced from the Original of that Nation, and their settling in Europe in the Year of our Lord 461, To this Dangerous and Suspectful Period of that Kingdome by the present Turkish Invasion, Anno 1664.

LONDON, Printed by W. G. for Hen. Marsh at the Princes Arms in Chancery-Lane. 1664.

FLORUS HUNGARICUS: OR
The History
OF HUNGARIA
AND TRANSYLVANIA

Derived from the Original of that Nation, and translated into English in the Year of our Lord 1601.
By the Learned Doctor, and Historian, John de Thurot, of that Kingdom by the present Invasion, Anno 1604.

Bayrische
Staatsbibliothek
München

Printed by W. G. for H. M. Marsh in Chancery Lane. 1604.

To the Right Honourable

I O H N

Earl of BATH, &c.

May it please your Lordship,

HIS History (Written Originally in Latin by a Noble Hand, native of that Kingdome) was

B 3

like

The Epistle Dedicatory.

like a Treatise of that deserving quality, addressed to the Hands of two Illustrious Persons, whom the Translator (sure of doing the Author no injury in this particular) hath represented in your single SELF, to what advantage of Lustre the World shall speak.

For (my Lord) it is not the design of this Dedication to bring water to the Ocean, (although the Ever-flowing Tribute that is due to Virtue is natural and necessary) both because this streight and shallow, will not boast or pre-

The Epistle Dedicatory.

presume to be proud of any Additament to Your Fame, & for that this Candle in such Day-light will prove but a faint and unobserved Glimmering of that full Splen-dour.

Actions and not Words, have entertained the greatest part of your Life, till the late blessed Change, which shall never be mentioned but with Your Name;

Pax nescit COMITIS
non memor esse sui:

Insomuch that your Lordship

The Epistle Dedicatory.

is a living Epitome of our late War, and is read by most men with Delight and Admiration.

Upon that account it is (my Lord) that I humbly present to You this FLO-RUSHUNGARICUS and Abridgement of their History, not knowing with whose Sum of Glory this Compendium of so renowned a Nation would better sute; for from the Founding of their Empire, Time bath had few respites, and but momentary vacations from Military Affairs.

In

The Epistle Dedicatory.

In which Speculation (my Lord) I am so much assured, that you are frequently Conversant, and familiarly please your Self in that Heroical Diversion, that I could not restrain the Ambitious Tender of this COMMENTARY; which although very uneven, and abrupt of Stile (as could not be avoided in such a pent and narrow inconvenience of Expression) yet it hath plainly conveyed and continued the story.

The Endeavour, what it is, is most humbly submitted

The Epistle Dedicatory.

mitted to Your Lordships Judgement, and most submissively begs Your Protection and Patronage, under which it doubts not to find acceptance with the World.

(My Lord) I am

Your most Humble

and Obedient Servant

J. H.

To the READER.

HE Affairs and History of Hungary variously agitated under several mutations and Revolutions, are now presented to the World in an Epitome, which neverthelesse Comprehends most of the Transactions in Europe, and may intitle it self to be its Remembrancer. This Nation some Ages before, not seen and unheard of, did out of its Ruins rise to a Mighty Kingdome, and as it did so wonderfully increase, so did it with the same Urgencies of Fate, decline cline as fast, and again recover it self; and so by the inconstancy of its Fortune either added Terrour or Hope to its Neighbours: For while this People struggled for Empire, intending to heap up their Glory in the Splendor of one Day, and would allow no futurities to their Felicity, the Justice of Providence decreed them a laborious race, wherein their speed and Strength hath been tired; and by many uneven Ascents and Descents, almost wearied out of Breath: in which time notwithstanding (the space of Twelve hundred years and upwards) it hath effected so many great things both in War and Peace, that it seemeth to have dared and accomplished things far beyond either its Fortune or Ability, Commanding and extending its Power so far over the adjoining Nations, that while its Actions and story is read, both Asia and Europe are concerned, and are again subjected in the review, as Tributaries to the Renown of this Empire.

To the Reader.

I must confesse that so many Vicissitudes, and the Grandeur of the subject do much discompose the Contexture, ture, but so that the shape of the Majesty hereof will sufficiently appear, although it have not its full Proportions.

To the Reader.

We consider therefore the Hungarian Nation according to these Intervals or Distances, The first Age was most fierce and Sanguinous, while they were under the darknesse of Paganisme, which lasted almost 600 years, during which time they exceeded the very Beasts in all savage and barbarous Cruelty. The following Age under Geyza and Stephen, Christian Princes, until the Reign of Charles Son of Lewis, in which time passed 340 years, was afflicted and sore put to it; yet it made a shift to rear it self & raise its Glory out of the Dust. Thence to our Times have run 330 years, in which its Glories have been retrograde, and have verged to a decrepit and feeble estate, save that under K. Matthias the Kingdom mov'd its Arms with some vigour, and seemed to be renewed to a Fresh and active Youth and Virility.

But Matthias being taken away by the envious Destinies, the Hungarians soon lost their ancient Courage and Vertue,

To the Reader.

Vertue, suffering the Turks to possesse themselves of the greatest part of their Country (which they are now like wholly to subdue) while they were divided betwixt the Interests of Ferdinand the Emperour, and John Zapolyai Vayvod of Transylvania, pretenders to that Crown; so that Hungary is to be sought in it self. For while the Kingdome was insociable and coveted by many, it became burdened with more weight then it could bear; and that Government which might have been well supported and maintained by one, being shouldred by so many, fell with ruine to the Ground.

It is now redevable to the Reader, that I give an account of what Authors have been consulted in the Compiling of this Treatise; Many Hungarian Writers being waived because of their Flattery and fondnesse of their own Nation, or Fabulous Untruths, of which sort are Ranzanus, Ritius, and others; but one for all is Bonfinius, who hath loaded the Original of the Hungarians with a multitude of Fictions. Thuroczius hath done something better; in the

To the Reader.

the whole six hundred Authours have been conferred ; but those to whom Credence was due are onely these ; First Nicholas Istuamfi , a man conversant in the story who wrote his Rationale from the life of Matthias the first ; but because of his propense affection to the Cæsars (for which reason he either neglects Truth or conceals their Vices) some rare , more Ancient and modern Writers have been contra-examined against him. Next to him, Flavius Ascanius Centorinus , who Composed his History of the Dacian Wars out of the Manuscript Commentaries of Ferdinand , and Castaldus (his General) themselves. Lastly , John Michael Brutus , who wrote of this matter by the Command of Stephen Bathori King of Poland , together with Thuanus and some few not so Eminent.

The Reader, it is presumed, will be hereby satisfied of the veracity and Authority of this Discourse , whose Subject (being so much a stranger) needed a very ample Certificate , for that Impostures of these distant Regions are very rife and frequent.

● All

To the Reader.

All that is to be Apologised and Excused, is the style, which pretends to nothing but understandable English, shut up by such rigid clauses and restraints of matter, that it could not breath any free Language. And when the Reader shall have perceived how this Volume is crowded to render it a Manual acceptable to the diversion of curious and inquisitive men, he will no doubt vouchsafe a Pardon to this Endeavour.

Vale.

The

THE HISTORY OF HUNGARIA
AND TRANSYLVANIA.

HIS Nation, not seen nor known in Europe, before the decrepit Estate of the Roman Empire, had their formidable Extract from the extremest part of Maotis, inhabited by the Massagetes, next neighbours to the Dahi, as Plinius, Mela and Ptolomy do report, though some Authors have derived them from the Parthians, both seated betwixt the Rivers Oxus and Jaxarta.

The Derivation of the Huns.

Former Times call'd all that Tract of ground B lying lying North and North-east, by the Name of Scythia, and under that general Appellation the Inhabitants were notified to the world, which now is distinguished into the different Tribes of the present Tartarian Empire; who at this day continue that vagrant, incurfive, and predatory disposition, that brought these necessitous Huns in vast multitudes into fertiler though never so distant Regions.

Scythia
their place of Extraction.

It will be therefore requisite to give some breif account of this Nursery and source of so many Martial Nations, and particularly of this of the Huns, because of this singular remarque, that none of her swarms besides, were ever blest with the Christian Faith; and arrived to, and persisted in the Glory of a Kingdom and Empire under the Ensigne of the Crosse, intire, separate and unmixt from other Nations, in all the Fortunes of War, and the variation of their Estate.

Its Description and division.

Scythia by the Ancients was divided into the European and Asiatick; the former made stretching it self from the Springs of Tanais by the Banks of the Lake Maotis and the Euxine Sea, to Ister (so named when swelled with the Confluence of the Danow, Savus and Dravus, 3 great Rivers by the City of Belgrade) the reason of which mistake was, for that they falsely supposed Asia to be divided from Europe by the Tanais: For 'from Tanarus the Extreme promontory of Peloponesus to the Springs and rise of Tanais, not more than half the Line extending extending to the Northern Ocean, is Comprehended; that River arising in the Confines of the greater Russia, and the lesser Tartary, from a Lake called Ivanowo Jeczic, not out of the Riphaean Mountains, as is fabled by the Ancients; for that there are no such Hills in nature, nor was it ever agreed among Geographers where they should be sited. And it is since manifest that from the Lake aforesaid there is as much space of ground lying between the Sea, as is betwixt it and Peloponessus, so that many places are assigned to Asia in this Region, which do truly belong to Europe. This is the rather insisted, to rectifie the general mistake in most of the modern Maps and descriptions of the World.

The vastnesse of the Asian Scythia is so great, that its bounds were neither known in the past, nor discovered to the present Age; Circumscribed to the East with the opposite shore of unknown Seas; to the North with the Frozen Scythian Sea; to the West with the Cimmerian Bosphorus, Maotis, Tanais, and a Line drawn to the White Sea; to the South with the Indies; whence it comes to passe that the Strait of Anian is yet controverted; some allowing no such Sea; others so narrow a one, that the Scythians are feigned to have had their originals from America. The uncertainty of our knowledge of this Countrey is imputed to this main Cause, for that none of the Mighty of the world could ever boast of a Conquest thereof, thereof. We read of Expeditions made against the Scythians, both towards the East and the West, but no way remarkable for their progression. Cyrus never reached Jaxarta; Darius attempting the European Scythians, came not to the Mountains of Dacia. Trajan who went further then any of his Predecessors, arrived not to the Springs of Marusius. The Arms of Alexander the Great, the more inward Inhabitants onely heard of, but felt not. And Pliny complains that in his time the vastness of the Mæotick Lake was altogether unknown, some saying it was a Gulf or Bay of the Sea; others that it was divided from it by an Isthmus or small piece of ground. And even now although Zingis Chan, and Temur or Tamerlane Chan, attained the Dominion of all Scythia, and their Acts are extant and read by many Men in the Arabick Tongue; yet the places thereof are so obscured by their barbarous and confused names that they afford imperfect light to any Discovery.

Scythia
now called Tartary.

The very word Scythian, in former times extended not its self further than to the Taurica Chersonesus; led by which reason, Strabo called that Scythia the Lesse, now termed by Pincus, Precopsa and Gazara, and even at this day, on the same account is Tartaria the Lesse denominated: For what ever Ancient Times called Scythia, the greatest part thereof by the latter is called Tartaria or Tataria, The Countrey of a most Warlike Nation, addicted to Prey

Prey and Robbery. The whole is almost Desert and desolat, so that Planocarpus the Nuncio of Innocent the fourth, found the better half of it to be Sandy Plains, and destitute of Inhabitants; who have no certain or fixt Habitations, as counting it a sin and a crime to build a City; (as is reported of the Ancient Nomades, whose Progeny these are) but carry their Tents about with them. Its Desert and Inhabitable side

This Desert Tartaria (called in Arabick, Kafshak and Barka, from whence the Hungarians are deduced) is shut up to the South with the Caspian and Euxine Seas, and the interjacent Hills of the Circassian Mamelukes, anciently Caucasus. The East is limited by the Chovaresmi, by Strabo called Chorasmasini; by Stephanus, Chorameni (a People derived from the Massagetae and Saca, to whom Bessus and Spiramenes fled from the Bactrians and Sogdiani) Atcar and Schagnak; until ranging to other Regions as far as Turquestana (which is Seated betwixt Oxus and Jaxara, the peculiar derivation of the Huns) it joyns with the Getae, and the Chinese, who Conterminate with the Mogoles and the Chattai. On the North is the Region of Siberia, vast solitudes and Desarts, and Sands like Mountains. Lastly, on the West, Russia, Bulgaria, and the Ottoman Empire. There are many Tribes of this People, but quite different in Language, as much as the Borderers differ in their several manners from the peaceable simple dispositions of the Inlanders.

The Antiquity of the Scythians, their propagation.

The Nation of the Sythians, Justin affirms, to have been most Ancient, although much disputed for Antiquity by the Ægyptians. For the Mountainous places were first Inhabited, then the Plains. Nor is there scarce any People of Europe or Asia, which have not been propagated out of the North, even the Eastern parts as far as India, where under the Name of Parthians, as mentioned before, now called Persians, they dilated their Empire; and the Western, to the Regions of Polonia, Germany, Pannonia, and Denmark; known now and denominated from the Seats of the Sauromatae, Goths, Huns, and Cymbri, Cumani, Comoiri, Geloni, the same with the Pencini, Othogothi, Thuringi, Eastern Gotths, and Gepidae originally deduced from the Confines of Tanais, and many more, to which are added the Celtae; part of whom had their Seat in Thracia, as another part of them gave Name to the Germans, Gauls, and Brittons; so that the world hath been peopled in a manner out of these Regions.

Their change of Name into Huns.

But in the middle Age of the World, those Scythians were dreaded by fewer Names, and renownedly by that of the Huns, subdivided into the White and Black by Procopius (to omit the Goths who are also allied to the said People by a neerer Etymology, for that according to the Æolian Dialect which rendred the Scythian, the Character Σ. is added before the Consonant Γ. in the word Γύττες whence are derived

rived the Goths, by barbarous pronunciation.

The White were the People seated, as aforesaid, betwixt Oxus and Jaxarta, that gave Name and being to the Hungariæ. But because no sure and undoubted Authority thereof can be produced (which may not be vvondred at, because the most certain things are scarce testifiable and mostly fabulous, and the Romans after the Decay of their Empire intent to their ovvn, became (as justly ashamed) incurious of other affairs) vve must content our selves vvith the best Conjectures, and among others, with that of St. Ferome, vvho Writes, that the Huns came from the Massageta, and the Extremest parts of the Maotis; and next with allusion of words, for that Abtela and Attila, the first whereof was the Name of the Eutha- litæ Kings (to which stock generally the Huns are referred) and the last of the Hungarians, are Names so alike that they cannot be discriminated. To omit many more witnesses, viz. Menander, Paulus Diaconus, Ammi-anus, and Fernandes, who are copious in the proof thereof by divers most Convincing Arguments, to which we must refer the Reader.

The Destruction
of the Huns.

Certain it is, they were Conterminous to the first Extract of the Turks now called Tur- comania, Bordering Northeast upon Persia, where they Inhabited until vanquished by their Sultan or Chan, in the Time of Justinian, when part of them mixing and uniting with the Turks, the other part fled Northwards; of whose remains descended the Auares, who after their Progenitors migration Westward, Combated often with the Turks, and likewise by them at last worsted, seconded their fellows into Europe. The Western Huns are those who at this day are called Tartars, part of whom by the Name of Cimmerii since Cymbri, possessed themselves of Denmark. So that after the race of so many Ages, the same Quarrel is revived now under the same Names of both Nations, if we give credit to Antiquity. Next we consider the former Inhabitants of Hungary.

The former Inhabitants of
Hungary.

The Mysians Inhabited both the Banks of Danubius, against whom Darius led an innumerable Army; They were called by Homer, Galactophagi, Milk-eaters, a Generation of most just and honest men. Of those a part were the Getae, whose King Dormichates so despised Riches, that content with Victory, he released Lysimachus his prisoner, which simplicity is alledged to this day, as the cause of their Servitude to other Nations. Syrmius had Dominion afterward of the same Nation, as King of the Triballi, who for fear of Alexander the Great, fled into the Island Pence, the Fame of whom remains to this day, by that Tract of Ground which lies between Varadin Peter, and Eelgrade, called by his Name Syr-mia.

From these came those Mysians, who possessed

ed themselves of Habitations between the Lydians, Phrygians, and Trojans; with an equal simplicity, as unwilling to obey, as ambitious of Commanding. The Daci, Dahi, Dae, and Dahæ are the same People; part of them sate down by the Mountainous places of Transylvania, part between Oxus and Jaxarta, neer to the Massagetes, which space of ground, because it is so great, Strabo cannot be induced to assign the same originals to them both;
but how weakly, their migrations and invasions into remotest distanced Regions do sufficiently evince. Plinius makes no distinction between the Daci and the Getae, but onely of Name; For as Cottisan is styled by Horace, the King of the Daci, so by Suetonius, he is called Prince of the Getae: But Strabo makes them thus to differ, the Getae to be those whose Country bended towards the East and the Sea; and the Dacians those who stretched themselves oppositely towards Germany, and the rise of the River Ister; although he presently adds, that they both use the same Language.

Neither doth he herein agree with himself, because he makes the River Marus or Maru-sus, to glide through the Getae, and fall into the Danow, which by a due distinction should be said to passe by the Countrey of the Daci.
For this River by Herodotus termed Maris, by others Marfus or Margus; and by the Hungarians, Maros; which ariseth from the Carpathian Hill belonging to the Daci, bends towards

wards the South, till before Alba, winding to the Westward, it is mingled with the Tybis-cus, from whence another Error of the same Authour is discovered, in that he writes that the Marusius flows into the Danow. Nor are there wanting some (Justus Lipsius, and Isaac Casaubon) who expound that Marus in Tacitus of this Marisus, by which name also Cluverius understands Morava, as giving Name to Moravia.

Of these Nations as of Servile manners and Spirits, the Names of Slaves or Servants were borrowed, represented in Comedies (as they either personated true, or seeming-true Slaves) by Davus and Geta, as the Scholiast on Aristophanes witnesseth, and is further proved by the Authority of the Comical Apollodorus in one of his Fables, where they are both named, and whence Terence borrowed them, whence soon after the said Names were applied to unlearned and ignorant men. Hence the same Terence, Davus sum non Oedipus, of no capacity to resolve Riddles.

The Danubius.

This Danubius, since mention is to be frequently made of it and occurs here; Eustathius the Interpreter of Dionysus, out of Strabo and Stephanus reports to have been once called Matthoas; but when the Scythians in passing over it were sorely afflicted, it came to be called Danufius or Danubius, Δάνυος or Danum, in the Macedon Language signifying Death, as Plutarch witnesseth; between which River and Ister,

Ister, Peolomy and Pliny so distinguish, that the upper part from Axiopolis, which the Pannonians and Fazyges possesse, to its Springs be called the Danow; and the rest to the Sea-ward be named Ister; which difference at this day, is hardly or not at all observed. Some have fabled that this River fell from the Riphean Hills, and that one of its Arms disembogued it self into the Adriatick Sea.

Now that which afterwards more peculiarly was called Dacia, Comprehends at this time, Transylvania, Moldavia, Valachia beyond the Alps; between the European Sarmatia, and the Rivers of Danubius and Tyra, and the Fazyges Metanasta: Moldavia stretcheth it self to the Euxine Sea. Transalpina along the Banks of the Danubius. Transylvania is bounded and Confined by the aforesaid Principalities, White-Russia and Hungary. To the Dacians between the Carpathian Mounrains and Ister, the Fazyges were conterminat, to these the Pannonians, being encompassed with two great Forrests, and three Rivers, the Savus, Dravus, and Ister. The Grecians called them Peones, but wherefore doth not appear; for that Peonia, according to Justin Ptolomy, is sited in Macedonia, whose Inhabitants (passing by an ancients fiction of Endymion's Son) are fabled by Lazius upon the Discomfiture given the Macedonians by Æmilius, to have retreated and Planted themselves by Ister.

But Dion Cassius oppugning this Errour, derives

The Description of Dacia.

rives the Name of the Pannones from Pannus, a word signifying Cloth, of which they made themselves patcht Clothes of divers Colours and peices; which observation of Habit gave Names to several of the Ancient Nations. Greece was thereby termed Palliata, i. e. Cloaked. Rome, Togata, Gowned. France was divided into Togata & Braccata, Gowned and Breeched. Bur I do not understand how the excellent Isaac Causabon, by the words of Dion, can conceive that Pannus was a word of the Pannonian Mother Tongue as he largely shews, for the word Ἐπιχρίσις used by Dion is rather referrible to the Custome of wearing the garment, than to the Language of the Nation; nor is the word Pannus of so modern an Extraction but that it was well known to Polybins and other Grecians. By all which it may be supposed that by a small mutation from the word Παννώνια or Πανωνία, the noted Name of Παιωνία may arise, and be in use with the Grecians, as is above said. But to their story.

The invitation of the Huns into Europe.

THE first Captain that led the Huns into these parts of Hungary was Belamber, incited thereto by a Nobleman, (who persuing a Deer that took the great River Tanais, (the supposed bound of Asia and Europe) to the other side, was ravished with the view of so delightful a Prospect, and fruitful Soil) and by his own Ambition of rendring himself Famous and Terrible to the World.

His passage over the Tanais, lost him a multitude titude of Men (for Bridges and Boats were,

 the one impossible, and the convenient use of the other not known) yet not so disabled Him but that He continued his Expedition by the chearfulnesse of his People, and discomfited
 the * Alani; thence he turned his victorious Arms towards the Inhabitants of the Black Sea, ^{*or Roxo-} and subduing them, perswaded them to take ^{lans now} up Arms with him against the Mysians and Da- cians, the former Possessors of Servia, Rus- sia, Bulgaria, Moldavia, &c. who made stout opposition. When Melamber, aged and wearied out, left the Atchievement to his Son Mund- zuch alias Bendeguz, who Defeated the Goths ^{Belam-} (after two unlucky and almost fatal Combats) ^{ber their} then Conquerours of Pannonia and that Tract ^{first Cap-} of the World, and in a mortal Battel flew the ^{tains Con-} Terror of the Huns, Alathens and Saprax, the Guardians of Videricus King of the Goths, and stretched his Conquest over all the Territory which lieth betwixt the River Ister and Borysthenes, which includes the Country they now possesse.

He dying left two Sons (the terrible) Atti- ^{Attila his} la and Bleda, to the Tuition of his Brothers ^{Son suc-} Hottar and Rugila, who having vanquished the ^{ceeds him.} Eastern parts and utterly expelled the Visi- goths from all Thracia, mastering also Macedon- ia, and Illyria, compelled or frightened the Romans to purchase their Peace with the present payment of 700 l. of Gold, and 300 afterwards yearly, for pretended default whereof and other

ther piques, Attila marching through Germany ruined Argentorate, which he re-edifying caused to be called Strasburg, and in the Catalannian Fields, gave Battel to Ætius Lieutenant to Valentinianus* the Emperour, assisted by the Kings of the Goths and Gauls.
Attila had in his Army 50000. some say, 700 thousand men, but the Fate of Europe struggling with this Emergent and sudden danger, and loth to resign her Glory to such a tumultuous and barbarous enemy courageously maintained her Title, and made the Hun retreat with the Common mutuall losse of 170 thousand men, to his Conquest of Hungary; to which he never had returned had the Goths, or Romans pursued their successe and victory.

*not Chalans in Burgundy
as is mi-taken, by a place called Maurice near the River Matrona or Marn in France.

Attila troubled with this his first Disappointment resolved to recover the reputation of his Puissance, and therefore having provided himself in five years vacancy from War of another Terrible Host, purposed by Tyrol to descend into Italy, but finding those difficult passes defended by Valentinian, he turned his Force upon Dalmatia, and conquering the Roman Army near the Tergestine Bay, beseiged, and after three years leagure took and sackt Aquileia.

From thence he passed to Vreona in Italy, but advancing further towards Ravenna was met in his way by Pope Leo; and by him dehorted and intreated from a further pursuit of his successe.

The

The event was not lesse wonderful then the former eruptions of this destroyer were unexpected, but the reverence meeknesse, Gravity and Humility of those Fathers of the Church were even attractives to those Savage Barbarians.

At the approach of them notwithstanding, the Venetians then inhabiting the same Lands which yet belong to their Territory, fled to the Islands in which their Glorious Seignory now continues, and laid the Foundation of their Greatnesse upon the fear of their ruine; That which then was their temporary shelter proving the impregnable Fortresse and Defyant Bulwork of Christendome against all other Invasions through a long duration of time and honour.

Attila at his return dyed in Hungary, suffocated with blood which he used to excern by his Nostrills in some abundance, but now falling into his mouth, whether by the Judgement of God in satisfaction of all that he had so inhumanely spilt, or by practice of his brothers friends (whom he had caused to be killed upon suspicion of his aspiring to the sole Command) who made a violent advantage of that infirmity and diverted its course, is not certainly delivered.

To sum up the story of this Attila for satisfaction of the Reader I have adjoyned his Title, not unlike that which the Turkish Sultans now use towards these very Hungarians, retorting their own insolence and arrogance upon the

the impotent feeble remnant of that once mighty and most populous Nation; in hæc verba;

His Title. ATTILA the Nephew of Nimrod, nourished in Engaddi, by the Grace of God, King of Huns, Medes, Goths, and Dacians, The Terrour of the World, and Scourge of God.

Which last he added after his Conference with an Hermit.

This (however denied by some Hungarian Authors) is reported by so many others, that the Reader may give credit to it; for though Attila was not then a Christian profess, yet certainly he was not altogether a Pagan, as his assent to Leo before-mentioned will partly evince.

His two Sons succeed.

Attila Dying left two Sons Aladerick and Chaback, who (as the fortune of the World and War varies) lost all with the same career of Ruine as their Father gained Dominion by monstrous Accessions; for at his Death the Limits of his Territories were on the one part stretched to the Huns and Jugri in Scythia, and on the other to France, and Italy; so that this Empire laboured under its own weight
and

and fell by unnatural and Intestine Divisions.

This same Aladerick is supposed by many to have been begotten by Attila upon Honor ria the Daughter of the Emperour Valentinian, but this opinion is rejected by others, because The inter- they say Attila died before she arrived at his fine feuds Camp. Whatever his Birth was, it was certain of the Huns he was Favoured by the Princes of Germany, and Dieterick of Verona, and aided against his Elder Brother, advanced to the Supreme Power by the Huns, who notwithstanding as is usual in such fraternal and Civil Feuds, revolted soon after to Aladerick, & so sheathing their Swords Their De- in their own Bowels, made easie way to their struction.
Enemies designs of revenge against them.

The first that engaged and Encountered them was Arderick King of the Gepida, who vindicated his People from the slavery of the Huns, killing of them 30000 in one Battel, and so pursued his successe upon their frightened remains that they lost all their several Conquests at one breath (Aladerick himself coming to this Bloody end, as a victim and sacrifice to those infinite slaughters that had been committed by his People) for hereupon Ardarick seized Dacia; the Goths, both the Pannonia's or Hungary; the A- lani or Russes Mysia; while Chaba the other Brother difficultly recovered his Countrey of Scythia; Uto and Ischalmus, with some others of his Huns diverted into Romania, whose Po-terity is remaining to this day in the Town of Galacz. Ermedzar and Uzindur Cousins of the

* Now called Siculi.

The Lombards
posse Hungary.

* The Original of the first Huns.

said two Captains, sate down between the Rivers Marusius and Alutha, and by the ascents to the Mountainous places of Dacia, and to avoid the suspicion of the name of Huns, called themselves * Szekeli, which term or word signifieth a fixed place and habitation, not vagabonds or Fugitives, for which their Nation was now so infamous.

The Roman Dominions being thus freed of the Successors of Attila, was anew oppressed with the alternate and Vicissitudinary Power of the Rugi, Goths, and Lombards; who successively by the crafty instigation of the feeble Romans subdued one another; the Lombards assisted by Swain K. of Denmark, after other Conquests seating themselves in Pannonia: whither the * AVAKES (not the same but another Tribe of Huns) being beaten out of the Northern Scythia by the Euthalia * who had themselves been beaten by the Turks, in the Year 500. after the Incarnation, possessed themselves of the Country of Ister, having expelled the Goths from Taurica, and utterly extinguished the Name of the Gepidae. In their advance to Pannonia; Alboynus Captain of the Longobards, to prevent the fortune of War with so necessitous a People, made a friendly Composition with them, whereby it was agreed that the Avars should be possessed of Hungaria, upon Condition to restore it again if the Lombards failed of their Enterprize & design upon Italy: but that succeeding, these Huns being quietly possessed, stayed stayed not here but Invaded the Territories of the Romans; from whom (once defeated by them) ^{The A-} ^{VARES} their Leader under pretence of making Baths, ^{possesse} borrowed some Carpenters, which he employ- ^{themselves} ed in making Bridges over the Danubius, that he ^{of Hun-} might more easily Invade & infest their Domi- gary. nions. His first Conquest by this means was of Syrmia, by which his Forces grew so terrible; that they were counted the avengers of the sins of the Eastern Europe; having compelled the Emperour Maurice to purchase a Peace of him with the sum of Fourscore thousand pound of Gold, which lasted no longer than two years; for the Barbarian regardless of his Faith, demanded an increase of the Tribute, and upon ^{Afflict the} the denial thereof seized Strigonium and ^{Romani} Viminacum, and in several encounters greatly ^{Dominions} endamaged many of their Provinces and wasted and consumed more of their Legions.

Their Empire or Government continued after that time with very various fortune, at first with great overthrows often weakening their Foster friends the Lombards, until the time of Charles the Great, when they grew into a Coalition with the Bojarij, from whom now came the new name of the Bavarians, (hateful enough to the Boij or Bohemians) with whose King Tu- dun, Charles the Great and his Son, managed divers Wars, not with the Hungarians themselves, as many have erroneously maintained. At which time (as nothing gained by humane power is durable) these Avars either lost their

The Avares Name among other Nations, or else were wholly cut off and extinguished. Nicephorus saith the following Huns or Hungarians, dissolved their power and extirpated them; the German Writers assign Charlemagne to that work, as Suidas doth the Bulgarian's; whence most certain it is to be concluded, that they stuck in all the snares, and by one or all of their hands came to the period of their Name and Greatness.

But leaving them to that Final Suppression, let us consider from the Premises, what Sad and Doleful Ages those were that brought up the Rear of the Roman Monarchy! On which like a Bear damned to the Stake, so many fierce Mastiffs were let fly together. But it is more wonderful how Christianity amidst such horrid and continual subversions of Things could ever get footing? nay, dilate it self with the Progresse of these Infidels? Which though a Diversion, I cannot but mind the Reader for the Honour and convincing verity of our Religion, to take notice of. There being now no visible foot-steps remaining of the Hungarian Nation in this Territory; it shamed a Noble people to bear the Yoke of a Forreign Ruler, having been used themselves to Govern and Command others. And hereupon those Huns who fled that great Defeat given to Attila's Sons, & were scattered into Transylvania & Russia (where now there is a Tribe of them yet remaining towards Siberia, called Jugri by Geographers) impatient of their retirement and obscure obscure condition, invited their kinred & Country-men, who now had breathed from their expulsion out of Europe into Scythia, and Siberia, and the Northermost parts of Europe, as afore said, to return again and make another venture with them for the Restauration of their Name and Honour by their former Conquests.

The remains of the old Huns re-possesse themselves

Little invitation served a penurious and warlike Nation made and designed for great things and addicted to Glory, besides that the dangerous condition of their European friends, who sculkt from the fury of the victorious Goths, did urgently call for their assistance. In the year 890. seven several Armies of them under seven Leaders all vested with equall power invaded Dacia again, and after some exploratory peace-pretending Messages to Suatopolugus then King of those Countries proceeded to attaque him, who making resistance was defeated & driven beyond Danubius; thence pursuing their success they laid wast the whole Country of Illyria, and peirced into Moravia and Bohemia, and subdued all Hungary, and as much more Territory as is contained between the River Gran, the Smevian Hills & from Ister to the Sea, extending it thence also towards the East. Their Successes.

Yet so uneven and fluctuating was their Fortune, that though Arnulphus the Emperour was glad to seek and obtain Peace of them, yet Luithpoldus the Emperours Generall after Arnulphus his Decease, upon their return from a new incursion under Chussales their King in-

The Huns
defeated by Luithpol-
dus.

to Germany the length of 250 leagues on the North side of the Danow, where they destroyed all before them, encountred them near Vienna in Austria, wearied with spoil and the length of the Journey & overthrew them, 12000 of them perishing in that river whose Banks had suffered so often by their bloody & frequent Inundations; the rest were driven & pursued to Presburgh, having lost their King whose generous spirit could not endure the fatal dishonour of that bloody Field, wherein the Huns were like again to have run the same hazard of their former ruine but that a mutiny amongst the victor Army opportunely stopt a further pursuit.

The news of this defeat did not long keep the Huns at home but grown strong with rest, and more robust by the divisions of the *German*s, and having newly substituted Dursack and Bugoth, to the Regal Dignity, they again resumed their former design; which the next year they enterprised, possessing themselves of all Pannonia, exhausted already by continual spoil, carrying also Colonies, with them and placing them in the Countries of the Boii.

* Aufpurg
seated neer
the River
Rhodonum, on whose Banks this Field was fought.

To oppose them, Lewis the Emperour having called a Counsell, and by their Concurrency raised a great Army, encountred them at * Augusta Vindelicorum, where he was worsted in a famous Battel; Luithpoldus the former successful General, with Eysenrick His Arch-Sewer and 15 Counts, being slain on the place, together with most of the Army. Nor fared he he better at his second Conflict, having for safety of Germany induced all the Provinces to take sudden Arms with him, being defeated by this Stratagem; the Huns had fought almost to a desperate Event, in the Fields near the Leman Lake, when advised by imminent danger, they counterfeited a flight, and by that means drew the enemy into the Woods upon their Ambushes, and there made a cruel and vast slaughter of them; and following their good fortune, made Havock of all the Countrey round about with fire and Sword in their usual manner, neither Churches, Monasteries, Bishops, or Priests escaping their sacrilegious and destroying hands. Lewis the Emperor defeated the second time by the Huns.

No stop being like to be put to their fury, they burnt down Utinum, and passing the river Cenus, dispeopled the Canton of Zurick, and compelling Schleckdorp and Damasia, beyond the Iser, with other Towns by famine and thirst to surrender, demolished and ruined them.

Auspurg was served in the same manner, and numberless multitudes of men led Captives like beasts after them, which luggage with their other spoils invited the Boii to fall upon them, but they were so sharply entertained, that with the slaughter there and in the whole Territory the Huns seemed to have made a final end at this one bout.

Ratisbone was now burnt by them, whence by Osterhof they passed the Danubius, putting the Bohemians, Franconians, and the adjacent Nations. Their ravage and Devastations.

They invade Grecia.

Nations to the Sword, So that most of the rivers of Germany were turned into blood, and Lewis broken with so many mischiefs, glad to make the Empire Tributary to the Huns, who leaving Germany (as prone to War, and enlargement of Dominion, fell next upon the Grecian Empire (which they had only touched in the former War) by the beginning of the next Spring, when passing through the Mysia superior and wasting Thracia infesting also the Macedonians, they conquered Bulgaria (which yet made some resistance) and all those stranger Countries, insomuch that Constantine the Colleague of Alexander his Uncle, refused not being terrified by these approaches, the payment and Tribute imposed on his Cities.

The Description of Hungaria
as then possessed by that Nation.

The Huns being thus established and fixed in their former possession gained by their Sword in Hungary, it will be requisite to describe that tract of ground, which came under the said appellation and was then a most ample and spacious Dominion. The Kingdome of Pannonia did not formerly exceed the Banks of the Danubius, and because it extended it self from the said River as far as the Carpathian Hills, which terminate the European Sarmatia, it was called the hither and the further Hungary. The upper part of the hither, contained Styria and Austria, the inferiour was all that tract of ground between the River Dravus, the Balaton Lake (which upon the coming of Christ broke out in the country of Gisa) the Desarts of Vertha tha and the Danubius. The further Hungary separated by the Carpathian Hills from Moravia of the Marcomanni, Silesia and Poland contains that part of the Jazyges Metanasta, & Dacia which is on this side the Hills, which the River Tybiscus runs thorough, arising from the Maromorusian Hills above Zigeth * & between Zemlin and Salankien is mingled with the Danube. Between the Rivers Dravus and Savus, lyeth Sclavonia reaching as far as the River of Hun. Below Savus lies Croatia, both the Bosnia's, Dardania, now Dalmatia; The Illyrians possesse the further parts, the same with the Liburnians, bounded with the Adriatick Sea, and Eastward with the River Bosna: To this Confine both the Mysia's, the Upper, in which is Servia and Rascia, and the lower now called Bulgaria: for the Bulgarians now comming from Asia, compelled the Bessi, ejected out of the Lower Mysia, to seat themselves in the Upper: Both of them lye between the Danube, and mountain of Hun: The Danube emptying it self into the Euxine Sea. To the Eastward of Hither Hungary lieth Dacia betvveen the River Tyra, the Danube, and the Sea, comprehending Transylvania, Moldavia, and Transalpina, or Valachia. Transylvania is compassed with Woods and Hills, in manner and form of a *Crovv*n. These Countries being subdued by the Huns they contented themselves with Tribute for Germany, who soon disdaining that servile con-

* not that in Lower
Hungary.

The Germans arm against them.

dition under Barbarians, under Conrade Duke of Franconia, saluted Cesar in place of Lewis, and Arnulphus the Son of Luithpoldus proclaimed King of the Boii, took Arms again, but the Boii were at the entrance of the War so consternated, that the Huns with universal spoil passed as far as the River Oenus again: where Arnulphus having selected the ablest Souldiers, and secured the rest in the City, set upon them in their careless jollity, and encompassing them by surprize, made a great slaughter of some, and drove others into the River, and brought a general Fear, greater then any before upon their whole Army, which was freed thereof by the egregious Vertue and Valour of Dursach, who in the very instant of the danger, compelled the Bohemian weakned by so fierce a War, to strike a League and Agreement with him.

Their second Expedition into Italy.

But the present Disaster was expiated with great Victories, the Huns still hankered after the Lady of so many Pleasures: The Dissensions between Leo the Fifth, Sergius the Third, and Christopher the Antipope, adding to their Hopes as if designed for Avengers of their Pride and Ambition; hereupon passing Friuli with spoiling and burning, they came as far as Pavia, and by the river Brenna, with a horrible Carnage overthrew Berengarius, who had amassed an innumerable Host of the Tuscans, Vols-cans, and other Nations of Italy. Which Defeat was occasioned meerly by their Contempt of the Enemy, who having in vain after many many Prayers and intreaties voluntarily offered the re delivery of their spoil, and a Covenant or Article of never invading Italy again, upon condition of Life and Departure on horseback, took advantage of the negligence of the Italians, and punished this their Arrogance: for with three parties they surprized the secure Bodies of the Enemy, who staid expecting the return of their Commissioners, sent with their denial to the Huns, and killed a great many with their drink in their Throats: so those that could not be appeased with submission and Gifts were now destroyed with fury & cruelty.

The Italians under Berenga-rius Vanquished.

All places now opened to their victorious Arms, which are reported to have been so potent at this time, that they overran likewise the Boiarij (contrary to their Agreement) Franconia and Saxony, with vast depopulations: nor did their rage stop here, for within two years they peirced as far as Basil, which having razed they wasted Alsatia and Lorrain, with so much celerity, that Conrade who purchased his peace with money, seemed conquered before any Enemy was at hand. And such was the horreur of this Defeat abovesaid, that the Huns enraged, abstained not from the Flesh of the Slain, The Cause of which being asked of Lebel (a Hungarian Captain taken prisoner at Auspurg by Conrade) was thus declared. We are the Avengers of the sins of Mankind, appointed by God for your punishment; when we desist from persecuting you, by the angry God,

They Master all places.

we

we are taken by you and destroyed.

The Divisions in Italy and Rome.

Italy although so often chastised, yet nothing the wiser, was distracted with various factions, Lewis the Son of Roson relying upon the Papal right, assumed to himself the Imperial Dignity, being assisted and encouraged by the Lumbaras, who would have Berengarius devested of the Dignity; he being thus between the Hammer and the Anvile, called in the Huns, the sworn Enemies of the Faith: they under pretence of Aid, undertake the Expedition, and range through Italy, killing and bringing to obedience Lambert the Archbishop of Millan, Heydelbert the Captain of the Guard or Pretorium, with other Rebels. Berengarius not long surviving this Victory, his Son the second of that name succeeded him, against whom rose up Rodolph, Duke of Burgundy his Rival, to the Dominion of Italy, Berengarius therefore diffiding in his own forces, as the Heir of his Fathers Kingdome and manners, trod in the same Track of an Hungarian Expedition, who in his cause wasting Italy, soon after overthrew Odelricus, the Count of the Palace, or Major Domo, with his numerous Army, as afterwards they took the Marquiss Adelbert & Giselbert Prisoners, but they were no sooner departed, then Berengarius was overcome, and perfidiously slain, though justly in respect of his cruelties to his own blood; This Murder of the King, gave good occasion to the Huns to return into Italy, where they again burnt

The Huns
third and fourth Expedition into Italy.

burnt Ticinum, exercising cruelty as a virtue : and having plundered & undone the Provinces, laded themselves home with a most rich spoil.

A German War followed this, Henry firna-^{The Ger-} med the Fowler, Son of Conrade deceased, ^{mansunder} denied to pay the tribute now insolently and im-^{Henry the} periously redemanded by the Huns, who there-^{Emperour,} upon keeping their faith religiously with the Bairi, ^{refuse the} (Arnulph their King having fled to them in a ^{Tribute} voydance of the designs and snares of Conrade but was afterwards brought back by the Prudence of Henry) wasted Transylvania, Sme- via, but cheifly Saxony, the Hereditary Country of the Emperour, who unable to endure this their haughty & presumptuous behaviour, with a well composed Army surpriz'd them at Meers- ^{Defeat the} burgh, in the Confines of the Thuringian Saxons; ^{Huns at} having given Order to his Men to receive their ^{Meers-} first flight of Arrows upon their Shields, ^{burgh.} discreetly and conveniently placed, and while they were fitting and preparing for another volley, to rush in upon them; by which Military Policy the Huns were driven foul upon one another and slain with a terrible slaughter, and Germany thereby freed from a shameful and ignominious slavery.

The remains and reliques of those Hungarians which survived the Battel, were slain by one anothers Treachery and Discovery; the feigned and pretended reward whereof was impunity and pardon offered to such of them as should reveal their Comrades and Countrymen men; so that no more then Seven escaped to carry the news of this miserable Defeat and disaster to Pannonia and Dacia; the Horrour whereof so stupified this Nation, that during the Raige of Henry, they totally abstained from meddling with Germany.

The Hungarians stunned & stupified
with the losse.

Their Fortune
changed.

Until the time of Otho the Great, the Hungarians therefore continued at home within their own walls; but then it appear'd what power and prevalence Shame hath over Fear, although things be never so hazardous or desperate; for having recruited themselves by a long quiet and cessation from War, with their former Courage and Force they Invaded the Limits of Bavaria, while other Parties of them wasted the Trani, Norici, and Charini; for which Depredations they were to satisfie soon after to the utmost; for Berchtoldus Duke of Bohemia, overcame them neer Valence, and with the Sword and the River Trannus, to which they fled, made an end of them all: with the same fortune they fought with the Charini, where having lost their Leaders and General they were forced to fly.

To revenge these Discomfitures Taxis (not yet advanced to the Regal Dignity) undertook two other Expeditions the one into Austria, and the other against the said Charini or Carinthe, in the Confines of Italy, which he miserably havocked, but him Bertholdus his Son so worsted and routed, that he was forced to sculk and sneak for shelter; the cause of which Calamity was his feirce and brutish Valour Valour ungovernable by any Art or policy ; Being beaten here he turned his Fury upon Italy, where he was appealed by Ferengarius the third, Protector to Lotharius, with Ten Bushels of Money, which Tribute was imposed upon the heads of those that gave suck, being as much as Hugo had formerly paid. Huns Invade Italy again.

The Cruelty of the Huns was not yet quite allayed, when Gerard the Bohemian, and Duke Conrade, not long before banished by Otho, fell a spoiling the Churches, and robbing the Monasteries, and distributed the Ecclesiastical Treasure among the Hungarians, as yet Pagans, now intending an Irruption into Hungary; for Bulczko the Successor of Dursach, having considered the past Calamities, and the small ability of his present Condition, dispatcht away Embassadors to Otho under pretence of Civility and good friendship; but indeed to enquire of his present state, whether or no, it offered any advantage to his necessitous Arms. These returned with an answer rather fitted to the flattery of the occasion, which Bulczko sought, than any thing of truth.

So that in the 50. year after Lewis was slain at Rhodanum; with a 100000 Men, Commanded by himself and the Tetrarchs, Latins, Sura, Taxus, and Schaba; such a number of meer Hungarians being never seen before in those parts, he set upon Germany; when through fear of them as they passed, the whole Countrey was abandoned, the Cities either strongly Fortified or deserted, the People betaking themselves As Germany also.

selves to the inaccessible places of Mountains and Rocks for the safety of their lives.

The Huns in the mean while clambring over Hills and peircing through Woods, most horribly burnt and wasted all the Countrey, and having desolated Bavaria, passed beyond the Rhine and under the Conduct of Conrade, subverted Lorrain, wherein they violated all Humane and Divine things. Otho almost stupified with the danger, with eight Legions passed into Switzerland, having made Peace with the Venetians, at the same time as the Hungarians had defeated the Bohemians in a sore Battel, who guarded the passes. It was now observed, that the first onset of these Barbarians was the most forcible and vehement, and that they raged because their time was short. The Germans therefore beset them on every side, cutting off their straglers and Foragers, and carried their Success to the Camp, where the Huns tired with fight and plunder were wretchedly Vanquished, and the River Lycus filled with their slain; their General being taken was hanged upon a Gibbet at Ratisbone with some of his Captains, the rest being dismaid, secured themselves in their entrenchments. By this Battel the strength of the Huns was wholly broken; yet being made more tractable by this great slaughter, they were in a manner saved by this their Ruine.

The Huns
totally and finally overcome by Otho the Great.)

The

The Second BOOK.

AS the precedent necessary requisite to conversion to Christianity, divine Providence was pleased by these frequent and ruinous losses and slaughters, upon the neck of one another, to bring these barbarous Huns to an humble sense of their calamitous and ruinous condition, and by that prepare and soften their minds to the Reception of the great Evangelicall truth, against whose Innocent Doctrine, the applauses of their Triumphs and the noising loud Fame of their puissance and successe had out-dinn'd the Trumpets of the Prince of Peace, so that the still voyce of the Redeemer could not be heard in the Thunder of their impetuous, prosperous violences.

Sense of misery the way to Christianity.

Taxis one of the Tetrarchs dying valiantly in this last unfortunate encounter, the Huns chose GEYSA his Son, either for his Fathers or his own Piety's sake, for their King and Governor. For as there are, as in Time, so in all other things a kind of vicissitude; the 980th year from the Incarnation was not yet ended, when Geysa washed in the saving fount by Adelbert, began to propagate the worship of the true God and renouncing his Idols to abolish all superstition

E

Geysa the first King of Hungary.

His zeal to Christiani-
ty.

stitution, studying to take off that fierce and barbarous Nation from the desire of War, and by Christian mansuetude and sweetness to temperate their minds and senses. To this he was the more encouraged by Constantine the 7th. of that name Emperour of the East, and the Germanans who mainly promoted it, as being highly affected with such glad tydings; Next he appointed Priests and Bishops, the untamed nature of his people in vain resisting, and so reduced them, that abandoning Barbarisme, and the worship of Mars and Hercules, they embraced the Christian Faith. The Captives, (of which in such a long tract of time there could be no small multitude carryed away by them) industriously builded their Churches and brought their Children to be baptized. To the better effect of all which, Geysa used the help of a Pilgrim a very holy man who being invited by him into Hungary, chose to himself other Collegues; Geysa also by the aid and Arms of the Saxons and Bavarians kept his Enemies within their limits, so that the people of Hungary found themselves obliged to him for their preservation, who like an auspicious star shined upon them in a night whose gloominesse portended it for the last of their Existence, when sheathing their Swords he dispelled such an angry Tempest with a sudden Serenity.

He waged War in Austria against his will which unjustly taken away by Radeger he restored to Leopold, whose son being shortly after after expelled, the Hungarians under the conduct of Abas recovered and held it until Albert the Son of Henry the Emperour restored it to Germany. There were also other occasions of this Difference, Henry surnamed the Holy, disseised his Brother Bruno of his Dominions in Bamburg, who avoiding the danger fled to the Hungarians, by whom meeting with the Emperour then engaged in an expedition designed to the expulsion of Hardwick out of Lombardy, Bruno was reconciled and re-invested in his Estate. And having thus settled this Hungarian Realm as part of Christendom, I shall not be oblig'd to so prolix a narrative of their future Actions as being better regulated and Marshal- His Affiled to History, which hath registred them with ons.

that of their Neighbours : the rise and the fall of all powerfull things being that object which most men consider, because of most concern to the world, for all middle things the means of extremes are indifferent, and do not engage ordinary and common observation.

STEPHEN his Son succeeded him both Stephen in dignity and vertue, at the same time when the second both the English, Danes, Polonians and Hun- King.
garians had forsaken their false Religions, Pope Boniface the 7th. was then also expelled by Pope Benedict, from Rome, whence Stephen was honoured with many presents, and a privilege of conferring ecclesiastical preferments: His couragious zeal broke the many designs and attempts of his Pagan Subjects and Relations,

His At-
chievements

as his fortune gained him Transylvania, then abounding with ancient wealth, and now subdued to a constant obedience and subjection to the Hungarian Scepter. He overcame likewise the Bulgarians a warlike and successful people in the East, to whose Emperor Basilus, after this glorious defeat, they were forced to submit themselves. He had issue by his Wife Gisala the Sister of the Emperour, a Son called Emerick, who dyed in his Minority, and to the great grief of his Father, and the perpetual disgust of his Mother; in his room Vazules Stephens Uncles Son, was appointed and raised to the hopes of the Throne. Stephen dyed in the year of our Lord 1034. having reigned happily and prudently 37. years, a man of great humility and piety even unto Superstition, in a very great and ample fortune, which is subject to presumption and pride, for which his Widow was much hated and abominated.

Peter the 3d. King.

P E T E R notwithstanding succeeded him, the Son of his Sister, who managed his power no better then he gained it, by the Murther of Vazules; scandalizing the Government by base Covetousnesse and Arrogance, from which Crimes it had hitherto been inviolate: not knowing that things lifted up on high are more conveniently raised for a fall; nor to be of more pernicious Consequence to any Fortune then the best and supremest. He first banished Gisala, then took away her Dower, (reputed a just judgment judgement on her) pillaged his people , and murdered his Nobles ; whereupon ensued a Conspiracy against him , which prevailed so , that the Kingdome was transferred to Abas , and the Counsellors and Partakers of Peters Peter de- exorbitances , slain by the popular rage. Pe- posed. ter escaped to Henry the Emperour, who knowing him guilty of the defection of the Bohemians , forbad him his Presence, and cast him into Chains, but by the intercession of Albertus General of the Eastern limits, and Cesar's own generous Sentiments for a person descended of a Royal Family, He was soon after taken into favour.

ABAS was substituted in his place, by whom all Peter's Acts were rescinded , and the Kingdome seemed to have recovered its former dignity, except that Peter claimed it as Hereditary, and Abas that would command others, was a Vassal to his own passions.

Abas the 4th. King.

The first thing he did, was by an Embassie to explore the mind of the Emperour concerning Peter , but receiving dilatory answers, he made 2 invasions, the one into Bavaria where his Army and General were defeated , the other into Styria and Carniola , whence he carried away a great many Captives. This gave occasion to the Princes of Germany to assemble at Colen , and by unanimous Resolution there taken to invade Abas , which enterprize so succeeded , that Abas beaten in two Battles , and having lost all his Country , as far as the River

Gran

Gran beyond Pre burgh, was forced to a submission, by which he was bound to receive Gisala the banished Queen, to restore Austria, and other places, with the late Captives: which Articles he stood not to, but spighting his Nobles, as the occasion of his Misfortunes, under the pretence of convening them for Advice, most treacherously flew them and their Children: but this the more incensed others just indignation, so that the remains of them escaping to the Emperor, engaged him and Peter against Abas. At Raab a signal Battel was commenced, where by the revolt of Abas his Army, by which they satisfied for their former Defection from Peter, Abas was forced to fly and in the pursuit slain at Sheba, as a Victim and Sacrifice to the Ghosts of his murdered Nobility.

*Abas slain
at Sheba.*

Peter restored.

P E T E R was again restored by the Emperour, who in triumphal progresse rounded all Hungary, and having received the Royal Dignity, by the election of the Bishops assembled at Alba, transferred it to Peter, who returning to the same vitious and cruel Excesses, neither mindful of his past, nor provident of his future fortunes, provoked the Hungarians under two Captains Visca and Brunna, to another Combination and Rebellion against him, but the design being timely discovered, the chief Complices were most miserably tortured. Yet the sedition abated not, for by another Conspiracy inflamed by a general hatred against Christian Christian Religion, scandalized by their Kings enormous lives, the Hungarians privily sent for Andrew and Leventa, according to the advice of King Stephen, out of Poland, whither they had been banished; These lurking for a while at Newhausel, (now so called) by the river Nitre, and assisted by the inhabitants, wreaked their revenge designed against the King upon the Religion, massacring a great number of Bishops then assembled at Pesth. Peter presently thereupon being forsaken of his own, was drawn out of his hiding place in the Mos-Deposed by Andrew & sonian Grounds, and after his eyes were put out, his eyes put out, &c. had his privities cut off, which disgraceful out, &c. remains he survived three years. So when prudence is wanting to the first fortune, the future is alwayes most dangerous.

ANDREW succeeded in the year of Andrew Christ 1047, He repressed the innovated super- the 5th. K. stition, and punished with the sword or banishment such as had assisted him to Victory in his irreligious Cruelty. Henry the Third, Emperour, then engaged in a Papal War in Italy, (between Benedict the 9, and Sylvester the third, and Clement the Second, whom he placed at last in St. Peters Chair) being no way at Leisure to attend Hungary; but that at last by his power determined, he resolved to revenge the injury done to Peter, invading first the Southern parts of Hungary, but was forced to retreat by the overflowings of the Lakes and Rivers; the next expedition was by water, where

His War
with Germany.

where he was worsted by a Stratagem, the last by water and land, but with as bad success, having advanced so far, and streightned for provisions, that he was forced to desire licence and leave to return. A peace ensued this kindnesse, and as a pledge thereof, the Emperour gave his Daughter in marriage to Solomon (the Son of Andrew) now confirmed in the succession to the Crown.

Bela the
6th. King.

B E L A (the brother of Andrew) by whom he was made Duke of Pomerania, and had hitherto lived in great Concord with him to the aggrandizing the Hungarian Felicity; and a little before appointed by him to the Kingly Government, could not brook this his Nephews advancement over his head: assisted therefore by many of the Hungarians, and aided by the Poles, as Solomon by Germany and Bohemia by the Interest of Andrew, besides his standing Legions, an engagement ensued at the River Tibiscus, with various fortune, untill the Hungarians in detestation of the Christian Religion, and in revenge of the suppression of Paganisme by Andrew, revolted to Bela, who thereby became Master of the Field; Andrew flying was trod down in the pursuit.

Bela used his victory with great clemency, freely giving life to the Rebels, and dismissing the German Prisoners Ransome free; and applying himself to the Government, appointed Markets and rates of things, lessened the Taxes and Impositions; Money being not as yet known known. He repaired and new built several places, suppressed the Peasants and Boores, tumulting against the profession of the Christian Religion, by sudden force; and though he gained the Kingdome by violence and injury, His virtues yet he governed it with piety and justice; and in the year 1065. the Third year of his Reign, by a kind of Earthquake at the Town of Domes which disjoined every part and Member of him, he dyed.

SOLOMON within a month after his Solomon Death was seated in his Throne by the power of the 7th. K. the Emperour, Geysa and Ladislaus the Sons of Bela, despairing of equal resistance, flying for refuge into Poland; but the German Forces returning home, they resumed courage, prevailing with Boleslaus the King of Poland to derive the friendship contracted between their Father and himself to them his Sons; Boleslaus owing so much to the merit of the Father, entered Hungary with them, but by the Mediation of the Archbishop of Strigonium, a Peace Bela's sons pacified. was happily concluded between them, on condition that Geysa and Ladislaus should with the Title of two Dukes enjoy a third part of the Kingdome, but the Sovereignty should abide in Solomon; This agreement with some grudging suspicions lasted till Solomon, by the Assistance of the Dukes, took Belgrade, the rich spoils whereof, a fourth part being only allowed the Dukes by the advice of one Vidus, caused such a Rupture, that both had present recourse to to Arms. The first Encounter proved disastrous, but the second fortunate to the Brothers, who had to their assistance Twenty thousand Bohemians; this Battel was fought by the Vaccian Forrest, and with great resolution on both sides; Vidus was here slain, and Solomon thereby driven out of his Kingdome.

Geyla the 8th. King.

G E R S A, now swayed the Hungarian Scepter, being busied in prosecuting his late victory, for that Solomon appeared in the confines towards Presburgh, endeavouring the restitution of his Fortune by the aid of the Germans, and other adjacent people; and in this Martial angry mood he lighted upon the Bessi, who had undertaken for their Liberty his final discomfiture, and severely chastised this their preingaged arrogance; yet he advantaged not his ovvn Affairs, till Henry the Emperour appeared in his quarrel, & first took Newhausel and advanced as far as Vacia, and seemed to threaten Geyla's Claim; but what he wanted in strength to oppose, he was supplied with in Craft and Policy, to impose upon the Germans, by a round sum of money sent them, upon which the Emperour retired, intent upon a revengeful design against Pope Hildebrand.

The Emperors of Germany no right in Hungary.

And here an end was put to the Tragedies of so many Kings, wherein we may observe by the way, that the Emperours though superiour by power and victory, could never make good their pretended Title to Hungaria, nor those Kings vvho adhered to, or made use of their Arms

Arms to passe unpunished. Geysa dyed by a Geysa natural death, the third year of his Reign; dieth. on vvhose Affections Desiderius the Metrapolitan Bishop is said to have had so much influence that he was once thinking to have rendred the Scepter to Solomon; But bethinking himself that his privacy could not be without danger, and that it would be rashnesse to trust the will and pleasure of an enemy, he resolved to retain the Government.

LADISLAUS having gloriously passed the Ducal Dignity conferred on him by his Brother, had the Regal Honour unanimously bestowed on him, as reputed a Prince of very great Virtue and Piety, and though he refused the Crown because Solomon was yet alive, yet the pertinacious importunity of the Hungarians overcame his modesty. He first restored the true worship of God, & the good laws of his Ancestors then obliterated and disused. He was assisted by an opinion of the divine favour accompanying him in all his Actions, then which there is not a better Instrument and Engine to govern the multitude, who conceived that the Crown of Hungary, * with which the Princes are to this day inaugurated, came down from Heaven upon the head of this Ladislaus. Ladislaus
9th. King
his brother succeeds.

He agreed with Solomon, for a certain yearly revenue, but he musing on his ambition, designed on pretence of a friendly conference to betray him, but that being discovered, He seized on him and imprisoned him at *Visigra*de, The reason why the Hungarians have such a veneration for that sacred Symbol of Majesty. where

The strange forlorn condition of Solomon.

where being condemned, at the intercession of a Nun admonished by Heaven, as she boasted, he gave him Life and Liberty; which courtesy he trait abused, by engaging Cuteschus the King of the Cumani to take his part, but unprosperously, his Army being overpowered and discomfited, so that despairing of recovering the Kingdom, and weary of the World, he put on Sackcloth, and betook himself to the woods and Caverns, living upon Acorns and Berries, and drinking the water of the Lakes for his thirst, teaching the world the uncertainty of all worldly things, and that felicity can be placed no where but in death. It is reported he was seen once in the time of Coloman the succeeding King, in whose Reign he also ended his Life, in the Woods of Istria.

In the mean while, Ladislaws reduced Dalmatia, and made it a perpetual Appendix to the Hungarian Dominion, together with Croatia; Thereafter followed a war with the Emperour of Byzantium, or Constantinople, but it evened with losse to the Hungarians, for which the Bulgarian Victory and Conquest soon after made amends. The Fury of the Cumani could nevertheless not be restrained, till after three overthrowes, the last whereof was most couragiously defended, at the banks of Ister, till Ladislaws with his own hands very difficultly slew Achus their General, whose death stroke and broke the Constancy of this valiant enemy, whose Confederates and Auxiliaries his valour.

Ladislaws

liaries the Roxolani fell under the same Fate, Russes, and precariously obtained their Peace.

Poland was the next Scene of his Successes, the cause of which Expedition was their Expulsion of Boleslaus his great Friend and Familiar, who flying into Hungary, tormented with an evil Conscience for the ills he had done, being become of a good, a very bad man, died there. The Armies joyned in the Confines of Sauromatia, where he vigorously routed the Poles; nor desisted from his pursuit till he had His Successes. Sacked Cracovia the Metropolis of that Nation, when Uladislav the Brother of Boleslaus, besought him Peace, which he obtained upon Condition that Miesco, Boleslaus his Son, should have the Second Dignity.

The Sword being now sheathed, he built his Royal Seat of Varadin by the River Chrysus. This City in our Times was the Chief and principal of the County of Bihor, famous of old for the Sepulture of Kings, and the Sanctity of the place; on the North are Hills planted with fruitful Vines, and watered with ever-running Rivulets; the East aspects the Baths and Medicinal Springs; the other part the plain and the woods encompass. These great things effected, this zealous Religious Captain even to the report of certain miracles wrought at his Grave afterwards, received Ladislaus at Bodrogh, Embassadors from the Kings of invited to England, France, and Spain, desiring his assistance in the Saracen War, which he de- the Holy Land war nied.

nied not, but the Embassie took not its effect, for he died in a new Expedition against Suatopologus of Moravia, leaving by so much, a greater Name, by how much his Successors came behind him in prowesse and martial Atchievements.

Coloman
the tenth
King.

COLOMANNUS, Ladislaus dying without Issue; succeeded his Uncle in the Throne, though otherwise designed by him, for he preferred Almus his younger Nephew Son of Geyza, as abler in body and mind, to Coloman the elder, whom he prædicted for a Bloody man; But the Nobles sending for Coloman out of Poland, whither he had fled (for fear of his Uncles words) Crowned him their King, his Brother Almus being Tituladed with a Dukedome, and invested in a fourth part of the Kingdom. Being thus advanced, as prosperous things do search the mind with sharper pricks, he did not consider himself as a Governour and his People as Citizens, but as an absolute Lord, and they his Slaves and vassals. About the same time Peter the Hermit brought the Crusado into Hungary, when Famine and the Plague throughout Christendome seemed to prevent his most Religious Negotiation. Nevertheless in the Year 1096. Gualterus Sensavir was entertained by him, and passage given him, he paying such a certain rate for his provision, some of whose Souldiers stragling and committing some little spoyle about Belgrade, were seized and most basely and ignominiously

The Cru-
sado brought into Hun-
gary.

miniously handled, which Gualter thought good to dissemble, intent upon his Expedition: Peter the Hermit marching the same way upon the same Conditions, understanding at Malevill, what had happened to his fellows, flew presently to his Arms, and breaking open the Gates of the City, entred and slew 4000. Hungarians; but being pursued by Coloman, to avoyd him, fell into the hands of the Soldan of Nicia, who had an Army of Forty thousand men, and lost more by his rashnesse and incogitance, than ever he could have gained with his greatest moderation.

Nor did Godschalk the Preist fare any better, for entring Hungary upon the former terms, his Souldiers from the affluence of provisions began to riot, & forgetting the Lawes of Hospitality, to abuse their Entertainers. To repress this Insolence, Coloman made after them to Belgrade with a great Army, where ensued a Battel, but with such equal Fortune, that Coloman having recourse to Policy, prevailed upon them under pretences of civility and reconciliation, (desiring onely the Plunderers to be punished) that they confiding in his words disarmed themselves, and were instantly when they no way suspected such usage, horribly destroyed, not one of them being left alive to carry the news of this Massacre. The Rear of those Forces arriving at Meersburgh a place encamped with the Danow, Lynx, and Morasses; and ignorant of what had happned to their fellowes

Peter the Hermit's overthrow

Godsealks like Fortune by Coloman

fellowes, and knowing the agreement made for their passage, did wonder to see the Straights shut to them, which, the King dreading the punishment of his perfidy had so commanded; whereupon after a vain message to Coloman, they besieged Meersburgh, slew 700. of the Hungarians; but just as the Town was brought to the utmost Extremity, a Panick-fear seized on them, whereafter ensued a great slaughter of them, the rest saved themselves by flight.

Godfrey
of Bollign
his safe passage through
Hungary.

But Godfrey of Bollign anxious of the losse of those Legions, succeeded better; for having debated the businesse and received an account of the late slaughter by Godfrey of Afcha, he easily perswaded the Hungarians to consent to another passage, at an interview between them, to such a firm understanding, that Coloman while yet Godfrey was at the said Malevill on the Banks of Saxus having furnished him also with all manner of Provisions, delivered to him his Brother Baldwin, whom he had left as Hostage for the performance of the Agreement; though Benfius reports that the Duke having taken Zemlin, opened his way by the Sword, and compelled Coloman being too weak to oppose him, to consent at last to Passage through his Dominions. There followed this Feud a Quarrel between Coloman and his Brother Almus. One part of the Kingdom adhered to the King, the other to Almus; both Armies met at the River Tybiscus by a Town

Town called Varkon, where a Truce being concluded on, it was further proposed, that the two Princes, to save the lives of others, should determine their own Quarrel by Duel, a Custome then much in use in that Warlike Nation, which Coloman refusing, the difference was for a while respited and both parties laid down Armes, which presently were employed against the Russes, but with ill Success; He makes Peace thereupon with the Venetians, and in the mean time debaucheth the Fidelity of the Fadrenses their Subjects, whom to reduce, Ordephalus was Commissioned, who recovered Fadra with a bloody slaughter, and advanced his Successful Armes as far as Croatia, but was at last by Coloman, assisted by the Styrians in the saccage of the Coast of Dalmatia, engaged and overcome; and so all the places returned with Fadra again to his obedience.

Hungary was now again divided by the Feud betwixt the Brethren: Almus twice suspected, and twice assisted by Forrainers, was once more restored by the Armes of Hen. 5. Emp. but such was the arrogance of Colomans fortune that seizing upon him, he caused his, and his Son Bela's Eyes to be put out, without any tryal or compearance afore Judges; whence several grudges and Conspiracies of the Nobles & secret seditious practises were occasioned & fomented against him; the effect whereof he prevented by sudden Death, which happened

Stephen
the 10th.
King.

ed in the twenty fifth year of his Raigh.

STEPHEN, for his Sanguinous nature, as delighted in often seeing the punishments of the Condemned) by his Father Nick-named Thunder, was therefore placed under the Government and Tuition of the most Eminent Persons for Nobility and Vertue, under whom what he gained in Fame and Estimation, so freed from them, he lost it as fast; notwithstanding the first and longest part of his Raigh was very prosperous. His first Enterprize was against the Russes, to restore Jarislans to that Government, who fearing his Uncle Uladomir's designs against him, had fled into Poland; but he dying, the war ended as soon as it was begun; The next Expedition was against the Bohemians, where worsted at the first Encounter, he recruited his Army and overthrew them. Thrice he turned his Arms upon Bulgaria, Macedonia, and Greece; and taking Belgrade razed Zengminum; afterwards he fought with various successes against Calo Johannes Emperour of Constantinople, but finally had the better of it, forcing him to sneak home by by wayes from his progression as far as Ister, and that not without a signal defeat given him in his retreat, at a Town called Mala Scala: though Bonfinius reports Stephen to have been beaten at the River of Carassus, and to have besought his peace.

Calo Johannes
defeated.

A Polish War ensued this in favour of the Russes against another Jarislans Duke of Halicia, licia, whom Boleslaus King of Poland had resettled in his Estate, wherein the Pole, otherwise a very Fortunate Prince, was Defeated by a Stratagem of Stephens, joyning himself to the Rear of the Polish Army upon pretence of Friendship. And so when he had wearied his Cruelty abroad, he began to exercise it at home, vailing his sloth with severity, murdering his Nobles, and ravishing their Ladies: but in the twenty second year of his Raign, troubled Stephen in Conscience with the flagitiousnesse of his Facts, he put himself into a Monastery; though others write he onely designed such a retirement. ^{puts himself into a Monastery, and resigns}

B E L A, his Cousin German, who had his Eyes put out as before, and flying was entertained at Constantinople (which was the cause of the Quarrel between Stephen and Calo Johannes) was by the wonderful inconstance of Fortune called to a Crown, from his banishment; he had gained to his Wife, Helena Daughter of Urus Count of Angusta, by whom he had four Sons, Geysa, Ladislaus, Stephen, and Almus: His adverse Condition had so sweetned his Felicity to him, that he wholly intended his Repose, wherein he gave many signs of great abstinence and Equity, notwithstanding he was not altogether faultlesse, for at an Assembly or Convention of the Estates at Arad, though he seemed to be averse to any Execution, yet he so wrought upon the affections of others, that most cruel punish-

The History of

*Borichus
the Bastard Son of Co-loman so-litted to invade the Government.*

punishments were inflicted on the Authours of his Fathers occæcation. Hereupon the Sons of the oppressed solicite Borichus, the Bastard Son of Coloman, to assume the Government, who with the assistance of some Poles and Russes, came as far as Sajus, a River dividing both the Armies, where by the Discovery of the Extraction of Borichus, the Poles deserted him, who was constrained to fly for his Protection to Emanuel; Bela freed from this danger, by advice of his Courtiers, took away the lives of two of the Cheifest Noblemen of his Kingdome; and being given to drunkenesse, in which he was full of promises, soon after dyed.

*Geysa the
12. King.*

GEYSA presently took upon him the Kingdome, and managed his first Armes for the good of his Subjects: for Henry Duke of Austria, aided by the Saxons and Stirians, to whom were added the Forces of the Emperour Conrade, by the means and endeavour of Count Julian took Presburg: All their Power he very gallantly first sustained, and then overcame in the desperation of the Event, killing Seven thousand of the Germans, and taking their Camp and Baggage. His next War was for his Confederates, for Lodomirus aided by the Cumani, attempted to dethrone Minoslans, whose Sister Geysa had married; whom though with great losse by the Russes and the Cumani, he reinstated. The Dalmatian War attended this, one in name but many many in the atrocity and fortune of the War; Manuel the Eastern Emperor invaded Dalmatia as his Dominion, took the Castle of Rafus, and laid waste the circumjacent Country, and upon the news of the advance of the Hungarians, came as far as the River Drina, which parts Bosnia and Servia, and devasted both the Provinces, and in a set Feild overcame the joynt Forces of the Confederates, who encouraged by fresh and choyce supplies, with the additions of the Bessi, by the Valour and presence of the Emperour, were foyled again, and the Despot (or as the Language terms him) the Archi-Zupan of the Country, was forced to submit to a Tribute, which Successe emboldned Manuel to a further attempt upon part of Hungary, where he re-took Zeugminum repired, after a most gallant resistance, and Captivated a great number of the People, while Geysa was waging War with the Russians.

Manuel
the Greek Emperor's Exploits.

For Lodomir renewing his Designs against Minoslans, was ripe for the Revenge of Geysa, when this diversion brought the Hungarians back upon John Cantacuzenas, whom they Furiously and desperately set upon and overcame; but another Army being dispatched by Manuel (retreating) under the Command of Boricza, dis-peopled a great Tract of ground, and slew three Brigades of Hungarians. This quarrel continued between them upon punctilio of Revenge, and maintainance of acquitt, after

The Holy War resumed.

Stephen
the 13th.
King.

three several Treaties concluded and violated, till Andronicus Duke of Nassa and Braniczobe, by treaty yeilded him those places, whereafter followed many bickerings, concluded in a League. The Holy War was now recommenced by Conrade, and continued by Lewis of France, both of which passed through Hungary, but by the perfidiousnesse of Manuel suffered exceedingly. In whose Camp Borichus the Bastard, concealing himself, was taken and killed: Geysa Died soon after in the Year 1160. and in the 20th. of his Raign.

STEPHEN the Eldest Son of Geysa possessed a peaceful Scepter, which he indulged the rather for his Subjects sake, and to conciliate the wavering affections of the Kingdom. His first Effort was against Pope Adrian, quarrelling about the Churches and Bishopricks of Istria and Liburnia. In this War Manuel assisted him, which sorted not very luckily by reason of the Hungarians intestine Divisions; for the Uncles of Stephen insinuating themselves into Manuel's favour, Ladislaus the elder Uncle, by sundry artifices and collusions with that Emperour possessed himself of the Throne, vouchsafeing Stephen the Title of a Dukedome who wisely absenting himself, the common Fate of Usurpation befel Ladislaus, & restor'd Stephen again, after 5 months unjust detainer from the Regality, by Ladislaus and not much longer; after Stephen his second Uncle, substituted to his Brother by the same Faction Faction, when the People weary of them both, willingly received their Exile King.

But this was not done without much damage and danger to the Kingdome by the Armes and Designs of Manuel, who now pretended to Hungary, so that after many Conflicts and Depopulations, Stephen was Invested in Syrmia, without any Claim to be made by him to Hungary, which Articles being broken on Stephen, the Uncles part, and he afresh invading the Dominions of his Nephew, assisted again by the said Emperour, was wholly outed of his Principality, as his Confederate Manuel from his part of Dalmatia. The Uncle Survived not long, being poysoned by one of his Complices, who feared the Revenge of their practises & conspiracy against their Sovereign.

Stephen being therefore fully Established, the Peace was Confirmed at home, but disquieted instantly from abroad; for Manuel the Emperour with the old pretence of assisting Stephen, Arrived at the Banks of Ister, and from Belgrade marched to the Seige of Zeugminum which at last was yeilded to him, and with that also Dalmatia and Syrmia, assigned by the Agreement for the Inheritance of Bela his youngest Uncle, who had Married a Kinswoman of the Emperours. But neither this dured long, for Stephen impatient of this Bargain sent an Army under Dionysius, to revenge the injury, who was prosperous in one Encounter, but was fatally defeated in the next by the Emperour.

BELA

Bela the
14 King.

BELA by the Decease of Stephen possessed himself of the Kingdom, which by his allyance with the Greek Emperour was composed and secured; In his person Dalmatia and Syrmia, were united to the Crown of Hungary, and made members thereof as of the same body. His Converse in Greece made him most excellent in the Arts of Government, he first divided the Kingdome into Provinces, Cities, and Boroughs, and made that institution in reverence of Royal Dignity, that complaints should not be obtruded orally to them, but by way of humble Supplication and Petition. He warred with Casimirus King of Poland, upon a quarrel supported by both of them, in reference to the Dutchy of Halicia, but being but an auxiliary feud it was soon ended: As he did compose those affairs of his Son in Law Isaac Angelus, the Constantinopolitan Emperour, a weak yet Sacrilegious person. He reigned 17. years, and left a most flourishing Kingdome to his Son Emerick.

Emerick
the 15. K.

EMERICK was wholly indisposed to War, which the rather persued him; for the Venetians vex'd at, and disdaining the losse of Dalmatia, making use of the Land forces of Baldwin Earl of Flanders, and Boniface Marquis of Montferrat, passing for the Holy Land in their shipping, as Leagued with them in the expedition, (notwithstanding the Thunderbolt of Pope Innocents Excommunication at the instance of Stephen, who would have transferred ferred the War to its proper place) took Jadra and reduced all the Maritime part of Dalmatia.

But Emerick was more fortunate at home, having defeated a Conspiracy made against him by Andrew and most of the Nobility by a most innocent but Majestick device, coming of a sudden into their armed Company, with the Crown on his head, which the Hungarians do naturally reverence, whereupon they all sheathed their Swords and craved pardon, and were most magnificently and freely remitted. He deceased in the eighth year of his Reign, and was succeeded by Ladislav the Third, who applying himself to the Reformation of the Government, and the Lawes, unhappily dyed in the 6 month after his Inauguration.

ANDREW the second, for his vertue, Andrew the 16 K. was next advanced to the Regal Dignity. He sadly affected with the discomfitures of the Christians, went himself Generalissimo into the Holy Land, and passing into Asia overthrew the Sultan Abubeker, surnamed Seyfeddine, and the Successor of Saladine. He took also Damietta, and forced the Sultan to retreat, to Caire, where he breathed out his unhappy Soul: Nor was it doubted but that his victories would entitle him to the Holy Land the Christians being both in the field, and in the Siege far superiour, until the Nile overcame them; for the Sultan breaking down the banks on both sides, the River swelling to its usual height, overflow-

His Expedition into
the Holy
Land.

overflowed into their Camp, whereupon pressed with hunger, also & overwhelm'd with misery, they capitulated for their permission of departure, with the surrender of Damiata; Andrew bringing thence instead of Victory the heads of St. Stephen and Margaret, the right hands of Benedict, Thomas, Bartholomew, part of the rod of Aaron, and one of the Water-pots wherein Christ wrought his miracle of Wine. These things the Hungarian Writers with intrusive Piety mainly defend. Others say that he passed no further then Jordan, and having washt himself thrice therein, as accounting himself disobliged from his vow, returned home.

His Justice was very remarkable, in that he justified Bancbanus (his Deputy in his absence) who had slain his Queen, for that she had prostituted his Wife to her vicious Brother, who came to visit her. He forgave the Venetian injuries, made excellent Lawes, and vested a negative power in the Nobles, to what should be enacted without their Consent; By Gertrude he had three Sons, Bela, Coloman, and Andrew, and Elizabeth his Daughter, not to be passed, for her eminent Piety, without honourable mention, she was married to the Landgrave of Hesse, who dying in the Holy Land, she betook her self to a Monastery, and was five years after her death canonized by Pope Gregory the Ninth, at which Consecration was present at Marpurg, Frederick the Emperour with with divers other Princes, vwith a Conflux of 12 hundred thousand persons.

BELA the 4th. of that name was saluted King, while his Brother Coloman having expelled Daniel seized the Government of Halicia and Lodomiria, himself being wholly addicted to Peace and quiet, but herein fortune failed him, for the Tartars, (whose original described something largely by my Author, but not to our present purpose we must here omit) with whom joyned the Cumani expelled by the same Tartars from their seats and habitations in 1238. (by humble intreaties and profession of Christian Religion, after they had been denyed entrance or entertainment in Russia) having been admitted into Hungary by the Kings single consent, proved the first part of the ruine of that Kingdome: for the Hungarians offended with their peremptory carriage and finding little redresse at Court, fell upon them of a sudden and killed their King Kuthenes, who being thus provok'd, kill slay and burn whatever they came near, and at last joyned themselves to the Tartars, whose Invasion being rumoured before, was imputed to some design of the Kings, to keep the Hungarians in peace with the Cumani.

*Bela the
17. King.*

Now whilest Peta one of the Tartarian Generalls ravaged Poland, Moravia, and Silesia, as Cador another of their Captains did Russia, the Emperour Bathuy Chan overthrew the Palatine of Hungary deserted of his people at Russe-Port, and utterly crushed the Arch-Bishop

*The Tar-
tars Invade
Hungary.*

Bishop of Colozza in a moorish ground, and laid wast all the Countrey as far as Vacia, and passing further totally defeated and vanquished Bela, striving in vain with the discords, negligence and hatred of his Subjects.

The Tar-
tars ravage
the Country

Nothing remained to him in all Hungary, but Alba Regalis, Strigonium and the Monastery of St. Martins, nor was the multitude of the slain by weapons, smoak and clouds raised by Magick Art to be computed: Three years the Tartars continued this ruine, searching in the Woods and Caves for the miserable Inhabitants, others with feigned letters they allured from their hiding places, all which they slew, so that the stench of the dead Carcasses caused a Plague and mortality, as a Famine was occasioned by the devastation of the Countrey.

By which means the Tartars were forced to abandon that Kingdome, carrying away with them an innumerable Company into intollerable slavery. The Pope endeavoured to Christianize this savage Nation, and Bathuy Chan did grant a Truce and Protection to the Monks, as Mango was converted, yet the other Leaders seeing the vices of the Christians chose rather the Mahometan Infidelity. The Tartars thus departed, Bela by the aid of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem who from the Faction of Rome had retired themselves into Illyria, where he had weathered this storm, & others of the Crusado, who were frequent in those parts of Croatia and Dalmatia, and the like assistance of the Frangipans received again his desolate Kingdome, with his four Sons whom he had deposited in the Fortresse of Cliffa.
of

But no sooner was he seated, then a just occasion led him against Frederick the Emperour, who under pretence of sheltring him, had rob'd him of his Treasure, but expiated that fraud by a just force which vanquished him at Nova a City of Austria whereby Bela gained all his enemies wealth & began to revive the drooping spirits of the Hungarians; which while he intended by other alleviements, the Bohemian War recalled him, for Primislaus that King the great friend of the Emperour Otho, so that he was called Otho Carus having married the Widow of Frederick attempted the recovery of Styria and Austria, not long possessed. A fierce and cruell Battel was thereupon joyned in Moravia, where the Hungarians inferiour in number and exhausted with the late War, were overthrown and a peace made upon these conditions that the Bohemians should enjoy Austria and the Hungarian stand seized of Styria.

STEPHEN the fifth swayed the Hunga- Stephen rian Scepter, though not long, yet very glori- the 18 K.
ously, for he Revenged his Fathers discomfiture upon Ottocarus, though at first he vvas worsted, afterwards he made an expedition against the Bulgarians, people of the Dacia Au- reliana, (so called, for that Emperors Trans-planting them in Mesia from the new Dacia) &c made made them willing to pay that Tribute which was due to his Predecessors. He reigned but 2 years, leaving Hungary in a thriving condition.

Ladislaus
the 19th.
King.

LADISLAUS the fourth, the Son of Stephen succeeded, and was scarce 3 moneths old in the Government, when a new War succeeded the former, as if Fortune had so ordered it, that the Bohemian having ill used the 2. Kings Bela and Stephens, should satisfie for his Injuries to the third King Ladislaus. Moravia was the Cause of the War, wherein Ottocarus outstretched his bounds very immoderately. It was long consulted hereupon by the Hungarians, how they should counterplot or oppose these encroachments, when the Fates of themselves opened a Way.

The Original
of the House of Austria.

The Princes of the Empire vvhile they soveraigned it themselves vwithout any Chief or Head, were variously opprest with the Factions of the Guelphs and Gibellines, by which means it came to passe that the Name of the Counts of Hapsburg, then obscure, ignote, and unregarded, now exerted it self; and afterwards augmented by riches and power in Germany, and chiefly by the Marriage of Mary of Burgundy, was thereby propagated far and wide, and became formidable to the whole World.

Rudolphus the Major Domo or Mayor of the Palace to Ottocarus, was by the perswasion of Venerus of Ments, declared and appointed Emperour,

Emperour, Ottocarus could not brook a superior, nor Rudolphus endure a peace, Ladislaus is therefore by him adopted and engaged as his Confederate in the War, by which Ottocarus was wholly routed and vanquished; and beaten out of Austria, shut up in the Fiefs of Bohemia and Moravia.

Rudolphus Emperour.

At the same time Lascus Niger the King of Poland, had for protection & assistance addressd himself to Ladislaus, being expelled his Kingdome by Conrade Duke of Massovia, which Ladislaus readily granted, and in his aid forthwith subdued his rebellious Subjects, This war was taken up by the revival of another by Ottocarus, who no way enduring the Dominion of Rudolphus formerly his Servant, stirred up Oldamir the Duke of the Cumani, to invade Hungary the Emperours Confederate, and for the better ligament of their new Friendship, took to Wife that Dukes Daughter Kunigunda, unlawfully repudiating his former Wife Margareta; The Cumani aided by some Tartars, came as far as the Lake of Hood, burning and spoyling all the Country about. Against these Ladislaus fought successively, Ottocarus himself after a total rout being slain in the Battel. Peace thereupon was granted to the Queen of Bohemia, on condition that her Son Wenceslaus should marry the Daughter of Cesar, and to hold Bohemia from the Emperour as his Beneficiary.

But though this last Battel was so prosperously

The Tartars reinvade Hun-
gary.

ly fought, yet was it the Cause of greater Evils, for the Tartars and Cumani that escaped, implored the assistance of their Countrymen, who following their unknown and bloody Tract in the year 1280, broke into Hungary, renewing and carrying the dismal slaughter of the former time as far as the Province of Pesth: whosoever they met with (for the pleasure of the Tyrant) were consumed, others mancipated to perpetual slavery, very many with limbs cut off survived their punishment; such as were left in the High-ways, sometimes by sight, often by their groans and howlings, knew their Wives, Husbands, Children or Parents; by which barbarity the Kingdome was so oppressed, that there were not Cattel enough to draw the Wains, and those the men drew, in contempt of the King, were called Ladislaus Chariots: For he having married the Daughter of Charles King of Sicily, grew so outrageous in his lust, and voyd of all fear and shame, that he stuprated the Wives of the Cumani, and most libidiously vitiated them; the which Cumani (as the friendship of Princes not conciliated by virtue is very temporary) at a large Treatment given him at Keretsegum, there slew him, and put an end to his flagitious Practises.

Andrew
the 20 K.

A N D R E W the third, enjoyed the Kingdome after Ladislaus the Nephew of Andrew the second, by the Daughter of the Marquesse of Este and Son of Stephen. Boniface the eighth, obtruded Charles Robert, a Youth of twelve years years of age, the Great Grandchild of Charles Duke of Anjou, who at the sollicitation of Pope Clement the fourth, after many fruitlesse Wars managed by the Papacy, deprived Manfred the Baltard of Conrade the Emperour, of the Kingdome of Sicilia, and suffered the same Fortune by Peter of Arragon. This Andrew, as he gained the Kingdome by the love and affection of his Subjects, so he maintained it by his own worth and Vertue.

He was in the beginning of his Raign taken Prisoner by Albert of Austria, Adolphus of Nassau then Emperour, and after his enlargement at Vienna, contracted with Agnes the Daughter of the said Albert, which said Contract upon his return was annulled by the States of Hungary, as done in his Restraint, which occasioned a War with various Successes in Austria, until intestine Troubles forced Albert to make Peace, that he might bend his Arms against Adolph, whom he slew, and advanced himself (though not unpunished for his disloyalty) into the Imperial Throne. Andrew in the mean while gently reduced the favourers of Charles and the Pontifical Authority, by which he was invested; but that lenity of his was abused to his Contempt and avilement; for the seditious practises of the same men, brought Charles, Andrew yet living, into Hungary, but the danger rendring King Andrew's Authority more acceptable to his other Subjects, restrained Charles his Advance. In the conclusion of his established in the Government.

Andrew

G

Raign

Raign the Venetians being Excommunicated by the Pope, for the seizure of Ferrara, the Fadrenses revolted to the Hungarians, to reduce whom, Belletus Justinianus was sent with a power; but by the Stratagems of the Vaivod of Dalmatia, was presently repulsed.

Wence-
laus chosen King
by the Nobility.

Andrew Deceasing, the Hungarians being divided among themselves, one part of them acknowledged Charles for King, others blamed the Pope for meddling with a matter no way belonging to him, under pretence of Religion: The Generality therefore being of that opinion; the Arch-Bishop of Colozza, the Bishop of Varadin, and other their Complices, invited Wenceslaus (Son of Wenceslaus the King of Bohemia who refused) to accept and entertain the Crown; wherein the strangeness of Fortune is observable, that the Issue of Ottocarius (so odious to the Hungarians) should now be spontaneously desired of them. But that ardent and sudden affection soon cooling, and Charles his Partisans, with the assistance of Albert of Austria, infesting Moravia with frequent incursions, Wenceslaus the Father mistrusting the levity of the Hungarians, made an Expedition into the Kingdom, where finding his Son near Pesth (who came to meet him with his Crown on his head, richly adorned) he carried him away presently with him, together with his Crown, into Bohemia; giving this reason to the Demands of the Hungarians, that he did it to avoid an imminent storm: hence a Quarrel and hidden

hidden War: for Uladislaus Loctius being removed from the Polonian Scepter, flying to Amadeus or Esme, the Palatine of Hungary, watched an opportunity of recovering his Kingdom from Wenceslaus: whose Government, being too heavy for the Poles, the Palatine levying an Army soon re-settled his Guest, and Wenceslaus shortly after Deceased, so that this was a kind of Interregnum or Vacancy.

Boniface the eighth, yet furiously persisting in Execution of his purpose and designation of Charles, by Nicholas Cardinal of Ostia, with the usual Anathema Excommunicated the Hungarians, who on the contrary declared the Pope guilty of disturbing the Peace, and interdicted his Bishops in the same manner (who at present seemed to acquiesce, awaiting a fitter opportunity the adverse party being too prevalent, for their Revenge) and the rather provoked by this Papal thunder, proceeded to the Election of Otho the third Duke of Bavaria, to the Kingdom, in the Year of Christ 1305. He received the Crown gratis from Wenceslaus for which great sums had been offered by the Hungarians, and was inaugurated at Alba Regalis; and the better to win and insinuate himself into the favour of the Nobles and People, he wore the Crown (which is had as before in the greatest veneration) constantly in his Progresses and publique appearances. Once as he entered Transylvania he lost the Crown, being put up in a Case and tied to his Horse's Saddle,

Charles
named for King, and imposed upon the Hungarians by the Pope.

Otho Duke of Bavaria
chosen K.
by the No-
bility.

Saddle, which was not found till next day, and this was taken for an unlucky Omen of his Expulsion first into Russia, by which people he was for a while again restored, and his last final deprivation by Ladislaus Vaived of the Kingdome, who sided with Charles and the Papal pretences, though he had been one of the advancers of Otho before. By this means much Blood was spilt by those intestine Divisions; the Cardinal Gentilis being sent again with new Curses and Bans against the Adversaries of Charles, which brought innumerable mischiefs both upon Clergy, Nobility, and People, most unnaturally divided one against another.

Charles
the 2^d K. of
Hungary.

These Factions having so long oppressed this Nation, it was unanimously agreed to confer the Supreme Power upon a single person: they chose thereupon in the Feilds of Pesth, Charles the Nephew of Carobus Claudius King of Sicily, by Mary the Daughter of Stephen the fourth, and Son of Charles Martell; in whom the Discords and Feuds of the Nobility were by his Vertues reconciled. He was encircled in the presence of his Father, with that Crown which Ladislaus had surrendered. His first Exploit and Enterprize was against Matthew Trincsinensis, who had refused Allegiance, whom he overcame in a bloody Battel at Cassovia, but with great hazzard and dubious Event; his numerous Troops of Horse, among whom was a veterane tryed Band of the Knights Knights of the Order of St. John, turning their backs to a Brigade of 1700 Curassiers. Nor did the Conspiracy cease here, for a bloody and nefarious Design was laid at Visigrađe, where Felicianus Sakanus a special Servant of the Kings with a drawn Sword, struck at him, who inclining his body, the blow cut off the Fingers of the Queen; nor had the King escaped, had not the Souldiers of the Guard freed him (being mounted) from imminent Death. The Assassinate for terrour, was quartered, and his four quarters sent as a spectacle, through the Kingdome, and his Family and Posterity utterly extinguished.

Intending now an Expedition against the Sarazens, a revolt of the Valachians withheld him, he advanced therefore against Bozaradine the Vayvod thereof, and Compelled him with the Expence of the War, to pay the yearly Tribute; but returning he was set upon by that perfidious Nation in the abrupt and least passable places, and Defeated, he himself changing his Habit for his easier Escape. Others say he undertook this War upon no ground, and therefore they ascribe the Event to his wickedness; Burying the Noble memorable Acts of this The Virines man in this Overthrow, who was so Potent and of Charles Prudent a Prince, that most of the Kings of his Time were by his Force or Prudence obliged to him. He had to his Wives, Mary the Daughter of Casimir Duke of Poland; Beatrice Daughter of the Emperour, and Elizabeth the Daughter

Daughter of Wladislaus of Poland; by the last he had Issue Charles, who died at the years, as Ladislaus at four months, end. His surviving Son Andrew had Apulia; Lewis, Hungaria for his Patrimony. Under this Charles the Realm recovered its former Puissance, for he Ruled over Rama, Servia, Gallicia, Salerna, Lodmiria, Cumania, and Naples; far Famed, had he not begotten his Son Lewis, although that also, be attributed to his Glory,

The

The Third B O O K.

LEWIS not inferiour to so great a Father, Lewis the 22. King. and skilled in martial Affairs, exercised his first Arms against the insolence of the Valachians and Servians, who contemning his youth recoyled from the obedience they owed and performed to his Father, but were reduced to the same Conditions. Those being subjugated he solemnly dismiss'd his mother, whose Sanctity had procured her a veneration even unto Superstition, to Apulia, and thence to Rome, requesting of his brother Andrew the Loane of 44 thousand Marks of gold, (as the Covetousnesse of the Times then required) for the price of his Confirmation in the Kingdom of Naples:
 which Affair concluded, he aided his adoptive Father Casimir (who before had designed Charls his Natural Son, but he survived not long after) against John of Bohemia and the Lithuanians, whom he attempted to force to the belief of the Christian Religion, but found the difference betwixt Words and Swords.
 The Bohemian advanced as far as Cracovia, he again expelled out of that Dominion, from whence he was not yet retired, but the Tartars made another invasion into Hungary, but neverthelesse

The Tartars
beaten and expelled out of
Hungary.

verthelesse were so well received by Andrew the Vaivod, Son of Ladislaus aforesaid, (who avoiding their Arrowes, came to handy blows with them, and the dint of Sword) that they were utterly overthrown, and their General Atlanus taken prisoner, and the name of the Tartar after this defeat not heard of in Hungary for many years.

The History
of Joan the adulter-ous Qu. of Naples.

With the same fortune he prevailed against the Croats, in which expedition he was personally present, accompanied with Stephen Neman Prince of Bosnia, whose Daughter he had married, for while as yet he stayed in the Confines of Croatia, they submitted themselves, and took the Oath of Fidelity and Allegiance: but the Venetian War was bloody, who in spight of Lewis, reduced Schodra to their subjection, after he had lost many men in the attempt of relieving it. While these things were doing; Joan the Wife of Andrew new-invested in Apulia, for the love and lust of her Adulterer the Prince of Tarentum, designed to transfer that Kingdom with her self to his Embraces, by the death of her husband, whom she hung with a filken halter. This Fact obliged Lewis to a just revenge, which to prosecute (having in vain received Letters from Joan in Excuse thereof. and by his answer declared her guilty of that and other precedent and subsequent Crimes) he marched into Italy, where he was assisted by Phillip of Mantua, Malatesta of Ariminum, and other Princes, whose Governments by the sloth of Charles

Charles the Emperour were become absolute Tyrannies.

By these Arms he drove Lewis Prince of Tarente the Adulterer, and Joane his Wife out of Italy, to Marseilles and Avignon, and possessed himself of all the Dominion of Apulia, on that side the Sea, & taking the Duke of Dyrrachium beheaded him by the common Executioner, as he sent the brothers of the said Lewis (with the Son of Andrew as his Ward) bound in Chains into Hungary, whether, the Pest raging in Italy and depopulating many places, and whole Provinces, he soon after followed, and placed Stephen Laskus his Vaivod in Transylvania. Lewis success against her.

But the Neapolitans rebelling, as not enduring a forraign Government, the Hungarians left in that Kingdome, twice defeated them, once by a Salley made by Stephen the Governour of Naples, whom they had blocked up, and the next time by Volphordus in plain Battel, though he lost his life as the price of the victory; when Joane having solicited and obtained new Supplies, at the instances of the Pope, to whom as a Gratuity she consigned Avignon, and to whose Arbitrement she submitted her Cause, attempted again the recovery of the Kingdome, whereupon Lewis returning with wonderful fortune, took Barletum, Carnesium, where his life was neer endangered, Luceria and Salernum, (with most of all the Towns) and placing Garrisons therein in the year Avignon how invested in the Pope.

year of Jubile came to Rome. The Papal seat was then at Avignon, wherefore the Prefect of Rome, Nicolaus Rentius, a man of eminent worth and virtue, meeting the King with the Estates of the City, proffered him the absolute supreme power thereof, but he refusing, it was tendred to Charles the fourth, out of fear of Clement the Pope, to whom, Charles being of an abject spirit, delivered the said Rentius Captive.

Lewis's
successe against the Venetians

Joan in the mean while never left urging of Clement to take her part, promising great advantages to satisfie his Covetousnesse, if he would effect her Restitution, which in fine, by much intreaty to Lewis, who was religiously given, and could not be wrought upon any other way, was obtained at his hands. The Venetians fell by his next Arms, for Lewis confederated with Leopold of Austria, and the Croatians invaded the Maritime part of Dalmatia, in two inroads by Friuli and Istria, Tarvisia frustrated his Conquest, but Spalatra, and other places opened their gates to the experience and Courage of his veterane Army, securing and confirming some places, and reducing others, among whom were the inconstant Schadrans. The Total of this expedition amounted to the Acquists of that part of the Venetian Territory which extends it self from the Bay of Phanaticia, to Dyrrachium, and all Dalmatia, in lieu of those places taken in this War which by an agreement he surrendered.

But

But this agreement lasted not long, both parties taxing each other, as the manner is, for the breach of it, though the fault was in the Venetians, who engaging Charles the Emperour, invaded the Dalmatians and Croats, put by this Treaty under the protection of Lewis; These Invaders were encountred first successfully by Paul, the Son of Ladislaus the Vaivod, but unprosperously by Stephen of Transylvania, whose rashness and fury overthrew him, and made him a Prisoner to the Victor. Thereafter many were the vicissitudes of fortune. Lewis by this Defeat, was perswaded by the Croats to a two years truce, which expired, Leopold growing insolent, was beaten by the Venetians and recruiting himself for another Encounter, The Geno- was induced by Lewis to another two years etc and Cessation, but he having underhand held in- Venetian telligence with the Genoese, privily prepared Quarrel, for a War, by the dread whereof the Venetians with Restitution of what they had got, were glad to descend and Consent to a Peace.

The Genoese nevertheless proceeding in their Enterprize, reduced the Venetians under the Conduct of Peter Auria to Extremity, but themselves afterwards puffed up with success, were subjected to the wheel of Fortune by the invention of Guns, an Engine found out then by Bertholdus Niger; in fine, Lewis by Land, Invention of Guns. and the Genoese by Sea, besieged and took Clo- dia, when all parties wearied with the many miseries of the War, referred themselves to the ar-

arbitrement of the Duke of Savoy, who first of all ordered the razing of the Castle of Tened, as the occasion and continual forment of the quarrel, awarding also the Decennial payment of 7 thousand Crowns, by the Venetians to Lewis, who content with the glory of his Actions, and this incompetent sum in respect of his Expences, ceased the War.

While these things were acting in Venice, Pope Urban excited Lewis against Joane, because she took part with Clement the seventh the Antipope, who forthwith dispatcht away Charles his Son (as some say) others his Nephew by Andrew, who with 8000 men passed into Italy, and was welcomed there with the Acclamations of Victory. He subdued several Towns, and mulcted the Florentines in the sum of 40. thousand Crowns. At Rome, he was adorned with all the Regal Habiliments; Joane placing her sole hope in the Duke of Anjou. She had intermarried for her fourth husband, Otho of Brundisium, the Tarentine during in Custody, and the King of Sardinia her next husband dead in Spain. Otho though he took part with Urban against the inclination of Joane, yet vvas constant to her against the Hungarians, vvho took in several other Towns. Charles being arrived and introduced into Naples, besieged Joan, vvho had shut up her self in Castel Novo. Otho comes and besieges the City and the Besiegers, till Charles sallying out, he vvas after a gallant opposition by reason of a fall off his Horse taken Prisoner, and Joane hereupon despairing of any relief forced to surrender.

Joane taken in Castel Novo in Naples.

But Lewis of Anjou, Uncle and Regent of Charles the sixth of France, whom Clement Lewis of Anjou invested in Naples. had invested and feoffed in the Realms of Apulia and Sicilia (as purchased from Joane) with 30 thousand Horse (the number of the Foot uncertain) passed into Italy, whom Charles inferiour in Strength, so baffled with delayes, that his great numbers proving burdensome to him, and Lewis dying thereupon, either by disease or poyson, the Frenchmen two or three in Company were glad to beg their way and departure home.

Lewis in his return out of Italy to Hungary, enterprized by Nicholas the Palatine upon Bosnia, which had revolted from him, but he wearied out with the Siege of Sebenico, was easily overcome. Better Fortune attended him in his Expedition against Stratomirius, the Prince of the Bulgarians, who vanquished was taken Captive at Gemleick, but soon after by the good will of the King, and the liking of the Kingdome restored to his Principality.

The Family of the Piasti failing in Casimir, Lewis cho- Lewis was now crowned King of Poland, the sen King of first of foraign Princes that was chosen by Poland. them: the Administration of this Government he committed to his mother Elizabeth, the Customary delights of his native Countrey inviting his return. Nor did she continue long there there, having by her levity and flexibility gained the love of some, but not the reverence of all persons; wearied therefore with new Commotions, she departed rather frightened then feared into Hungary, but preferring the privilege of absoluteness before the humours of another, she was soon induced to retire back again.

In the mean while the Nobles of the greater Polonia created Uladislans the Duke of Cusavia, of a Monk, to their King, whom Sabinus though chief of the same Counsel and Combination with other of the Nobility on the part of Lewis overcame, and sent him Captive to Lewis, who by his extraordinary Clemency, in which he was not superable, gave him an Abby as satisfied in having reduced him to his former Condition; the same Fate pursued the Rebellious Russes, who were now annexed to the Crown of Hungary, and several Lords or Vai-vods set over them. Hence Jealousies and suspicions, and ill rumours among the Polanders, which Uladislans Prince of Oppelen late Governor of white Russia fomented; the reason of the Kings erecting this new Authority, was partly his propensity to his own blood & kindred, and partly because he believed that that Country under the name of Hallicia and Lodomiria did belong to Hungary.

This indisposition of Affairs, and the weariness of those frequent journeys the King made into Poland, who loved his ease and was de-delighted with Home, caused him to appoint a Triumvirate of Polonian Noble men to the Administration of that Kingdom. He himself intending the Chastisement of the Vayvod of Valachia who had Revolted from him, received an overthrow by his Lieutenant Ladislaus of Transylvania, being shamefully beaten between the Rocks and abruptnesses of Novigrade, which loss he repaid to effect; meeting the same Enemy secure by reason of their late Victory in the Plains of Bulgaria, & making them thereby to submit to their former Tribute. About this Time the Cumani Received the Christian Faith, and Lewis upon the same Religious account marched against the Lithuanians (who depredated Russia) and restrained, and upon their Submission pardoned them, and restored to them their Duke.

His Exploits against his Rebels.

Lewis had Daughters Catharina, Mary, and Hedwiga; Catharine died young, Mary with the Succession to the Crown, was Married to Sigismund, whose Father was Charls the 4th Emperour; Hedwiga by the Consent of the Nobles of Poland was chosen Queen thereof, whom Jagello Great Duke of Lithuania afterwards Married, and converted his Kingdom to Christianity, and by the Name of Uladislaus was worthily Registered among the Kings of Polonia.

LEWIS died at Tyrnaw, to the great loss His Death and detriment of Hungaria, a man of a Courageous and courteous mind, bountiful to Learned ed men, and very skilful in Astrology, for which he was stiled Ordongos Lajos by his People. He used in Disguises to visit the Towns and places neer his Residence, inquiring into the lives and manners of his Magistrates and himself, by which he might better correct what was amisse, and if report pleased him enjoy the Happinesse and Felicity thereof.

Mary the second Daughter of Lewis (her Sister Hedwiga being Married to the King of Poland and settled there, by which means a strict League and union was begun between both Nations) was saluted with the Title of King of Hungaria; she was betrothed to Sigismund of Brandenburg, but their minority hindred the present consummation of the Match. She Governed happily by the prudence of her ministers, and the beloved memory of her Father, but as soon as she entrusted the whole menage of the State into the hands of Nicholas Gara the then Palatine (who by his insolence, was unferable to the Nobles) a Civil dissention, inflamed by the envy and hatred against him, arose in the Kingdome, the secret Design whereof was, the deposition of her from the Throne.

Some of the Grandees thereupon consulted to call in Charles Surnamed the Little Son, or as others, Nephew of Lewis (who had relieved and afterwards distressed Pope Urban) and was now gloriously invested in the Kingdom of Naples (out of Italy,) delegating to him upon this Errand, the Bishop of Zagrabia, bia, who effected the businesse notwithstanding the dissuasion of Charles his Wife. His passage into Hungary, was by the way of Sipontus and Zagrabia, where unexpectedly Arrived, he pretended for his rapinous seizure of the Scepter, the Composure of those Tumults and Factions in the State.

This caused Sigismund (whom his Father in his Life time had sent into Hungary to be educated and fashioned according to the Hungarian manners) to fly into Bohemia, while Charles being honourably received every where, surprized the Castle of Buda, and in presence of the Queen and her Grandmother (who wisely tempered and dissembled their resentments) caused himself to be Crowned at Alba Regalis; and not long after, was so inveigled and blinded by his Parasites (with whom he most delighted) that he could not foresee the danger of his unjust Usurpation. For the Generality and the Nobles being estranged in their affections, Elizabeth the Queen-mother, and the above-named Palatine, under Colour of a private Conference at the House of Blasius Forgatz, there by a private hand Assassinated him, upon the rumour whereof, the Italians that came with him, Covenanting for their safety, obtained a dismissal into their own Countrey. Charles assassinated

The Queens were now in hopes of a plenary Restitution, when the Banus or Prince of Croatia took upon him the Revenge of Charles his Death, assisted therein by some of his Favour-

H

ers

ers, by whom Elizabeth was Drowned in the River of Brusula, and Mary with somewhat better fortune preserved in Custody; The Palatine and Forgatz were both cruelly slain. Sigismund having notice of Charles his Fate, and sensible likewise of the danger the Queens were in, levied a great Army, for the Expence whereof he pawned the Marquisate of Brandenburg to Jodocus and Procopius, his Cousin Germans.

Sigismund His Fortune in this Expedition was answer-Husband able to his strength; for intent against the Cro- of Mary atian, (who frightened with the danger had Artiundertakes cled for his Indempnity with Mary, whom and effects he had set at liberty) he possessed himself of her Resti- that Countrey with Bosnia, and at Quinque tution. Ecclesia, put him to Death with thirty of his partakers and Conspirators against the Queens.
 The Bishop of Zagrabia, in respect to his quality, had his goods onely Confiscated. Thus Charles expiated his prodigious Lust by the Queens, as the Queens for the ungovernance and breach of Faith by the Banus, and he for his Cruelty by Sigismund, whom Hungary now acknowledged as their new and rightful Sovereign, as the Kingdome of Naples did Lewis the Son of Charles.

Sigismund Sigismund maintaining his Kingdome by the his Noble same Prudence with which he recovered it, Exploits. made an Expedition against the Valachians and Moldavians, and slew their Vaivod, Stephen; and annexed them by Oath of Subjection to the Crown

Crown of Hungary. But War ceased not here, for Alexander indeavoured to restore the Valachians to their Liberty; and being too weak and inferiour in force, called in the Turks to his assistance; whom also Sigismund put to a most shameful flight, and pursuing them as far as Thrace, took in Nicopolis. But the Death of Mary sowerd the sweetnesse of this Victory; for Uladislaus of Poland now pretended a Right to the Kingdome, by vertue of the Agreement made betwixt Mary and his Wife Hedwiga. Mary dies, the Title to the Succession disputed.

But John Canysa the Arch-Bishop of Strigoniun, possessing the abrupt passages and difficulties of the Mountains, kept out Uladislaus, though the Turks, far more dangerous, could not be repressed. Their Design was the recovery of Nicopolis, in order whereunto they laid waste the adjoyning Dominions of Hungary, (whither their Arms in the minority of their Empire had not yet reached) but Bajazet the fourth King, having vanquished Mark the Prince of Bulgaria and Lazarus the Despot of Servia, as on the Asian side he had Conquered the Kindome of Armenia; thereafter infested Phocis and Theffaly, and now threatned with the Siege of Nicopolis, a further progresse of his Victories. Bajazet's great Successes.

To avert this storm, Sigismund dealt with him by Ambassadors, but words not availing, he prepared with force to Encounter this Enemy, levying to that end a very select Army of Hungarians, Germans, and French, resolving to crush and suppress the rising greatness of the Turk, before he grew too potent with so many additions, which his successful Scymitar had annexed to his first mean and inconsiderable Patrimony. In this Expedition he was accompanied with John the Hardy, Son of Philip Duke of Burgundy, who joyntly retook in many Towns seized by the Turks in Bulgaria, and in one great Battel carried away the Victory, when the French-men according to the light humour of their Nation, were so dissolved by Lust and Luxury, and became so arrogant withal, that they boasted they could sustain and support the falling Heaven with their Spears.

Bajazet having failed of his design upon Constantinople, and risen from the Seige thereof, was now in person before Nicopolis, whither Sigismund being also come, he put his Army into Battalia, giving the Van to his Hungarians, as best skilled in the Turkish manner of fighting, and placing the French as his Rear-guard; who taking this for a disgrace, before Sigismund had opened his Battel, fell furiously upon the Turk, whose Arrowes so galled and terrified their Horses, that their Riders being forced to alight, they ran foul upon the Hungarians, who misgiving this for a rout; fell into a present dismay, & thence to flight, wherein numbers of them perished in the Danow, John of Burgundy with abundance of other Nobles, was taken Prisoner and was ransomed with the sum of

The Battle
of Nicopolis most fatal to the Christians.

of 200 thousand Crowns. Sigismund doubtful of his life in a light Galley escaped to Constantinople, whence by Rhodes, and so to Dalmatia, and by the help of the Archbishop of Strigonium, he recovered his Kingdome. Bajazet fortunated with this Victory, not long after became far more miserable then the vanquished, (so deceitful is the greatest assurance of humane things) being overcome by Tamerlane (by my Author called Temir) the great Cham of Tartary, and enclosed in an Iron Cage, made his Footstool when he took Horse, and wherein betwixt rage and impatient indignation he brained himself against the Grates.

*Bajazet
a sad Spectacle of humane Frailty.*

The misfortune of this Field, opened a way to the revenge of those persons who were related to the 30. Noblemen, put to death by him at Quinque Ecclesia, for by a potent Conspiracy, in which Ladislaus the King of Poland was concerned (by their invitation of him to assume the Scepter) Sigismund was seized on a sudden, and put into the Custody of the sons of Nicholas the late Palatine in the Castle of Soklos (Buda and the places confining with Germany adhering to him notwithstanding) which gave opportunity to Ladislaus, to pursue his design upon the Kingdome of Naples, (newly transferred by Pope Alexander from Lewis the Son of Charles aforesaid for his encroachment upon the Church Territory, to Lewis of Anjou) which he recovered in his own right. He was now besieging the often mentioned

*Sigismund
seized and made a Prisoner.*

* The City of Zara. * Fadra, and had forced it from the Venetians, when news was brought him that Sigismund having over-perswaded, and by promises prevailed on the Mother of the Sons of Nicholas Sigismund the Palatine, had obtained his liberty, and freed. having privily passed into Moravia and Bohemia, had openly resumed His Title and the Government, and had put to Death Stephen the Vaivod of Transylvania, with some few others as the Authors of the late Treason against him.

Hereupon Ladislaus thought best for the preservation of his own (for another defection of the Neapolitans was likewise suspected) to part with Fadra and his pretences upon the Venetians for a sum of money, and to return: But Sigismund had settled himself sure in the Government, and was now engaged in a War against the people of Bosnia, who had during these late Troubles, renounced their Allegiance to the Crown of Hungary.

The Hungarians worsted by the Turks. Nor did he engage with better fortune against the Turks, although weakned by a civil War between the Five Sons of Bajazet, his Lieutenant Stephen Lossontius, aiding Mark the Vaivod of Moldavia, who had shook off the Turkish yolk, being discomfited, and the said Vaivod deposed by Mahomet the first King of Turkey. Who to prosecute this quarrel commanded Isaac the Bassa of Bosnia, to invade Hungary; where notwithstanding he was defeated twice by Nicholas Pecri, yet by the negligence gence and divisions among the Hungarians, he had at last the better of it, destroying by fire many Towns and Villages.

Rupert the Emperour being deceased, Pope John the 22. dealt with the German Princes to elect Sigismund in his place, as a person whose regal Majesty, Magnificence, and Virtue, the skill and readinesse of many Languages, did excellently adorn and prefer before all the Princes, his Cotemporaries, as inferiour likewise to none of his Predecessors, if successe in Battel, and chastity in Bed had not been wanting. Soon after his Assumption to this Dignity, he threatned a War against Uladislans of Poland, but it was superseded by a Truce, which a Belgrade Peace ensued. The Turks busie encroachments disturbing and disseising his Neighbours, he had Belgrade consigned him by George Bulchus the Despot of Servia, who had other places in Hungary in exchange thereof: by which means the Turks being put to a stand, he had leisure to employ his Army against the Venetians, aided by the Florentines, who had seized several places, but after some bickerings this difference was also composed, for that Sigismund was now engaged in a Bohemian War in maintenance of his new Title to that Crown: About this time the Council of Constance was held, and Pope John convicted of 40. Crimes, committed to the Custody of Lewis Count Palatine of the Rhine, and Otho Colonna by the name of Martin the Fifth, placed in the Papal Chair. At this same Councel John Hus and Hierome of Prague were Condemned and Burnt for Heretiques, whose death was revenged by John Zisca and Procopius, to the great losse and detriment of Sigismund, the great and professed Enemy of the Reformation. And that it might appear there was more than humane direction in the infliction of the Defeats given him by Zisca, 15000. Hungarians that followed Sigismund perished by the breaking of the Ice in one Expedition.

The Death
of Sigis-
mund.

His Raign was concluded with a rebellious Insurrection of the Boors and Peasants, resolving to assert their Liberty or perish rather than endure slavery; and in this mood they raged with Fire and Sword, but their ungoverned and undisciplined Multitude rendred them an easie Conquest to a small Party of Experienced Soldiers. Sigismund departing from Prague commended his Son in law Albertus to the Nobles, and at his arrival at Znoyma in Moravia, departed this life, aged 70. years. He was a very active person, but little beholding to Fortune, and by her means deceived in the Constancy of his Friends. He was a great favourer of Learned men, affirming that Precedency was justly due to them; for that Riches and Regal Pompe happen meerly by Fate. He connived at and forgave Barbara his Wife, taken often in the act of Uncleannesse, being himself a most infamous Adulterer.

ALBERT, from Duke of Austria in a few months was made Duke of Luxenburg, ^{Albert of} ^{Austria} ^{succeeds.} ^{the 25. K.} Marquiss of Moravia, King of Bohemia, and Hungary (though the latter complaining of the Spoil and havock made by the Turks in that Kingdome during the absence of Sigismund busied in the Affairs of Germany and Italy, did with much reluctancy consent to his Election) as also of the Romans. He swayed the Scepter but two years, and was a notable Evidence of the inconstancy of the World in his sudden Advancement and as speedy Fall. He was Crowned at Alba, whence coming to Buda, the Germans took upon them the Civil administration of the City, together with the placing of Officers, as more allied to him than the Hungarians; and in maintainance of this their Intrusion, caused a Chief Noble man that stoutly opposed them to be put to Death. This so enraged the Hungarians that they flew to their Arms, and killed all the Germans they met or could tell where to find them, which Bloody Fury lasted till a certain Monk prevailed them to surcease it.

At this time the Turks wasting Rassia, and having subdued Synderovia, George Bulchus the Despot of the Province, committing the Guard of the Castle which was the Chief Residence of his Government, to his two Sons, betook himself with his third Son Lazarus for succour and aid into Hungary, but Albert intent upon his Covetousnesse suffered the two Princes to be taken, when although Amurath (as the Turkish

Rascia
subdued by the Turks.

Albert
Dies.

Turkish Annals have it) had Married their Sister some three years before, he caused their privities to be cut off, and their Eyes to be put out, upon pretence that they assisted their Father as then Designing War against him. Albert was upon his March when he understood of the taking of the Castle; which dismaying him, he encamped betwixt the River Tybis and the Danow, suffering Amurath after the attainment of his Design to retire unmolested. During which idling his Soldiers got the Flux, by inordinate eating of Fruit, which same disease at the Town of Nesmel, took him also away at his return to Hungary.

ELIZABETH his Wife, being left big with Child, was urgent with the Nobles that they would regard the Issue of the King her Husband she then went with; and in the mean time to her delivery to create an Interrex or Protector; to which motion those that were present agreed; but others would have the Scepter translated to Uladislaus the third, King of Poland, Son of Jagello aforesaid, by Hedmyga a Daughter of Hungary, to whom the Queen should be inter-married, and the Posthume Child to be instated in Austria and Bohemia. This counsel, the Infancy of the Prince and the Noyse of the Turkish Arms did then advise; whereupon a hasty Embassy was dispatched to Cracovia, but as speedily followed with the news of her being delivered of a Son.

Divisions
in Hungary about a new King

The Nobles at home now repented of their forforwardnesse, but the Ambassadors conscious to themselves how far they had gone, persisted in their Errand, and notwithstanding the Turks instances to the Contrary, prevailed upon Uladislaus to accept the Crown. Upon his approach into Hungary, Elizabeth, who had newly brought out the Crown she had secretly purloyned from its place, and Crowned her Son Ladislaus therewith (for whose good and just Government she and Zecchius, with the Count of Cillia had pledged their Oaths) foreseeing the danger, conveyed the Crown and her self and Son, to Frederick the third, Emperour.

Soon after Uladislaus arrived at Buda, and Uladislaus having modestly declined the Government, of Poland gently taxing the Hungarians of their Dissensions as the cause of so many Changes, was Innaugurated. the more unanimously Complemented with the Regal Title; Zecchius and Ladislaus Gara, the friends of the Orphan Prince, being set at liberty performing their Offices at his Coronation, solemnized with the Diadem taken from off the Image of St. Stephen. His great friends to this Advancement were Nicholas Vylach Governour of Chroatia, and John Huniades, who appeared like an auspicious star amidst the many Factions in Hungary: For the Queen assisted by some Castellanes and Governours of strong Holds, did cause great Troubles to the King, especially Ladislaus Gara her former Partaker, waged War and tryed the Fortune of Battel

Albert's Relief wages war in right of her Son.

Battel in her Sons Cause, but was Defeated with great losse by Huniades and Vylach, as were afterwards Zechi and Gisera; but to the common and great losse and diminution of the Strength of the Kingdome, notwithstanding that, Julian the Pope's Legate interposed the Papal Authority, by which no more than a Cessation for a time, could be obtained. The Death of the Queen which now happned, serving rather as an incentive then allay to the passions of those who studied her deprived Orphans right and Interest.

Belgrade
in vain Besieged by Amurath.

By this opportunity Amurath the second, had enlarged his Conquests in the extremest parts of Hungary, and was now in person before Belgrade, Defended by John Anrane Brother of the Prince, or Lord of Croatia, and so resolutely maintained by him, that after a Seige of seven months in which all manner of Force by assault and mines were tryed (but by the Valour and vigilance of the besieged repulsed and Countermin'd to the losse of Thirty thousand Men) the proud Turk was constrained to dislodge, when Invading the other parts of Hungary, he took in Novigrod in the Confines of Servia, abandoned upon his coming by the Defendants, from whence also he dispatched Isaac Bassa of Semendria to make a further Incur-sion; the Hungarians by their Discords being in no condition to withstand him, till at his return loaden with Booty and innumerable Christian Captives, Huniades having privily Collected an Army and passed the Danow, met with him in the Province of Alba, neer to Synderovia, and there vanquished him. To redresse this Discomfiture Mesithes Bassa was employed to open a Passage into Transylvania by Valachia, which at the instance of Huniades had newly Revolted, which he effected, havocking and laying wast the Countrey, and having worsted Huniades at the first Encounter, was again by him engaged with a sudden raised Army, and totally routed, Himself, and his Son, with Twenty thousand Turks being slain upon the place.

A Treaty was now with very unequal terms propounded; which Uladislaws rejecting, Abedin Beg was sent by Amurath to prosecute the same Design upon Transylvania and Hungary, with an Army of Fourscore thousand Men, at whose approach the Valachians being in no capacity to resist him, by the advice of Huniades, secured themselves in the inaccessible Mountains and Hills of the Countrey, while the Turk raged with all extremity upon what ever he found, till suddenly set upon by Huniades with no more then Fifteen thousand Men at Vaskapa, he was miserably overthrown, with the losse of Thirty thousand Men, and his own life. For this Victory a three dayes Thankgiving was appointed, and the Ensigns and Spoils of the Enemy hung up in Churches, and Huniades Proclaimed and extolled as the Bulwark and Defence of Christendome.

Hereby

Uladislaus Hereby also the King was encouraged to his Success- make an Invasion into the Turkish Territory, ful Invasi- accompanied by Julian the Pope's Legate, and on of the a multitude of Crusado's. At Buda he passed the Turkish Danow, Huniades and George the Despot, ad-Territory. vancing before him, who by light skirmishes drove the Enemy back, until the whole Army was arrived to the very tops of Mount Hemus, where there are two passes into Macedon and Thrace, the one made by Trajan, the other by the River Saltiza, called by the Turks, Clis- sira Isladina to this day; other parties of the Hungarians reducing most of the Towns in Bulgaria.

Against them Amurath dispatcht Casan Bassa or Caram Beg, with Turchan Beg, with all the Forces of Romania and the Achanzes, (Soldiers serving without stipend) who were by the desperate Valour of the Hungarians utterly His Victo- Defeated, and Casan himself taken Prisoner.
ry over the The Report of this disaster reaching Amurath Turks. he summoned and amassed the whole Force of his Empire; but Winter being far in, and the Earth bound up with Ice, while the King was upon his return, he retreated likewise, having effected nothing Considerable, when percei-ving by the calamity of so many misadventures, that his Provinces must needs be exhausted by the Continuance of the War, he submitted to the intreaty of a Peace, using thereto the Medi-Amurath ation of George the Despot to Huniades, and begs a Ces- his to the King, who being newly at Enmity sation. with

with the Emperour Frederick, and his Paternal Kingdome of Poland then in Faction and Troubles, consented to a Ten years Cessation, upon this Condition, that George the Despot should be restored to his Principality of Servia, his two Sons enlarged, and Prisoners freed on both sides, that the Turk should quit Claim to Moldavia, but should retain Bulgary.

Amurath having thus avoided the danger that threatned him in those Quarters, carried it with him upon Ibrahim the Caramanian King, in Asia the lesse, whom he subdued and Vanquished but soon after received into favour. In the mean while Eugenius the Pope, the Venetians and Greek Emperour, by many perswasions had induced Uladislans (a young Uladislaus Man not skill'd in the affairs of Fortune) to perswaded break the Truce made with an Infidel: And by the Pope though Huniades protested against it, as best to break able to judge of what would happen, by infor- his Truce ming the King that his Life and Scepter might with the Turk be taken away, but his Truth and plighted Faith was in his own keeping; and that the space of life was short, but a blot of Perfidiousnesse everlasting; Yet the King relying upon the Pope's Dispensation, (as Religion is the only Governour of our Affections) and deceived with vain Auguries, and the advantages of his Puissance, armed himself to his own Destruction.

For having embodied his Polonian and Hungarian garian Forces he passed the Danow and Belgrade, where Dracula the Prince of Moldavia having in vain laboured his desistance from the enterprize, joyned also 4000. men with him. Of this Expedition Amurath having intelligence sent him by Mahomet Beg Governour of Nicopolis, to his Residence at Magnesia, streightwayes crossed over into Europe, and at an obscure Village named Varna, but famous for this great overthrow, joyned Battel.

The fatal
Battel of Varna.

In the left Wing of the Christian Army Huniades, and one Michael Niger the Duke of Scylagy, and Brother of Huniades, were placed. In the right wing stood Bobricius a Polonian Knight, in the main Battel the King. The Turks first onset with great noise was upon the right wing, where they opposed Camels and Dromedaries to the Horse, who being therewith affrighted, and the Riders no lesse amazed, they were easily put to the rout: but in the left wing, and the main body, the King and Huniades, had better fortune, utterly discomfiting both the wings of the Infidels; only Amurath himself with his Janizaries stood yet unmoved, who seeing the presentnesse of the danger, calling Christ to be the Avenger of this Perfidy (Mr. Knols in his Turkish History relates, that he pulled the Instrument of the Truce out of his bosome, and held it up towards heaven) with great fury prest upon the Hungarians and made a very great slaughter, wherein Uladislaus against the Dissuasion of Huniades, rushing

rushing upon the Enemy, by the Fall of his Horse that was run through, had his Head cut off by Chefer Beg; the rest of the Army being disordered, and so hindering one anothers flight were for the most part slain on the place. Huniades himself escaped by Valachia, into Transylvania, although for a while detained by Dracula. There were reckoned to be slain of the Kings side 9000, and of the Turks 30. thousand. This was the end of Uladislaus, whom because Religion could not rule, the despiser of that Religion did destroy. The Epitaph on him was this.

Romulide Cannas, ego Varnam clade notavi

Discite Mortales non temerare fidem;

Me nisi Pontifices jussissent rumpere fœdus,

Non ferret Scythicum Pannonis ora Jugum.

The Hungarians being thus deprived of their ^{Lad:slaus} King, conferred the Kingdome upon LADIS- ^{the 26. K} LALLS the Son of Albert, whom they had so long with-held from his right of Inheritance, entrusting the Government with Huniades (surnamed Corvinus) with the Administration of it, both as to War and Peace; who to be revenged of Dracula for his Detainer of him in his Flight, seized him and his two Sons. He dispatched likewise an Embassy to Cesar, concerning the Redelivery of the King and Crown which the Mother of the present King had deposited with him, but neither intreaties nor

I Force

Scander-
beg.

Huniades
defeated in the Plains of Coss-
via.

Force afterwards, by incursions into Austria, prevailed any thing. In the mean while the Turk prosecuted his Successes in Hungary with a Revenge worthy of so odious a perjury, when Huniades in no Condition to oppose him, by hidden wayes Rendezvouzed an Army in Servia to recall the Enemy to the preservation of his own Countrey. To his Assistance he invited first George the Despot; who pretending the late Agreement, he drew in the Beg of Schodra (who was the Famous George Castriot, called by the Turks, Scanderbeg, the Son of John King of the Epirots or Triballi & had by fained Letters of Amurath's Hand, possessed himself of Croja the Capital City, as by his Valour and vigilance soon after, of most of the Kingdome; and maintained it in a War of 24. Years) and encamped in the Plains of Cossova, where he engaged the Turks three whole dayes together: the first two dayes he had the better of them, but their Numbers prevailed in the third; he himself flying was taken Prisoner by George the Despot, as an Infringer of his Oath; but upon the Hostage of his Son Ladislaus, set at Liberty; which the Turk resenting, dispatched away Frigez Beg to Invade Servia; to whose Relief Huniades seemingly reconciled to their Despot (now abominated) but out of hatred to the name of the Turks, speedily advanced, and with a great slaughter Vanquished the Enemy, taking the Beg himself. A Bohemian Scuffle followed this, but was presently Composed Composed by the Victorious Fortune of Huniades. At length the Emperour restored Ladislaus, whom the States of Hungary complementd thereupon at Vienna, and Huniades renounced the Administration.

LADILAU S to auspiciate his Reign, came to Presburgh, but would trust himself no further within the Kingdome, for Jealousies were fomented against Huniades by Ulrick Count of Cilia, formerly Præfect of Austria; but ejected thence by the Nobles, and received into favour by this King, who to compose the businesse was at last induced to come to Buda. While he staid there Amurath vexed with his repulie at Croja, had retired himself into a Monastery, and Mahomet his Son and Successor, after a Seige of 50. dayes, took and Sacked Constantinople, to the shame and terror of Christendome: and having seized Servia, with the Silver-Mine Towns therein, from George the Despot, bent his Force upon Belgrade; which Furiously attacking, and thundering against the Walls with his Canons, Huniades came in hast by Water, to the Relief of it; and having made his way into the Town, by a vigorous Saley beat the Enemy out of his Entrenchments which they fired, and cloyed Belgrade and nailed his great Guns; whereupon Mahomet retired to his main Camp, and thence next morning tormented & sick with the disappointment, fled in hast towards Macedonia, but was not pursued, because Huniades suspecting like-

Constantinople

taken by

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

Mahomet

His lamented Death.

wise some Stratagem, contented himself with the Slaughter of Forty thousand Turks. In this Conflict Huniades received a Wound whereof he Died; others say, of a Feaver. He was by Birth a Valachian, and from the place of it called Corvinus; as for the national glory of his Atchievements he was called Huniades: A person that with small power alwayes worsted great Armyes.

Ladislaus who terrified with the Turk's approach, had fled to Vienna, came forward now to Belgrade, to see the back-steps of the Enemy: where resenting the slaughter of the Count of Cilia by Ladislaus the Son of Huniades, though often provok'd thereunto, he caused him (by the Councel of some ill men) to be beheaded, and his Brother Matthias to be imprisoned. But the Year after, on the very Anniversary of the said Fact, as he was Solemnizing his Marriage in Bokemia, he Died there, and left another Vacancy or Interregnum in Hungaria.

An Interregnum in Hungaria.

In the beginning whereof Michael Szylagyi the Kinsman of Huniades (supplied with good store of Money by his Sister Elizabeth) levyed an Army in Title of Matthias (who was newly sent by Ladislaus, in Custody, to George Poggybrad King of Bohemia) as King of Hungary, having in Ladislaus's Life time procured many Friends that secretly favoured Huniades and his Family: Others also, for fear of his Power consented to his Election, at an Assembly bly of the States held at Rakos, where his Army Guarded them. Pogybrad certified hereof, inviting his Prisoner to Dinner, and setting him uppermost, acquainted him with the matter; and having Contracted his Daughter to him, conducted him to Moravia, where he was Saluted King; and thence in great Pomp and Magnificence conveyed to Buda, where he confirmed and restored all former Priviledges; and by his Care, Felicity, Vertue, and the Majesty of his Name, united all Parties into a perfect Peace; which effected, he sent John Vitesius the Bishop of Varadin, his adopted Father, to Frederick the Emperour, to demand the Crown; which he, pretending the Kingdome due to himself, and scorning the Youth of Matthias, refused; and hereupon ensued a German War, enforced by the predatory eruption of John Gisera or Zisca the Bohemian, who had twice worsted Huniades himself.

Matthias
saluted the King.

Frederick, animated and incited by the Lord or Banus of Croatia, Invaded the Sarmatian Province, taking the Rebels to his Assistance, and wasted the Countrey far and near, till Simon Magnus Commissioned and spirited by the King's early Courage, met him in the Upper Hungary, where he Discomfited him; permitting and conniving at the flight of the Rebels, who afterwards proved Cesar's worst and most dangerous Enemies. By this Success Cesar was at last constrained to yeild to the Demands of Matthias, who persisted in a prosecution

the Empe-
rour makes war against him.

Matthias
his War
with the Bandits
of the Mountains

secution of them by delivering the Crown, adopting also Matthias to his Son, upon Condition that if he died without Issue, the Emperour should succeed to the Crown of Hungary. The Bohemian War was ended with the same felicity, by Sebastian Rozgonius, who hunted those predatory Thieves out of their lurking places, amidst Rocks, Lakes, and other fastnesses; yet so that some years passed before Ziscra their Chief Captain, could be engaged (several strong Holds and passes being maintained by them) till driven to the Mountains of Poland, whence he addrest himself by humble supplication to the King, and was received by him into favour and Preferment. Telephus his Associate had not the same hap, but prolonged a wretched life, in a Begging starving Condition. This is the larger mentioned for that it lasted almost Five years before it was finished, and obliged the utmost endeavours of the King, to the extirpation of so villanous a race of Men, that disturbed the Peace and security of his Subjects.

The Turks
make war against Matthias.

The Turk during these Wars, had put in for his share by Invading the Eastermost parts, in Revenge of his Belgrade Defeat; but was so well received by Michael Szylagy (somewhile before in disgrace with his Beneficiary the King his Nephew, by usual Court detraction and Envy, and newly restored to all his Honours and Commands) neer to the Banks of Savus, by a Town called Tutach, that it was a question whether there there was more blood or water in that reach of the River. Haly Beg who was then Bassa of Mysia and commanded that Army, flying to Synderovia endeavoured to repair his losse by a re-inforcement of his enterprize upon Transylvania, but was overthrown again by Pancratius neer Temeswar. Matthias in pursuit of this Victory, seized Dracula Prince of Valachia, the Tributary of the Turk: for by the Articles between Amurath the second, and Uladislans, that investiture was to be sole right of the Kings of Hungary; and detained him 10. years a Prisoner. From thence he marched to Bosnia, the King whereof, Stephen, being also Despot of Servia, in right of his Wife the Daughter of Lazarus deceased, Mahomet had caused as perfidiously as inhumanely to be flayed alive, the just reward however of his base and prodigious lust, which divided his Sons against Him. Matthias proceeded as far as the Superiour Pasnia, and those parts which stretch themselves towards Zara and Epidaurus, and by the taking of Jaycia, reduced the whole Kingdome to his Hungarian Scepter; Mahomet with thirty thousand men came to relieve it, but hearing of Matthias his Approach sneaked cowardly home. Hereupon the Venetians (with other Princes, by their Ambassadors) were instant, for the prosecution of the War offering 50000. Crowns yearly, for the maintenance of it; which being accordingly recommenced; Matthias frightened in the same same manner at Mahomet's appearance, re-passed the Savus out of Rascia, where he had taken Streverich by Emerick Sepusius, and turned his Army upon the Frangepanes, who being fortified in the Alpes of Croatia, refused obedience, but as soon as the King was arrived at Zagrabia, they thought best to comply. He tamed also the revolting Transylvanians, as he quieted the Seditious in Moldavia and Valachia, by the slaughter of 7000 of them: But his Lieutenant Michael Scylagii, fought unprosperously with the Turk, after a most bloody Battle, himself being captivated, and although a Prisoner of War, yet put to death by those savage Infidels.

An Expedition into Bosnia.

Matthias
zealous for the Pope.

A Bohemian War ensued, fomented and enflamed by Pope Paul the second, who instigated Matthias against George Pogybrad his Father in Law, as an Heretick, for owning the Doctrines of John Huss, &c. while an excellent opportunity against the Turk engaged in a Syrian & Egyptian War, was by this means pretermitted. Matthias in this war had the better of it, zealously executing the Edicts & Anathemas of the Pope, against the Bohemians, Silesians, and Moravians; Nor would a Treaty of Peace be hearkned to, the Papists giving out, that no Faith or Communion was to be held with such Heretiques. Whereupon Victorinus the Son of Pogybrade made new Levies, but was unhappily worsted and imprisoned at Vissigra, while Matthias having subdued Spilberg and Olmitz

Olmitz was Master of Moravia, and Silesia at his devotion, and was solemnly also declared King of Bohemia.

Pogybrad soon after dying, and by his misfortunes induced to favour Matthias his succession to that Crown (his Son having been gratis set at liberty a little before, upon the Composition of the troubles in Moravia) he transacted with the States of Bohemia for his investiture in that Kingdom, but they had disposed of it to Wladislaus Son of Casimir King of Poland. In revenge whereof he issued like a Tempest out of Moravia into Bohemia: but the Pope being neutral in the Concernments of two Catholic Princes, and the Turks upon the banks of Savus at the Siege of Sabaczium, besides (which was worst of all) a Conspiracy was hatching at home, he effected nothing.

This Conjuration was so general, by which Casimir was designed to this Crown, that but 9. of 70. Peers, or Senators, were true to their Allegiance, among these Plotters the chief were Vitesius the Archbishop, Janus Pannonius, and Emericus Scepusius the former favourers of, and reciprocally favoured by, Matthias: the pretence of the defection was, that the Church Revenues, and other profits of secular Offices, were employed solely in the carrying on of War. Ladislaus at their invitation came and encamped between Nitre and Vacia, and was magnificently received by his Partakers, but Matthias upon the News of it speeding

A Treasonable conspiracy against Matthias.

Ladislaus
Defeated.

ing from Buda to Strigonium, prepared for an Encounter, where by Scepusius, whom he reclaimed, he so wrought upon Vitesius the Life of the Faction, that upon his reconciliation, and indemnity promised to those that should return to their Allegiance within three dayes, his Competitor was presently abandoned, and left to reflect, and inveigh against the Levity of the Hungarians: nor was that all, but being circumvented at Nitra, he hardly escaped with 700. of all his number, the pursuit not being given over, till his Father by timely dispatches, interposed his requests for his dismissal. Notwithstanding Matthias was not satisfied with this revenge, but continuing in the mountainous part of Poland, watched an opportunity of further satisfaction; as he punished Vitesius and Janns, with other of the Complices in the Treason. While he staid hereabouts Uladislaus stomaching the spoil of his Countrey, with a just Army opposed himself; and so the businesse came to open War, which determined neverthelesse by a private Stratagem in the most covert places and ambushes of that hilly Country, in favour of Matthias, who by his Lieutenants John Scepusius and Paul Kinisi, had also depopulated all the Provinces as far as Cracovia, and brought a miserable desolation thereabouts. By which means the Pole was glad to quit his pretences to Moravia, Silesia, and Lusatia, and to part with his Claim to the Crown of Bohemia.
During

Matthias
his War in Poland.

During this Agreement, Solyman the Beg-lerbeg of Romania with a Hundred thousand Men, having in vain attempted Scodra, came with an Army into Moldavia, whom Stephen the Valiant Vaivod thereof overcame with so great a slaughter, that scarce a sign remained of in vain beto vast a Multitude. To requite this victory, Schodra sieged.

Matthias besieged Sabarium, whereat happned divers Encounters, the besieged being Potent and Couragious, and the besiegers Resolute and adventurous; He himself for better view, passing in a common habit within the reach of their small shot, in a Boat, accompanied but with one Soldier who was kill'd with a Bullet; Fortune by a peculiar care of him (as is her constant respect to such persons) preserving him from the danger. In fine, by dissembling to rise from the Siege, he lulled the Garrison into security and then surprized them; and for the better fortification of the Castle, drew the River Savus round about it; and thereafter supplied with money from the Pope for the better prosecution of the War, laid all waste as far as Synderovia; and in order to an opportune and commodious Siege thereof built three strong Castles, as a bridle to curb and repress their foraging for provisions.

Sabarium
 taken by Matthias.

He was yet intent of carrying his Successes further, having embarked to that purpose on the Danow (Alibeg with a plundering Party about Temeswar, having been also newly defeated, so that there appeared no rub to his Design) when

Matthias
war against the Emperor
Frederick.

when the arrival of his Queen Beatrice (who by Venice, Dalmatia, and Carniola had been Honourably conveyed to Alba, and there Crowned, and the Marriage Celebrated at Buda in the presence of all the Nobles) softened and emasculated his Spirit, and corrupted the Souldiery, by idling amidst the vanity and Luxury of the Court, now addicted to sport and pleasure. Nor could the Calamitous Condition of Moldavia (the Noble Vaivod whereof had in vain struggled against the Potent and over-bearing Force of Mahomet, and saw his Country Vassaliz'd to that Cruel Enemy) awaken Matthias out of this sensual stupidity; the Queen proving as another Capua to Victorious Hanibal, till such time as it was almost too late to resist, being on a sudden attacked by Frederick the Emperour from the old grudge, although most ungratefully and unhand-somely, and the Event was according. For Matthias rousing himself followed the Enemy into Austria (where the Rascians in his service most cruelly raged) and took in several Towns, and was now before Vienna, when the Emperour (of no Martial disposition) desired an accommodation, which Matthias condescended to, so Austria was again restored to Frederick. In this War the Pope and Venetians withdrew their subsidy from Matthias as engaged against a Christian Prince, whereupon ensued an averfness against that State, whose danger had linked their Concern with his for some space of time before; and

and by that means they lost Scodra, Croja, and the Promontory of Tanarus to the Turk upon very base Conditions, or very Calamitous Conquest; that of Schodra especially.

The Peace was now to be confirmed, which was agreed upon before betwixt Uladislaus and himself; and therefore both Kings appointed an Interview at Olmitz in Moravia, where they appeared with a most Splendid and pompous Train, several Theatres and other august Temporary Edifices being Erected for the Solemnity, where they treated one another most Magnificently, and gave great Largeesses to the People: Matthias not willing to be behind hand in State and Grandeur upon such an Illustrious occasion: But whilst he diverted himself here, Solyman the Beglerbeg of Greece being advantaged by a dry Summer, passed his Army over the Fords of the Rivers Savus and Dravus, and coming as far as Castle-Iron, laid wast the whole Countrey. The news of this made Matthias quit his Court-ship, and with all Expedition to follow the Enemy, who making hast away, he gave order to 16000. of his readiest Troops to pursue him; the which Forces over-took him laden with Thirty thousand Captives, at Verbos in Illyria, and so routed him, that the remains of his flying Army durst not face about to Three hundred Croats, who alone pursued them; by which Victory, Illyria was in a fair way to have been wholly assigned to this Triumph, had not the Empe-
rour

rouer by an Inroad towards Raab recall'd him; which Injury so incensed Matthias that he presently laid Seige to Mariaburg, and would hardly desist from the Enterprize at the earnest entreaties of the Pope, and Frederick's Ambassadors.

Defeats
the Turks
in Trans-
sylvania.

Mahomet the Great, having taken Scodra as aforesaid, was now returned to Constantinople, and vexed with the disgrace of Solyman's Defeat, had Commissioned Ali Beg, Isa Beg, and Balam Beg, with Sixty thousand Men for Transylvania, who proceeded with Fire and Sword as far as Alba Julia; within five miles whereof Stephen Bathori, the Vayvod of Transylvania, and Paul Kinisi Count of Temeswar, with a new levied Army of Hungarians, Valachians &c. encountered them, and after a long dispute in which the River Marus was filled with Blood of both parties, by the Valour and encouragement of Kinisi totally overthrew them, Thirty thousand Turks being slain upon the place. The fame of this Atchievement made the Pope (Apulia in Italy being sorely infested by the Turks) to intreat Matthias as the onely competent Help against those Infidels, to undertake the Defence of those parts, when at the same time he ungratefully inter-medled beyond his Authority, in the placing and preferring Bishops in Hungaria; Matthias having substituted John the Cardinal of Arragon to be Arch-Bishop of Strigonium in place of John of Alemannia, his Enemy and Rebel.

About

About this time Died Mahomet, leaving his two Sons Bajazet and Zemes to strive for the Empire; the latter being discomfited in two Battels, wherein he was assisted by the Sultan of Agypt, fled to the Grand Master of the Rhodes who sent him to Rome, where at the instance and great Bribes of Bajazet, he was most unworthily poysoned by Pope Alexander the sixt; Matthias purposing to make good use of this occasion, had solicited Cesar for a Confirmation and security of the late Peace, which being delayed till the opportunity was lost, and the Turks in motion this way, he Invaded Austria and possessed himself of many Towns again (while Bajazet had terribly ruined and wasted Moldavia, and in requital thereof was Defeated by Lupus (the Noble and valiant Despot of what remained in those parts) in two Battels:) and after a six months regular Seige took in Vienna the Capital City thereof; as John Scepusis his Lieutenant mastered Newstria and other Fortresses.

His Successes in Austria.

The five years that Matthias lived afterwards he wholly employed in Reforming the manners of his Subjects, now addicted to Luxury and prone to all other Vices; and in providing for the future Glory and Magnificence of the Succeeding Kings, converting his Iron into a Golden Palace; and Designing to Build the City of Buda after the Italian way. He also highly favoured Learned Men, and resolved, upon the settlement of Austria by a lasting Peace;

His Vertues and Commendations.

Peace, to employ all his power against the Turks; whereto he was encouraged by many Princes, more especially by the Sultan's of Egypt, who had lately Vanquished Ferbates Bassa, the Beglerbeg of Caramania, & afterwards Chefer Beg, and Achmet the Mahumetanized Son of Stephen of Bosnia aforesaid, with such a slaughter that it was credited to have exceeded that of Tamerlane. But while he prepared for those things Death prevented him, by the in-

His Death. creasing pains of the Gout. A person of great Authority with all Princes, and worthy to be extolled for his Military Experience, and his Acts of Peace; and so much the more Famed and desired by Posterity, by how much his Successors were inferiour to him in point of Courage and vigilant Prudence.

*Corvinus
his bastard claims the Crown.*

Upon the Death of the King, Corvinus the Bastard Son of Matthias, having been fed with hopes of his Succession to the Crown, endeavoured to effect it, while 3 great Competitors were transacting their interest with the States of Hangary, viz. Ladislaus King of Bohemia, Albert Prince of Poland, both Brothers and Sons of Cassimir and Maximilian King of the Romans; but in conclusion Ladislaus carried it by the major voyces, and by the instance and interest of Beatrice the Dowager Queen, who had loved him in her Husbands Life time, and hoped now to be Married to him, although she was by the Judgement of God disapointed of her Expectation. Corvinus not brooking this, this, although he had articted upon the Cession of his claim and delivery of the Crown, which he had got into his custody, for an investiture as Lord of Bosnia, Croatia, and Sclavonia, raised an Army by the help of the Governours of those Provinces, but opposed at Sarviza by Stephen Bathori and Kinisi, commissioned by the States then assembled in great fear at Pesth, he was worsted after a dismall encounter (wherein brother engaged against brother) and fled to Quinque Ecclesia, where his Souldiers broke open his Treasure and carried it away.

Corvinus
defeated.

By this means the Kingdome was settled in those parts, and (Corvinus submitting upon indemnity to his partakers, and the restoring of what had been taken from him) Uladislaus

His submission and agreement.

was Crowned at Alba Regalis, but presently engaged in a War against his Competitor and brother Albert, who had seized Cassovia,* Cibinium, and other places, and in fine joyned battel, wherein by the prowess of Uladislaus and the defection of the Cassovians, he was overcome, and striving to renew the War, was thrice afterwards beaten out of the field.

Herman-
staet.

Maximilian's Enterprize was more powerfull and fortunate, auspicated also by the Viennians, who weary of a Forraigners Yoak, admitted his forces into the City, which Scepusius the Governour perceiving, he thought it most advisable to depart secretly out of the Castle: and thereupon the other places of Austria, returned to their former Lord, who proceeded and

Vienna
restored to Maximili-
an with other places in Austria.

Uladislaus makes peace with Maximili-
an.

reduced Vesprinium and Alba Regalis in Hungary, and had finished the conquest but that his Germans not enduring the Climate and other discommodities of the Country, mutined for their pay: in the interim Uladislaus had collected his Army and was upon his march after Maximilian, recovering the Towns he had lost, and being bent upon a further revenge was diverted by a horrid Invasion of the Turks as far as the Territories of Varadin (then in division by civil broyles) having endangered Belgrade by mastering two of the Bulwarks. For which reasons Uladislaus was induced to make peace with Maximilian, though upon very dishonourable terms, by yeilding Austria, Carinthia, Carniola, and Styria, seized and possessed by Matthias, and delivering some Castles of Croatia, and Sclavonia; in lieu whereof Cesar restored him unto places taken this war in Hungary, upon condition of his succession, as was accorded with Matthias.

At the dyet held thereafter at Buda, the Kings marriage with Beatrice was debated, but because of her sterility and in submission to the Pontificall Authority, she was put by, and Ann the Daughter of the Prince of Anjou, preferred to his bed. In the mean while Bajazet made great preparations both by Land and upon the Ister, for an Invasion of Hungary, which caused double Garrisons to be put into the frontier Towns of Severinum, Sabaczia, and Jaycia, and an Army of 60 Thousand men under the the conduct and supreme command of Kinifius, to be instantly levyed; Bajazer came first to Sophia, then to Hadrianople by leisure, but dared not enter Hungary, whither he dispatched Dandes Bassa to Uscopia, while he diverted to Maxastinum designing upon Albania, and meditating a Truce with Uladislans, which was accorded to; nevertheless respecting more the utility than the faith of the agreement, he sent away two Bassa's, the one into Valachia, the other to beseige Severinum, the former was vanquished by that Vayvod, and the other by Kinifius, who also horribly slaughtered those ravenous pillaging Bohemians, whom he had appointed for the guard of the Confines against that Enemy. Johannes Corvinus likewise valiantly repulsed the Turk from Jaycia, but wearied with the refractory pride of the Frangepanes, and other Noblemen, resigned his Government of Bosnia, Chroatia, and Dalmatia, in whose place Emericus Drencenus was substituted by the King, who repressed the insolence of those Grandees, now seeking for protection from the Turks: which occasion being welcome to Jacup Aga, he presently made an Incurfion into the limits of Carinthia, and Carniola, and carried away a great prey and spoil by the Confines of Germany, when Drencenus having reconciled Frangepanes, with a sufficient Army for number encountred him, but Frangepanes again revolting, the Hungarians were totally routed, and Drencenus himself taken Prisoner.

Bajazer
dareth not enter Hungary.

His Bassa's
defeated.

Drencenus defeated by
Jacup Aga.

This losse as is usuall in such cases, was imputed to the sloth of the King by the Nobles, when their base covetousnesse was the onely cause of it; the Kings revenue being hardly able to maintain the expence of his Family as became the Dignity of a King, which poverty proceeded meerly from his honesty, and begat such a contempt of his Authority, that he could not make the Palatine desist from the seige of one of Corvinus his Castles, till the noble youth himself revenged the injury, and he was the rather thus slighted because of his ignorance in the Hungarian tongue, answering nothing but * Well well to what ever story.

* Dobrie
the same
with the Russes.

Kinifius
successes.

In the mean while Kinifius repaired this late losse by an expedition with 10000. men into Mysia, where he took two Castles the one of them by the exemplary courage of a Chroat who alone maintained the rampire against the Enemy till his Fellows came to his assistance; as by another Irruption into Servia; having animated the King to a more vigorous prosecution of the War, and brought him upon that account to Petri Varadin; whence Kinifi with 14000 men, wasted and harrassed all the Turks Country as far as the Suburbs of Synderovia, with such a terrour that even Constantinople it self trembled for fear of his approach. This noble person survived not long after, being in reference to the present state of affairs another Huniades, dying also like him of a Feaver. He so abominated and resented the Turkish barbarities barities that he always retaliated upon them in a severer manner of Torture and punishment. At last the King took courage by the good advice of his friends and Councillors, and by force of Arms reduced and tamed those Seditious Grandees of Chroatia, the chief of whom were Peter Arch-bishop of Colocza, and Laurence Duke of Syrmia, in whose Country the Kings Steward had been killed, this last he dispossessed of all his Castles, and imprisoned at Buda, newly before pardoned at the dyet there, by which means all those troubles were composed, and a three years Truce confirmed by Selymus, who had wrested the Turkish Empire from his father Bajazet, which added something more to the Kingdomes Welfare.

His death.

The King
punish his seditious Gran-
dees.

About this time dyed John Corvinus, (his Widdow intermarrying with George Marquesse of Brandenburgh) followed by Peter Gereb the Palatine (in whose Place came Emericus Perenyi) and Stephen Vayvod of Moldavia, a person famous next Matthias, for his services against the Turk and Tartars; in whose room succeeded Bogdanus. At Buda a consult was managed by the Faction of Zapoliannus or John Scepusius the Vayvod, and the Eloquence of Verbeczius of forbidding the Crown to be ever conferred on Forraigners; as the Siculi rebelled the same time and killed the Collector of their dues to the King, but the Authors were severely punished by Paulus Tomoræus. Nor ever were the Hungarians more deceived then in this Insurrections and Outrages

in Hungary by the Clergy
Souldiers.

Truce made with Selymus, relying whereon they became defenceless, for on a sudden all the Country as far as the River Dravus where it joyns with the Danow, was laid wast and desolate: To second this Calamity the Countrey-men and Boors rebelled against the Nobility, and for the greater enforcement of their designs joyned themselves with the Forces raised by Thomas the Arch-bishop of Strigonium, against Bajazet's Invasion, at the instinct of the Pope, to keep the War out of Italy at the charge of Hungary. There being now upon the Peace again, no use for these religious Souldiers, they began to be burdensome to the Noblesse, and admitted of the Peasants as their Associates: by, and of, these no lesse then 70000 are reported to have been slain in the space of four moneths, by which the sanctity of these Crusadomen may be guessed at. At last John the Vayvod tamed this wicked Crew by intollerable Famine, and gave them the head of their Captain one George Szekbely (notable formerly for his Valour) for food and victual.

Uladislans to make up a stricter League with the House of Austria, journeyed now to Vienna, where he had conference with Sigismund of Poland, and Maximilian, by whom, Mary his Neice by Philip, was betrothed to Lewis, Ladislans his Son, and Mary his Daughter to Charles or Ferdinand with a Condition of succession in case of no Issue; against this contract and this last clause Perinyi objected and though lame lame caused himself to be carried through the Streets of Presburg, where he noysed his Dissent and refusal, and the Invalidity of the Match, as done without his (principally) and the Nobles Consent; but being won by the grant of the Office of Crown-keeper, just as he should have subscribed the Instrument, he Died. In the interim John the Vayvod elevated by his Success against Szekelehi, besieged Sarno a Garrison of the Turks, but was so cowardly frightened that he fled and forsook his Great Guns, at the news of the approach of Baly Beg, nevertheless by the Valour of Michael Praxius who sustained the Van of the Enemy, they were recovered. King Ladislaus lived not long afterwards, fitter indeed for ease and quiet, than the Rule of the stubborn and Effrene Hungarians; but whether out of Grief and vexation of mind, or the Common course of Nature, is uncertain.

LEWIS his Son succeeded him, having according to the late Agreement, Married Mary the Sister of Charles the fifth, by their Father Philip the first of Spain. In this Prince all things, as his Birth, Succession, Beard, Wedding, and Death, were præproperous and Early. At the same time died Maximilian, to whom, chiefly by the suffrage of Frederick of Saxony, succeeded Charles the fifth, as did Solyman just after the ratification of an eight years Truce succeed his Father Selymus: Divine Providence so ordering it that those two great Potentates should Govern the World together, and restrain each other by a mutual dread of one anothers Power and Vertues.

The death of King Ladislaus.
Lewi succeeds his Father Ladislaus & is the 29. King.

Yet Solyman was so great an esteemer of his own Glory, and so unbounded in his Conceits of it, that he demanded of Lewis the purchase of a Peace with him at a certain Tribute, which being denyed, he Invaded Hungary, and wrested Moldavia, and Valachia from that Dominion, together with the greatest part of Sclavonia. Nothing withstanding his Arms there but Jaycia, Defended by the signal Valour of Peter Keglevitius. These victorious proceedings caused Lewis to levy an Army of 60000.

Belgrade
taken by
Solyman.

Men; but his Exchequer not being sufficient to bear the Expence, they were as soon dissolved. In the mean while Belgrade (so often maintained against the Turkish power) was now gained by the Fortune of Solyman, and the Treachery of the Governours, who would not admit the succour and Assistance, brought by Andrew Bathori, into the Town. Hence the Conquerour having received a losse from Stephen Bathori the Palatine, who defeated Pyrhus Bassa, then wasting Syrmia, and contented with his former Success, dispatched a Chiaux with offers of Peace to the King; but his Youthful mind swayed by evil Counsel and corrupted with the luxury of George Marquisse of Brandenburgh, was debauched into that perfidious baseness, that he Commanded the Envoy to be privily put to Death at Tata, and for

The barbarous perfidy of Lewis

for the concealment of the murther, his body to be cast into the Fish-pond.

Solyman was then returned home to the Enterprize of Rhodes, and Lewis his Lieutenant had had some successes against the Turks, especially Christopher Frangepanes not onely repelled them from Jaycia, but beat them out of their Trenches and took their Camp; as Tomori defeated Ferhates Begogli, while Severinum was also reduced; but the Dissentions and Divisions that arose in Hungary among the Nobility for the Title of Palatine, between Verbeczius, Zobins, and their Party of the Multitude against Bathori legally so Created; Besides that, the Reformed Religion now took footing in this Kingdome, although endeavoured by fire to be suppressed, but maintained by Prynus in the County of Bodrogh and by Nadany at Chrysus; These concurrent mischeifs I say, brought Solyman back into Hungary, declaring his intention of revenge for the Death of his Messenger, which sudden appearance of his caused much dread and terrour, for that no present remedy could be thought on. Notwithstanding Lewis, without any Aid from abroad resolved to encounter him with an Army of twenty four thousand men, Commanded by the Arch-Bishop of Colocza, and George Zapolianus, although dissuaded by John Scepusius and Frangepanes, who would have had him withdrawn his person at least, which however would save the Kingdome, and to have staid till

Divisions
and Innovations about Religion in Hungary.

Lewis his unadvised, rashnesse.

The fatal Battel of Mohacz:
Lewis
killed,

till he had Collected the whole Force of his Kingdome; but such was his Heat and Temerity, and the like proud humour of the Nobility (though it proved their Common Destruction) the sign often of a great, but now of an unhappy Resolution, that an Engagement ensued at Mohacz, where the Hungarians were vanquished and put to a total rout. The King with his Prelates and Nobles (to whom it was ignominious to fly and to survive their Prince) being killed on the place.

Buda taken by Solyman.

At the news of this overthrow Buda was abandoned, the Queen with her best moveables flying to Presburg, whence she retired to Charles the fifth, her Brother; who Deputed her to the Government of the Low Countreys, where she presided thirty years, and afterwards weary of the World (like him) betook herself to a Monastery, and was joyned with him in Death. Solyman entering Buda, abstained from the Usurpation of the Regality, guessing that a Kingdome so slightly gained, might as slightly be lost; but forbore not the plunder of the Countrey, as much as lyes betwixt the Balaton Lake, the Danow, and Tybiscus, being miserably depopulated.

As to this Tragedy, and the Death of the King, there were many things that portended it; as that he was Born without any Skin, which was supplied by the Art of the Physicians. Besides a Spectrum appeared before the Gate of the Castle of Buda demanding Conference with with the King, which being not much regarded, vanished without any presage. And now when as yet the safety of the Kingdome was not dispaired of, Civil Wars subserved Fate and helped on the general Ruine. The Supreme Power was unsociable, and Interest would not be joyned by the presentnesse of the danger. Armies were presently gathered, and as soon dismissed; Fortnne not admitting two to the Supremacy, & while all men stood still at gaze, the Enemy took advantage to disperse them.

*Civil Wars
ensue this Calamity.*

The Fourth BOOK.

VWhile this Battel was fought at Mohacz, John Zapolyai Scepusius the Vayvod of Transylvania, itayed at Szeged, and Cajoling the remains of the Nobility, came to Buda, where he perswaded Perenyi the keeper of the Crown, to deliver it to him (conferring upon him therefore the Præfecture of Transylvania) and thence speeded with them to Alba Regalis. A Convention being here held, Verbeczius opened the present state of Affairs in favour of John, who was by the Assembly accepted and styled King, having passed

John named King by a Convention of the Hungarian Nobility at Alba Regalis.

sed by Ferdinand; who as well by the favour and good will of many, as by the Marriage of Ann the Sister of Lewis, had a good Claim and Title to the Kingdome; wherefore John was advised to begin the War against him, but he following milder then safer Counsel, and the opinion of Frangepanes, dismissed his Forces, hoping to gain the Kingdome by Largesse and Bounty.

At the same, Bathori the Palatine, the perpetual Enemy of John, held a Convention at Presburgh, where he maintained the Title of Ferdinand, by whom Perenyus at the solicitation of Thurzo, and the Confirmation of his former Title was brought over, and the Crown with the other Royal Ensigns conveyed into his hands. Hereupon Ferdinand was Proclaimed and Inaugurated by Paul Vardanus, and Encouragement given by the Hungarians readinesse to assist him. By which means John being forced to withdraw, Convocated his faithfullest Friends to Gubaczium; but not judging it safest to rely upon them, fled to Tockay, intending to call the Janizaries to his Aid; but while that was in agitation, Caczianerus and Felsins Discomfited his Captains with a most cruel slaughter neer the same Town, as others of his party were the second time vanquished at Hernad by the same Hand; where the Camp Royally stored fell into the Victors hands, so that Tockay, Agria, Hatvanum, and all places as far as Buda acknowledged Ferdinand;

John beaten and dispossessed by Ferdinand.

Ferdinand; which mutation of affairs made John betake himself to the Protection of John Tarnovius the Castellan of Cracovia; at whose entertainment of him, Sigismund of Poland connived, but by no means would assist him with Men and Money although his Brother in law, as Consciencious of that League which was between Ferdinand and himself. Cacziernus carying in the mean time all places before him.

John flies for shelter into Poland.

Nor was Frangepanes, John's firm Friend, much more prosperous in Illyria, although he made potent opposition and bestirred himselfe vigourously in his Cause, for being shot at the siege of Varasdin, which Paul Caprarius resolutely Defended, he there with grief expired, and left that Province without any further addoe, in the Possession of Ferdinand. These lamentable distractions gave occasion to the neighbouring Garrisons of the Turks to Invade the same Region and besiege Jaycia, which they reduced with many other places; the Proprietor whereof Carlovitus, the last of the Torquati, dying at Medvevarium greatly enriched the Family of the Noble Serini.

John thus turmoiled and stript of his Kingdom, by the mediation of Lascus the Palatine of Siradia proffered to joyn Interest with the Turk, having used also the diligent endeavours of Andrew Griti Son of the Duke of Venice, for the accomplishment of this Design; a person of a narrow Fortune, but vast hopes,

*John complies with the Turks
and joyns Interests.*

Solyman
undertakes his Cause and Quarrel.

Vienna
besieged

1529.

hopes, who between Flattery and Crafty diligence, had gained favour at the Port. At his instance Solyman (ambitious of Glory) by Conferring a Crown he had won, and obliging such an Interest to his Service, consented to the assertion of John's Quarrel, rather inclined thereto by the unreasonable peremptorynesse of Hoberdanschus a rash man, Ferdinand's Embassador, who demanded restitution of all places, even Belgrade itself; to which Solyman answered, that he would reply to this haughty Demand at the Walls of Vienna. John was neverthelesse not idle of himself, but having collected an Army, for the furniture of which he pawned his Jewels, appointed Simon Athinensis for his General, to whom adhered many Nobles. These Defeated Liscanus and Revayus, Ferdinand's Captains, while John progressing to Lippa, met the Grand Seignieur at Mohacz, who proceeded and came to Buda, yeilded unto him by the Treachery of the Germans. This City the Turk put into Johns possession, who now carried himself openly as King. Strigonium was next yeilded by Varadanus commended to Johns Clemency by some friends: And now all Hungary resounded with the noyse of these Victories as far as Vienna, whither Solyman was come and laid Formall siege thereunto; but by the Valour of Philip Count Palatine, and Nicholas Count of Salms, and the Policy of Ibrahim Bassa, who favoured the Christians, and therefore retarded the great Guns,

Guns, He was forced to rise after a month, ^{The siege} with the losse of 80000 men; and thence (ha-^{raised.} ving established John the Crown as it was carried up and down from its depository at Vissgrade, being taken with Perenyus, who by the Hostage of his Son (Mahumetanized after) was hardly set at liberty: Solyman departed home) when Rogendorf soon besieged K. John and Gritti in Buda, but they were at last relieved; Solyman also again returned into Hungary the next year and besieged Guntzium, but prevailed not against the Courage and resolution of the Governour: so that while he was engaged here, Charles the Emperour, and Ferdinand, with an Army of 130000 men, came to fight him; but he terrified with their approach, by two wayes, hasted back again, the same Ibrahim advising it for the destruction of one or both of the parties thus divided; but Charles glad to see him gone made no use of the advantage; Solyman left Casnes with 15000 Horse behind him to plunder the Confines of Germany, but Frederick Count Palatine, General of the Ayds of the Empire, met him, and put every man of them to the Sword.

After this inglorious Retreat, K. John, whether indeed a Christian, or awed by fear perceiving the Potency of Ferdinand, by Lascus besought his Peace, which was suspended by a present Truce. The Commissioners of the two Kings (to ascertain the Limits of their Dominions) met at Strigonium, which Town was sequestred

Peace con- questred into the hands of the King of Poland, cluded be- and Frederick of Saxony. This good work twixt John took its desired effect, while new storms arose & Ferdi- in Hungary about establishing a person in the nand.

Griti's Designs.

Solyman's
 terms of Peace.

place of the Palatine Banfi newly Deceased, which Dignity under the Title of Governour by the advice of Lascus to K. John, was conferred on Griti, who with great Largesses had scrued himself into the Esteem of the People;
 but was so hateful to the Nobles, and he Consciously obnoxious to them, that by several Artifices he made the cheif of them away. Whereupon he returned to Constantinople in hast, upon pretence of making way to a Peace there, where his practises and concealed reserved designs, peices of which he had brokenly imparted, ren-dred him suspect to John for his intimacy with the Divan. In the mean while Solyman incited by his Dreams to an Expedition against the Per- sians, dispatcht away a Chiaux with the heads of the Peace, which were, That Clement the Pope should be his Father; Charles and Ferdinand his Brothers; John shall stand to equal Conditions, Corone, Bala, and Patra, taken by the Valour of Andrew Doria, shall be recompensed to Charles by other places. But while the Emperour delayed to render those Towns, a most ignominious Discomfiture of the Coronenses by Cayra- dine the Turks Admirall, broke off the frustrated League; and so that agreement which might have been easily purchased, rose to the price of the ruine of Hungary.

Griti

Griti was come back to Transalpina by Griti's Selistræ accompanied with 3000. Men, and End. every where proclaimed his Title of Governour, vapouring of his Vertues which from a private Person had raised him to a Prince, and that to make Peace betwixt Emperours, could be nothing less than a Divine and immortal action. As he passed the Alps at Corona, he was accosted by Lascus with additional forces out of Podolia, by whose assertion he was every where acknowledged as Governour. Invested with this force & Power he sent for Cibacus, who was one of those Nobles that had disallowed his Title, as vain and injurious while the K. was living; who being betrayed by his Servant (corrupted by one Docius an Instrument of Griti's by a silver Cup, the reward of his Treason, who told him there was no danger if he went) upon his arrival the same night, as he was fast asleep in his Tent, had his Head severed from his Body, and carried to Griti to feed and satisfy his most Bloody and scelerate Revenge. But Divine Justice was not far behind, for Stephen Maylat, and other Noblemen, within eight dayes raising an Army of Sixty thousand Men, pursued Griti, who conscious of his Vilanies and his Usurped rackt Authority, was upon the first news of their Arming fled to Meggyesum, where by the defection of the Townsmen, the Turks that were with him were all put to the Sword; his Agent Docius Executed by the Axe, and Griti

Cibacus
murdered
by him.

in his intended Escape taken by the Valachi-ans, and offered by them as a Victim to the Ghost of Cibacus.

A Rupture between K. John and Ferdinand King John being required by Solyman to Aid Griti, was nothing troubled when he heard of the news of this his Rivals Death; for Griti's Design and last intendment was his Substitution to the Crown of Hungary. He likewise for better security of the Peace, Imprisoned Lascus, but put in mind of his former good Offices converted his restraint into Banishment. And here followed a Rupture between John and Ferdinand, Leonard Cackei delivering Cassovia in the Upper Hungary which was assigned to Ferdinand, to King John; to requite which losse, the German attempted Transylvania; the Szekeli, the reliques of the old Huns, and the * Szaszi, a Colony of the Saxons, Seated in a Province of that Principality, being prone to Revolt from the Hungarian. But when the Governours Nyari and Bamfi by their plundering of Sacmar, had discovered the Conspiracy, the Design came to nothing and John soon recovered that Town, with the losse of Gothard Kun his fast Friend, and a Tame white Hart which (like Sertorius) he had alwayes in his Company; the Death of whom made him so furiously revengeful, that he put all the Prisoners to the Sword: while Felsus, Ferdinand's General, successfully proceeded, and threatned Cassovia; to secure which John dispatcht away George Monachus, Peter Pere-nyi, nes, and Francis Debecus, with equal power and Commission, whom Felsius by Delayes (which begat a Discord between the Captains as Felsius the Emperor's General's Successor) so necessitated, that forced to retire, he advantageously set upon them, killing some and driving other some into the River Tybiscus, and together surprized Tokay. That he gained not Cassovia, the Peace struck up at Vaccia was the onely hinderance, whereby both Kings were to hold what they then had in possession; the Issue of John to enjoy Transylvania, Opulia, and Ratibor; the League to be Offensive and Defensive, the one's Enemies to be the others, and so contrarily, and to be obliged in the prosecution of one anothers Designs; so that the Peace with the Turk was as good as broken, or not at all regarded.

John and Ferdinand Friends.

Hereupon Ferdinand to repress the incursions of Mahomet Bassa of Belgrade (who had taken Posegum, Bocz, and Beriszlone in Sclavonia, and designing the Siege of Clissia, had erected two Castles at Salonas for obstruction of relief) sent away Peter Crasitius into Dalmatia, and Cackzianerus to Posega. Peter was so fear stricken with Amurath Verbosanus, that many of his men dyed with meer apprehension of the danger: nor did Cackzianerus come off much more gloriously, being accompanied with Lodowick Pecri, Lodronius, Albert Sliccus, Lodowick Rhatius, John Unguardius, Bakitius, and other Commanders, with

The lamentable De-feat of Cackzianerus and Lodronius

The noble Valour of Lodronius.

8000 Horse, and 16000 Foot, all which he led to Destruction. He was come as far as Valpone, and had laid Seige to Essecum, not aware that he was included betwixt Posega the Enemies Garrison, and the Danow, when Mahomet, Amurath, and Cassonus, guessing rightly that they were distressed for Victual, invented a new way of Victory without fighting. For when Cackzianerus perceived that neither the Governour of Zagrabia, nor the spoil of Herman Castle could afford a competence of victual, he resolved to retreat to Valpone, in which march the way being before laid, and passes made good against him, he was set upon by the Turks; Bakitius was killed in the Streights, others pined with hunger, were wholly consternated. Cackzianerus, Pecri, and Unguadins, as a most shameful example, first flying away; Lodronius onely stood bravely to it, and fought to the last man; the rest having no Commanders, either confused or pent up in narrow places, were slain or taken Prisoners, the Camp and the Kings great Guns falling likewise into the possession of the Enemy.

This unhappy Encounter and a designed Revolt thereupon stood Cackzianerus at the price of his Head; for with the same successe Mahomet and Amurath, took in Dubicia, Jassenocium, and Soboczia, and brought a great dread upon both Kings, besides that Solyman exasperated against Peter the cruel and feral Vaivod of Moldavia, had at the same time by his arms substi-substituted his Brother Stephen in his place, Peter being fled to Csikium in Transylvania. Here upon Ferdinand and John joyned Forces, the Germans amounting to 50, and the Hungarians to 30 thousand men; at the news whereof Solyman by Letters upbraided John with his perfidie, and Arms taken against him his Father, and so known a Benefactor; that he had aggravated his Defection by a War, and multiplied one wickednesse by another; on the other side John partly by words, and partly by gifts, endeavoured to excuse the fact, conscious to himself also of the slaughter of Griti, although not yet charged to him. He pretended that he took Arms only to assist him his patron against Peter, who n he had besieged in Csikium, and to make good this particular d d upon the surrender send him Prisoner, to pacifie Solyman, to Constantinople.

Solyman
accuseth John of perfidy & Ingrati-
tude.

His Excuse

Yet was not Moldavia thus settled, for Stephen being a like Tyrannical was destroyed by a Conspiracy, and one Alexius the Son of Elias, formerly Prince, was inducted in his place, but he out of Fear of the Turks, intending a revolt to Ferdinand, was driven out by Peter, now restored again by Solyman to his former Dignity, who being more sanguinous then before (punishing and torturing his innocent Subjects, preventionally by the direction of this Politique, that no wise Prince afflicts his People because they have, but because they should not offend) His savage Government lasted not long, being succeeded therein by Alexander.

New Troubles betwixt both Kings.

About the same time King John married Isabel Daughter of the King of Poland, but while he mancipated himself to the pleasures of her bed, Stephen Maylat, and Balassi, Governours of Dacia, quitted their Allegiance, and revolted to Ferdinand, whom notwithstanding, by the sudden assistance of Valentinus Tercock, he so quickly reduced, that they seemed to be engaged in the Plot, and the defeat of it at the same instant. He dispossessed Balassius of several Castles, but at his supplication gave him his Life; for either revenge or oblivion follow punishment, and he that spares and is merciful, shews not only his Clemency, but confirms His Dominion: He besieged also Forgarasse a Castle of Maylats, but being taken with a pain in his head, and grown frantick therewith, at a Town called Szar Sebeßum, he died suddenly, having just before solemnized the Birth-day of his onely Son John Sigismund.

The Death
of John.

Solyman
invited to be Guardian to his Son.

The civil War which had been laid by the intervention of Treaties, now by the death of one of the Treating parties broke out again; Esfecius and Verbeczius the Administrators, having recommended their Pupil to the Tutition and Guardianship of Solyman, brought forth a Banner, the Staff of Honour, and Scymitar, the Ensignes of his Investiture in the Kingdome, when they were indeed the Badges of of Slavery, and so counted and derided by other men. As to Ferdinand, he now thought it seasonable, while yet the Peace was observed, by his Ambassadors and Heraplds to try the mind of the Turk and the Queen, willing rather to reduce the Kingdom by fair means, than by blood-shed and War. But understanding that Lascus his Orator with Solyman, was by him Imprisoned, and nothing to be effected there, and that the Count of Salms was merely delayed by Isabel the Queen, he proceeded to open Hostility; Leonard Felsius his General reducing Vissegrade, Vaccia, and Pesth; but his attempt upon Buda (the discord arisen between his Germans and Hungarians, and their private Conferences with their Country-men) unluckily disapoynted. More effectual was the Eloquence of Perenyus, who being brought over to Ferdinand's side by Szegeffus his Ambassador at the Wedding of King John, where he set forth the Power and Fortune of Charles the Emperour, now carried with him Alba Regalis to the German party.

Nor was the Turk lesse active and stirring, Mahomet, Amurath, and Usref, coming in the depth of Winter to the Assistance of George Monachus (who from the King's Fire-maker or Feweller, was advanced to the highest Dignities) and Peter Petrovitius (assigned Guardians by the Testament of John to his Son Sigismund) and presently attacked Pesth; but by the Valour of Fotiscus and Speciacassius,

Buda besieged by Rogendorf.

Defeated
there.

whose vigorous Salleys the Turkish Camp could not endure, they were repelled with great Loss. This so encouraged Ferdinand that Rogendorf was sent to besiege Buda, which Monachus and his adherents had re-fortified and made good the Walls and Bulwarks with needful reparations, and now Countermined the besiegers, when Thomas Bornemisz the Provost of the Town, and Peter Palcianus proffered to deliver it to Revayus, the time and place appointed, none but Hungarians for the better concealing the Designe to be engaged in it. All things thus fairly laid, and the General cocksure of the Town, Fortune shewed him what presumption and mistrust can do in the juncture of the greatest Military Affairs: For he diffident of the Hungarians, and relying upon the constancy of the Germans, at the hour and place agreed on, clapt them into the City, who being betrayed by their Tongue, were fallen upon by those who would have been their friends in Peace; & so numbers of them slain, and the rest repulsed. Nor did their ill fortune stay here, for Mahomet and Ullumas Bassa of Eosnia, after a Naval Encounter, while he loytered before Buda, landed upon him and over-threw his Army, when Speciacassius from Pesth fell upon the Victors, and abated the dishonour of the Day by a like slaughter and terrour brought upon the Enemy, but yet so that the fame of Solyman arrogated to it self the Victory; for that Rogendorf wounded with with a Pole and flying for fear, died with grief and heartlesse; his Fleet made shift to escape, but his Land Forces were wholly lost.

Solyman was now in person again in Hungary, & as a token of his affection to the young King, presented his Mother with a Babylonish Garment, and Jewells of inestimable value, as he did her Son with Horses richly Trapped, desiring him to be brought into his Camp; which request was observed as a Command: whither being come, Valentinus Te. cock one of his prime Councillors, a man of a various and in-

Solyman
in person again in Hungary.

constant mind, was secured; the Child and the rest of his retinue was returned to his Mother. Verbeczius Authour of this Counsel of Solyman's Protection, survived not long after, but troubled in Conscience with the evil thereof, gave notable proof of his hearty repentance.

Caesses
the Q. and her Son.

In conclusion, Solyman by an Instrument conferred Transylvania, Lippa, and Temeswar, to the Queen and his Pupil; when he swore by God, Mahomet, his own Head and Sword, that he would render Buda to the Young Prince; in which City he now placed Solyman Bassa for Governour in his own Right and Title.

The Queen guided by the necessity of the Times, or afraid to dispute the businesse, accepted of the Conditions and quitted Buda, ever since remaining in the Turkish power, as the Metropolis of what they hold in Hungary, where Solyman gave Audience to the Counts of Salms, & Herbensteyn, Ferdinand's Ambassadors,

Buda put into the Turks
possession.

Solyman's insolent Demands to Ferdinand fadors, of whom he insolently demanded, that their Master should presently yeild Hungary to him as his Benefactour, and pay him a Tribute for Austria. It was bootlesse to make any reply to such a formidable Neighbour, for that the Hungarians being deceived with this ostentation and Shew of their King, and by their own means disabled from resistance, were not to be considered or relyed upon. The Policy of Solyman being herein agreeable to that of other Potentates; who to dissolve the present State, pretend the Interest of the natural and rightful Princes, not that they should Govern or have any Authority; but themselves having once gained the People by such Arts, make not nice to retain them in subjection by the extremest rigour and Violence, as having a pretended good Right by their former voluntary Compliance and addresse to their auxiliary Arms.

Aids offered Ferdinand.

The losse of Buda put all Germany into a Trepidation as apprehending the vicinity of the danger. At Spire and Ratisbone, two Aids were readily decreed; Maurice the young Duke of Saxony, offering his Service with some voluntier Troops at his own Charge and raising: Perenyus had got together Fifteen thousand Hungarians; and Paul the third, sent Three thousand Men under the Command of Medigius afterward Pope Pius the fifth, and Alexander Vitellius. Nor were Ferdinand's Forces of his own levying fewer in number;
Joachim

Joachim of Brandenburg being Constituted Generalissimo. This was in the Year of our Lord 1542. when Solyman by his Generals Ulmus, Amurath and others, timely opposed his Arms. Pesth was the first place of Encounter, which Vitellius, & Sforza Palavicinus having besieged by a Stratagem of a sudden flight thence, the Turks were brought by the ambuscadoes of Perenyus, into an inclosure. Here the Turks desperation show'd its victorious Effect, though repressed by Maurice, and the Courage of Count Nicholas Serini's Men. Pesth was hereupon reattempted, & upon the point of Surrender when the Germans failed Vitellius; and through the ill Conduct, or faint-heartedness of Joachim were upon their retreat and departure. Perenyus was at the same time secured in Neustria, as well for his present ambition upon the Crown, as his former designs of revolting to the Enemy.

This Enterprize upon Pesth, Solyman vowed to revenge; to gratifie which, his Chief Commanders resolutely took in several Towns, and among other Prisoners upon Surrender, at the delivery of Nana, Moreus the great Bandit, who to save his life renounced his Religion. Other places, particularly Valpone, bravely Defended by Michael Archius against his said Generals, he in person reduced, as he did also Quinque Ecclesie or 5 Kerchen, Socklosie, and Strigonium; although such was the presumptuous Confidence of Lascanus, and Salamanca

Solyman's Successes.

*Strigoni-
um taken.*

Alba Re-
galis yeilded to him.

two Spaniards, the Governours thereof, that they defied the joynt Force of both Emperours Armies, if engaged against the Town; but their brag and vapour was well recompensed by Solyman, who kept his word of quarter for Life, no more than they did their duty and Courage. Tata was next taken, and Alba Regalis, a very Defensible place, as standing in a Morasse, and sacred for the Sepultures of the Kings of Hungary, which should have spirited the Garrison; but by the Death of Varrocins the Governour and the firing of the Suburbs, which against his advice were left standing to the Enemies advantage, it came by storm & the pressing of the Turks upon the Christians flying out of the said Suburbs into the City, into his hands: Most of the Souldiers escaped over the Bogs: to the Burghers he shewed himself a fair and benign Conquerour:; while Ferdinand was employed among the Marcomanni in raising of new Levies, a too late remedy to the bad estate of his Affairs.

Visigrade
taken.

And as if this had been the destined period of the Kingdome, Mahomet Jahiogli the Bassa of Buda, and Ussan of Strigonium, having distressed Visigrade for want of water, took in that town with many other places, which tired out with the Calamity of the War, received the Turkish Yoke, as did several places in Illyria from Mlamas enforced by the same Bassa, and the rather for that Ferdinand had displaced Peter Keglevitius the Governour. In whose room

room Count Serini was deputed as Bildensteyn for Styria, both of whom at the Plain of Selnicia mee ing with the Van of the Turks, had terms of a Truce offered them, and agreed; but Ulmus coming in the very Juncture, the Enemy took heart and treacherously Engaged them. Serini fled to Conscha, Bildensteyn in danger of drowning in his flight, was preserved by the Gallantry and Valour of Stephen Balletitius. This Losse was recompensed by the Defeat of the Garrison Forces of Strigonium, under Cufates and Nasuff their Colonels, who having taken Leva (the Castle being yet notably maintained by Melchior Balassi) in the arrogance of their Victory were set upon by Nyari and put to the slaughter, a number of Captives being thereby also redeemed out of their hands.

Count Serini defeated by Ulmus.

Yet by this never so unequal Ballance of affairs, did Ferdinand obtain a Peace of Solyman, being intent upon a more unjust design, byassed thereto by the Court of Rome: For he was now Famous for the Smalchaldick war, which he managed with great renown to his Vertues, by which he highly obliged those persons that suffered by the Council of Trent's peremptory Decrees, and had no open or avowed patron, but Maurice the Elector of Saxony. That War ended, Ferdinand held an Assembly of the States at Tyrnaw, memorable for no other thing then the prosecution of two Noble Out-lawes, who had licensed to them-

A Peace procured Ferdinand themselves a power and Authority of Mischief by fortifying of Advantageous places; their Names were Matthias Baso, who was taken at Muranum by the Count of Salms (who built the Fortresse of Szolnoc) and beheaded, and Balassi his Son in law, who escaped into Transylvania.

George
Monachus
his designs

And thither the next story leads us, for George Monachus, the raised Favourite of K. John perceiving how inconsiderable the Queens and her Sons Interest was like to prove in that pent and precarious Principality, had privily ingratiated himself with Ferdinand, renouncing his Master to the Count of Salms, and abjuring the Turk before Andrew Bathori at Opulia, a greater Infidel & more perfidious himself.

The Queen and Petrovitius his Colleague were not ignorant of these his practises, but could not remedy them; she therefore designed a Journey into Poland, which George put by; but hasty of his Enterprize, seized the Treasury and plundered it, and forced away the Queen from Cibinium, having Colloqued the Siculi and Saxons to be of his party. To the Nobles opposing themselves against this upstart, as a person of a most sordid Extraction, Mahomet Bassa joyned his Troops; but he and his Confederates were soon vanquished, and George thereby made Paramount in the Government, when by a temporary Peace he settled all things in Statu quo; but diffiding and conscious of his demerits towards his Papal Prince, made an Agreement with Ferdinand, who thereby drew a War upon himself, greater than the advantage of his present Acquist.

George was hereupon presently assisted by Job. Isabel the Baptista Castaldus, Famous in the German war; Bathori the future Vaivod, Sirotinius, and Nadafdi, and took in Alba, but restored the Q. her Treasure and rich movables, whom Szasz Sebeffius advised to quit the Crown and Transylvania, and to accept of Opulia and an Hundred thousand Guilders in name of a dower; which the Queen not daring to refuse, neither having command of her Person, her mind, or her Kingdome, consented to; and so the Regal Ensigns were by her delivered to Castaldus, while Petrovitius yeilded Temeswar, Lippa, and other Towns, to the same prevailing Enemy.

Isabel the Q. resigns her right and Interest.

Solyman enraged at these proceedings, imprisoned Ferdinands Ambassadour at Constantinople, and sent away an Army under Mahomet, Beglerbeg of Romania, Ulamas, Achomet and Cassonus into Transylvania, with orders to reinstate the Queen and her Son, but under colour of their assistance to reduce the Kingdome and that Province to his own obedience, who without any considerable opposition took in most of the Towns between Temesus and Mariusius, while George and Castaldus with other Commanders, kept their posts about Varadin and those parts, although not inferiour to the enemy, by which means Lippa through the incon-Solyman's resentment of these proceedings.

The fatal
End of George.

inconstancy of the Citizens, came into the Turkish possession, Ulumas being placed Governour there : Temeswar was likewise attempted but valiantly defended, for that George beseiged Lippa, and St. Demetrius day was at hand, beyond which usually the Janizaries will not continue in the feild. At Lippa a Cardinals hat procured by Ferdinand was presented to George, who by distressing Ulumas for Provision, and repressing his Salleys, had brought him to a Surrender, upon terms of free departure, which Castaldus dissented from, grudging that George should arrogate the supreme Command to himself : Neverthelless Ulumas having had some private conference with George was dismiss with those terms, whom Balassi and Horvar contrary to Articles set upon in his way, but so ineffectually that Ulumas made shift to bring his broken forces to Adrianople to the provocation of Solyman, whom George would by no means have so incensed : and hence Castaldus weary of a competitor took occasion to inject suspicions into the head of Ferdinand, that George held intelligence with the Turk, for which reason it was concluded between them that he should be removed. To effect which, Sforza Palavicinus Andreas Lopez, Marcus Ferrarus, with other Spaniards were appointed, Marcus in the morning twilight, (as George quartered at Alwinz where he was underwriting some Petitions of his Souldiers) rushing into his Chamber, ran him him through, when Sforza with ten others seconded that wound, and with the points and edges of their swords made an end of him, crying upon the name of Christ: a deserved end for the betrayer and deserter of his Prince and Pupill, from whose Father he had received such benefits, although the Assassins themselves came after to very untimely ends. Pope Julius heard this Fact with very great indignation, although palliated with his defection, &c. nor would admit of those excuses, nor be pacified with bribes, made and issued from that estate which George had left, and of which the Assassins were possessed.

The Turk being in a readinesse for a War, Michael Toth imparted a design upon Segedine to Castaldus, who warned all the Governours thereabouts to be assistant to the Enterprize, which succeeded with good effect, the Town being taken, and the Castle standing upon its last defence by the resolution of Hederbeg the Governour, when the Hayducks drunk with the excellent Wines of Syrmia and Baronya with which the Town abounded, were in their drunkenesse surprized by notice given to Haly Bassa of Buda, by a Pidgeon sent from Heder, and all the Heyducks put to the Sword, the Chief Commanders who did all they could to prevent that excesse (among whom was Aldana Governour of Lippa, and Berezus) hereby escaping, in lieu of whom the Turks light upon another party under Nagy and Tercock, ignorant

The attempt of the Hungarians upon Segedine.

1553.

Vesprinium yeilded
to the Turks.

rant of what had happened, and captivated them all, as they further enlarged this successe by the taking of Vesprinium, delivered by Michael Ferrens (the chief Governour Peteone being excluded by him) after a mutiny of the Garrison caused by his covetousnesse.

Their further successes.

At the same time Elias (Son of Peter) Vayvod of Moldavia by these Alps, invaded Hungary, and falling into the richest and luxuriant parts of the Country, was packing up a very great spoil, when Banfius and other Noblemen surprized him, and stripped him of his booty. But a greater danger was feared from Achomet, who took Temeswar, Lozoncius after a forward defence, by the discord of the Germans, being forced to yeild it upon terms, which in remembrance of that perfidy used towards Ulmus were not at all regarded, and the Garrison put to the Sword. Twenty several other places were either taken or yeilded, which had been formerly in their possession, and all the tract of ground between Temesus and Chrysus Niger, reduced to their obedience. Lippa also, although Aldana the Governour had boasted of the strength of the place, and his own resolution, was out of fear fired by himself, for which he had lost his head, but for the intercession of Mary the Empresse. Dregeum was also taken, though so nobly defended by Sondius, that they gave his dead body most honourable Sepulchre. Not to mention many other places, among the rest Salgon, by a stratagem of a great Log from the next hill, which the Garrison were made believe for a great Gun, so that it was with the Turks the same thing to come and to Conquer.
the

At length Erasmus Theuffelus and Sforza Pallavicinus newly returned out of Italy with 10000. men, opposed themselves to this Torrent, but by their hastinesse and impatience in not staying for the Nobility at Fileek, and all the Elements conspiring their Ruin (their Powder and Ammunition being blown up at Palastus) they were beaten out of their Camp, and both Generalls taken prisoners, Theuffelus denying himself was sowed in a sack and drowned afterwards in the Thracian Bosphorus, and Sforza ransomed with 15000. Crowns, the other captives being set at so cheap a rate, that a German was sold for a Peck of Barley. Szolrock was next attacked by Haly and Achomet, and notwithstanding either the promises or Threats of Laurentius Nyari delivered to them by the faint hearted Garrison. Thence the Enemy with a hundred and twenty five Thousand men came before Agria, wherein were Governours Dobo and Neskeyus, who had in vain implored aid and supplies from the Emperour, assisted by some Noblemen and 2000. Souldiers. It was a sharp and daring Seige of both sides, the Defendants in a bravery opening the Bolikian Gate and there after a fierce encounter slaying 3000. Turks, which courage of theirs so disheartned Achomet that having lost 12000. great shot against the Town he broke up from before it, Duke Maurice Theuffelus and Pallavicinus defeated.

Agria nobly defended by Dobo and Neskeyus.

Ferdinands General having spent a whole summer in his Station near Raab, without any thing of moment effected against the Enemy. The Messengers of this successe at Agria were richly rewarded, and Dobo made Prefect of Transylvania, Nekeffius by an untimely and ungratefull accident was killed in a rustick Tumult by an Axe.

1555.

Count Sc-
rini his Successes.

Ferdinand notwithstanding more afraid of fortune then desirous of Conquest, preferred Peace, to which purpose he commissioned Antony Veranczius, and Francis Zayus to the Port, by whose means Malvezius the former Ambassadour was set at liberty, but he survived it not long, dying in his journey back again thither with a new Commission. In his place Angerius Gisleinius Busbequius was substituted, but nothing more then a truce of six months could be obtained. The War being therefore continued, it was the good fortune as the valour of Count Nicholas Serinus (Zrynyi by the Hungarians) to defeat Ulumas and Amurath of Clissa by Toploczia, who bearing up from this discomfiture plundered and spoiled several Towns at their retreat; while Hameza the Governour of Sczeserinum by a surprize gained Filek.

Busbequius was now returned re infecta from Constantinople, without that Ferdinand would relinquish Transylvania; and Alys a Chiaux being sent to Bathori the Vayvod, commanded him to expell the Germans, a new Prince of Hungary to be chosen, or the Queen restored;
to

to which demands Bathori by the connivence of Castaldus answered by the promise of a Tribute in the name of the States, but for their wresting places out of the hands of those that had them in possession it was not in their power. Hereupon Aly Bassa formerly Governour of Buda, but now prime Vizier, beseiged Sigeth most nobly even to admiration defended by Stansitius, and preserved by a diversion given the Enemy by the Palatine Nadasdi who beseiged some Towns of the Enemy which Toygon of Buda had taken from the Heyducks, Enemies to both parties.

Aly thus necessitated to rise from Zigeth passed the Rinnia and came to meet Nadasdi, but by the valour of Serini and Polbaylerus and the Auxiliary's of Telekessius and Ruberius, and which is the main, the prudence and conduct of the Generall, he was totally routed: when the Palatine suspecting reinforcement of the Enemy or contenting himself with the rescue of Zigeth, returned to Chorgond, where he joyned his forces with young Ferdinand, who had obtained leave of his Father to make Tryall of his first Arms in this War. The fame hereof bred so great terrour among the Turks, it being also rumoured that the Christians overspread the whole plain, that Aly Bassa was preparing for a flight, having with all earnestnesse summoned Mahomet the Beglerbeg of Romania to his assistance, but when upon Nadasdi's retreat, it was conceived that he fled, Aly returned to his

Aly the Bassa of Buda Defeated.

1556.

Seige of Zigeth, but with worse fortune; losing 10 Thousand men in the Trenches, the fruit of his vain contempt of the Christians. His departure young Ferdinand by the advice of Nadasdi suffered without any molestation, employing his Army to the reduction of Corone, and afterwards burnt down Graco galla, St. Martins and many other places, in which the avarice of the Germans was so prodigious, that they searched the very entrails of their Enemy's for Gold, which they supposed they might have swallowed.

Dissentions
in Tran-
sylvania between the Gover-nours.

But affairs went not on so prosperously in Transylvania, by reason of the misunderstanding between Dobo and Kendius the Governours thereof, (for Castaldus either foreseeing the mischief or being called away by Charles the first had quitted that Command) Dobo was constant to the King, Kendi inclined to Isabel and out of that respect and fear of the Turks power alwayes impending, with a great party publickly rebelled, and called in the Queen (who pretended to be unsatisfied of her agreement made with Ferdinand) out of Poland, as he did likewise move Solyman for assistance who, commanded Cassonus and the Vayvod of Moldavia to that service; but such was the diligence of Dobo and his Partisans Tahy and Zaberdini that the Confederates were glad to sue for a 15. dayes truce at the expiration whereof upon pardon they rendred themselves: but their Inconstancy upon the next advantage, under new pretences pretences engaged them in the same designs; for upon the departure of the Imperial forces, Kendi and Balassi call in the Queen, and now their businesse was ripe for Execution: for Huztum was at last yeilded to Andrew Bathory, as Varadinum at the Command of Ferdinand, being wearied out with these Troubles, with Tockay by the revolt of Francis Nemeth to Isabel, were likewise delivered; And now the rebellion was so far spread, that it was high time for Ferdinand to apply some excellent hand to the Government, but the persons he named to it, proved very insufficient by their personall evils. During this dispute it proved Dobo's hard fortune, when things were past remedy, to be seized (at such time as he had news of his brothers captivity by the Turks, as calamity seldome comes alone) by Perenyi, with whom he had a controversie about the Dignity of the Crown keeper, in which restraint he was hardly used, to a very just but most envious imputation upon the faith of Isabel, who had engaged for his Liberty. These losses were a little alleviated by the good conduct of Emerius Telekessius deputed in the place of Puchamus the former Governour, who reduced many places, and maintained others against Isabel standing near the Tibiscus, but all was to no other effect then by those struglings to strengthen the common Enemy against their Country.

For though the Enemies Effort in this juncture was distant as far as Illyria, yet had 1560.

it the better and facile execution, and although revenged at last by Erdædius the Successour of Serini to the Government; yet did it not any whit allay those Feuds at home, whereby Tata was gained by Hameza by stratagem, and Komora, and Austria exposed to their Armes. The Princes of Germany were therefore prayed to assist Ferdinand, who agreed to a double aid, the levying of Forty eight thousand Men, who by the Turks cunning mention of a Peace presently to be concluded, squandred away a whole Summers time in their Quarters, at Raab to the great burden of those whom they came to releive, and did nothing worthy the noise of the very preparation.

The Queens
administration in Transyl-
vania.

Transylvania altogether as unhappy, now groaned under the oppression of its own Princess. Bebecus her great Friend and Counsellor was now delegated to Solyman at Constantinople, by whom he was favourably received, and honoured with the Title of Governour; and the Moldavian, and Valachian Vayvods subjected to him; by which his Power became suspect to the Queen, as upon this account also, for that Petrovitius and others, would have the young Prince conveyed to Varadin an University (Cambray the French Ambassador urging the motion) for that it would be dangerous to breed him to the Distaff, lest Effeminacy and Luxury should corrupt his manners. Hereupon the Queen troubled, consulted with Nisovius a Polonian, to put the Noble men to death, death, which was agreed on : Petrovitius escaped a violent (by hasting to a sudden and natural) end , having named the Queen and her Son, his Heirs. But Bebecus, Francis, and Antonius Kendy, who had stickled so much for her Interest and party , payed for their fondness with the losse of their lives, their Executioners being prepared by Balassius, who for this Service was invested with the Supreme Power of the Army ; so sad and Calamitous was the face and State of this Principality.

She puts sundry Noblemen of her party to death.

Soon after died Isabel, & Job. Sigism. her Son endeavoured the procuring of a Peace , but his Ambassadors taunting oration, wherein they said that the King of Hungary, meaning John, desired but the Bounds of the River Tibiscus, (denoting no more then Transylvania) frustrated that impertinent solicitation ; and in the meanwhile Balassius (who in divers Encounters had received some brushes from Telekessius, and had incurred the hatred of Transylvania) with the money received for the payment of the Army, ran away to Cesar, bringing over with him Sacmar, Rivulinum, and other Towns ; with the person and Interests of Nicholas Bathori. John made Complaints of this to the Port, that Peace was pretended while War was prosecuted ; but by the Sagacity and diligence of Busbequius his Adresse and Intrigues was dismissed without remedy. Not to mention the War in Moldavia betwixt Jacob Heraclides, Alexander, Visnovecsius, and Thomsa, Competitors

The Death
of Q. Isabel.

petitors for that Vayvodship, wherein both John, and Ferdinand, and Solyman were Concerned, for that it would be too large a Digression.

John Sigismund
worsted in Transylvania.

The Affairs of John grew worse and worse, for that Solyman had consented to an Eight years Truce, after almost as many years solicitation. Stephen Bathori yet stuck firm to his part, with Francis Nemethi, who now joyntly Besieged Hadad, the Town belonging to one Sulyoccus, a Noble man designing the part of Ferdinand; Zajus and Balassi came to the releif of it, when Bathori advised against any Encounter; but Nemethi disdaining the name of a Coward would needs perswade him; though to the losse of the whole Army, 24 Great Guns, with a Camp excellently stored, and fifty three Ensigns, being taken from the Transylvanians: The subjects whereof awaiting the Event of this Battel took advice of Fortune. The whole Province was now in trepidation, and their security designed in Poland, whither John Sigismund was upon his departure, had not Christopher Bathori comforted him with the hopes of the Turks Assistance, by whom he might one day gain Hungary also.

Accordingly Ibrahim Bassa of Buda, and Malchoczius of Temeswar, came with Forces and freed Nemethum of the siege, but not from the fire which the South Wind blew crosse the water to the other part of the Town. At the same time Zajus having carried away all the spoil spoil and what was worth any thing set fire to Zacmar which neverthelesse defended it self against the Turks by the obstinacy of Balassi shut up therein ; whose Brother John coming to his releif with a Thousand Men, Hasanes Beg so suddenly routed, as putting his hopes of carrying the Town in this Exploit, that of the one side it would have been judged there were no other than Beasts, as on the other side none but Men. Not to passe by the Insolence of Arslanes Governour of Posega in Illyria for the Turks, who having plundered all about Mono- Arslanes z lone, had now pitch'd his silk and Golden Tents defeated by under the soft murmur of the Confluents, & as if Count Se- the Enemy were to be Vanquished by his plea- rini.

sures, was now diverting himself in all manner of Luxury, when Serini and Tabi fell upon him, and without any difficulty took his Tent furnished rather for Entertainment than Fight, and divided it among their Souldiers.

So that this civil Conflagration, and the intermedling of the Turks, had already ruined the People ; in the Feilds was vastitude, in the Camp want and penury, and the minds of men by their habitude to War, brutalized and transformed into Savage Principles. A Peace therefore as the only and last remedy to this perishing State, was procured by Busbequius, at the rate of the yearly Tribute of Thirty thousand pound : while Ferdinand caused his Son Maximilian to be Crowned King of Bohemia, and Elected Emperour, to confirm that Dignity

The calamitous condition of Transylvania and Hungary.

1562.

The death
of Ferdinand.

Maximili-
an succeeds in the King dome to his Father
Ferdinand

Dignity in his Family, as he did of Hungary likewise; the vanity of which Solemnity Ibrahim Solyman's Ambassador beheld and derided, as a Prince Vassaliz'd and engaged to his Master and deprived of so much of his Dominions, although the Pomp was no way equal to the former Triumphs on that occasion. At this Inauguration the Hungarians were highly discontented that a Palatine was not first Created according to Custome, and that the Germans were not dismissed out of the Kingdome but in vain: as was also the neer Conclusion of a Peace by the Embassy of Stephen Bathori from John to Ferdinand, the young man being perswaded by bad Council, to continue the War in Transylvania, the issue whereof was very unprosperous. And now died Ferdinand of a Consumptive Feaver. A Prince of a very singular Modesty, Justice, and tenderneffe, having rescinded all the Edicts of Charles the fifth, against the Protestants, and decreed to them Liberty of Conscience. His unhappinesse in war was rather imputable to the vast Power of his Enemies and the inconstancy of his own Subjects, than his own insufficiencies, the lesse observable, from the vertues and Imperial Endowments of his Son and Successour Maximilian in his Kingdomes and the German Empire, which he adorned with his Justice and constant tenour of life as much as any of his Predecessors in that Dignity.

Nor was he lesse studious of the Peace and Tran-

Tranquility of his Realms, agreeing to the continuation of it at the instance of Sabannus the Envoy of Solyman intent upon another War; but John disturbed this serenity by his Arms in Transylvania, Stephen Bathori alluring the Zacmarians to his side, while he himself recovered Hadad, Bathor, and St. Martin and forced other places to Condition for a Truce of sixty dayes, as Zayus and Balassius being too weak to encounter him were multering at Cassovia, where they had been surprized and Supprest by John, but for a storm of rain which hindred any possibility of marching, and sunk his Carriages. 1564.

Maximilian being informed of his Power, Maximilian dispatcht away Lazrus Suendius and Andrew an's Successes in Bathori to oppose him, Valuing the Reputation of his first Enterprize as of great moment Transylvania. And at the same time sent Ambassadors with presents to Solyman. Suendius by the advantage of the Ice, took Toacky 1565. surrounded like a Peninsula, by the Confluence of the Tybiscus and Bodrogh; Sacmar submitted it self as Erdædium yeilded; the like did Szerenczium, and Rivulinum to Balassius, for that no releif was to be had from the Turks, Solyman being engaged by Sea at the Seige of Malta, with a Fleet of 205 Sail. In fine by the humble Instances of Bathori Somlianus and Nisovius, Suendius, was intreated to a Peace, but with very hard Conditions. John to content himself with the County of Bihor, and to quit his pretences to the Regal Title, and concluded between John and Maximili-

A Peace
an.

to yeild Munkacksum and Marmorussa. In Sclavonia, Mustapha the Bassa of Bosnia, having taken Crupa in fight, and to the ignominy of Anspergerus, who dared not to Encounter him, proceeded and stormed Novia, and was thence prosecuting his Fortune with Fifteen thousand Men, when Petrus Erdadius but with Fifteen hundred so lustily accosted him, that he put him to the Rout, and slew the Turks like so many sheep.

New troubles
in Transylvania by
the Turks.

Nor did the Peace in Hungary stand firm and inviolable, for Hidajetes a new Envoy or Chiaux Solymán, had demanded Tockay to be restored to John, by which encouragement Bekeffius and George Bebecus (the Son of him that was put to death by Isabel, who flying to Ferdinand was intercepted by the Turks, and begged of Solymán by John, whom as his Benefactor he was obliged to serve) confer Counsels and contrive a War; so that the Conclusion made between Suendius, Somlianus, and Cracianerus of Poland (who negotiated the accommodation by his Kings order) although ratified, took not its Effect: Somlianus (for his prevarication with John) in that Treaty, being committed to Custody. The War being commenced, the Bassa of Buda, and Hasan Beg of Fueleck, assisted the Transylvanian, who recovered Jeneon, Desvium, Vilagosvarum, Pancota, and lastly, after a difficult siege, the strong Town of Zacmar; upon the Surrender whereof, Hasanes enraged for the losse of

Curtius

Curtus his Major slain during the Seige, commanded the Garrison to be put the Sword, after Articles of Life and Liberty. Swendius although equal to the Enemy yet delayed engagement, proffered by Hafanes, knowing a new Treaty was managed at Vienna, which new stated the Agreement, viz. John to have all places taken from him restored, and to be honoured with some present from the Empe-Composed again.

But Cesar forbearing the the restitution of Tockay, and lingering in other points to be performed on his part, Solyman now 80 years old, undertook his last Expedition into Hun- Solymans last Expedition into Hungary.
gary, and when dissuaded thereto by Albert Vicius, and Hofzutothius, Maximilian's Ambassadors, alleadging there was no mischief intended by their Masters delay, he answered in a juvenile heat, That the End of his Life was measured out to him, not by his length of Years, but the Extent of Dominion. He was now arrived at Belgrade (where the news of the Defeat of Arslanes and his dislodgement from the Siege of Palotta by Thurn, met him) and there gave reception to John Sigismund, having fetcht him from the other side of the Danow in his own Barge, and presented him with a stately Horse, richly set out, on which he was brought through his Guard of Fanizaries to his own person; Sigismund himself had the Honour of his right hand joyned with his, the rest of his Train kissed Soly-
 His enter-view with John Sigismund.
 man's

John requests Buda to be delivered to him but in vain.

man's knee or the hem of his Vest. After some discourse and thanks rendred for his many Kindnesses, and his Aid and assistance anew implored against the Germans, he drew out a Petitionary paper containing the Oath that Solyman had took concerning the redelivery of Buda, betwixt hope and fear of what would ensue such an Addresse. But such was the generous freedome and clearnesse of Solyman's nature, that to rid him of the anxiety he presently Commanded his Vizier Mahomet to conforme in all things with the desire and request of his Beneficiary. But Mahomet taxing the Ingratitude of John, upbraiding him with his own tendernesse, as having been more a Father to him than Solyman, and taking it in scorn that he should keep equal State with him before Company, so wrought upon Solyman by setting before him how many Musselmens lives his Quarrel and that Place had cost him; and that it was against the Law of Mahomet to yeild it to the Christians; that not onely the City was not rendred to him, but he dismist with a prohibition of any further speech or sight of the Grand Seignieur. At the same time Portau Bassa took Gyula which Ladislaus Kereczsenius for a while resolutely Defended; but being corrupted by the Enemy against the advice and intimation given him of the necessity of the Turks departure, by Stephen Bathori, delivered it upon terms, which the perfidious Enemy observed not, how ever by the favour of the Night,

Gyula betrayed to
the Turks
by the Governour Kerecs-nius.

Night, and the Reeds growing thereabouts, some few escaped. He himself, as a just reward for his Treason, was by the Command of the Sultan, rolled down a Hill in a Barrel stuck full with Nails.

Whose first attack was upon the Town of Sigeth, wherein was Governour Count Nicholas Serini, with Two thousand five hundred Men; an incompetent number to the Defence of the place, which diverted the storm from Agria (at a Town neer to which called Soklos the Bassa of Bosnia had been slain) upon it self. All Military Experiments were practised in this Seige, the continual discharge of the Cannons so rarefying the Air, that the noyse of the Leagure was heard as far as Canisa. Aly Portan the General of the Ordinance doing the part of a valourous and skilful Commander, as well by diverting the Course of the River, as bringing his Men in person to the breaches. Nor was Serini lesse active and Couragious filling the Grafts with the slaughtered Carcasses of the Enemy; from the shame whereof arose Indignation and resentment of their losse, by which both Towns the old and the new were taken and Sacked. Aly Portan surviving not that Effort, committed the prosecution of the Castle to Seysedin Bassa now destitute of provision and wanting men the few Defendants being tired out with constant duty. Three dayes before the Castle fell into the hands of the Turk died Solyman, labouring with an anxious

N

Expectation

Count Nicholas Se-rini besieged in Sigeth.

1566.

Solyman
in the 47.
year of his Reign
dieth at Quinque
Ecclesiaz
three dayes before the surrender of Sigeth.

*Zigeth taken.
The Death
of the Noble Count Serini.*

Expectation of its reduction, and wearied with old Age, made more irksome by a pain in his Leg and accelerated by the Flux. His Death was concealed by the Policy of Mahmet, until Selym his Son should be seated in the Imperial Throne, and several menacing Edicts faintly given out to make the Turks desperate in the next Assault; when Serini being disabled to hold out longer, opening the Gates and encouraging his Souldiers to die with him (having put on a rich Sute with a Hundred peices of Gold in his Pocket, the reward of him that should kill him) sallied out with fury upon the Enemy, and died nobly revenged in the midst of them, having slain during the Siege no lesse than Twenty some say Thirty thousand men. The Head of this Famous person, was made a publique spectacle one whole day; and the next by Mustapha Bassa of Buda sent to the Count of Salms, and interred at Csaktornya, but by the Imperial Army in veneration of his great and admirable Actions solemnly attended to Abdua, and there deposited.

*John Sigismund
aided with an Army of Tartars.*

The said Army, consisting with the aydes of the Empire, of 25 Thousand Horse, and 80 Thousand Foot, paid chiefly with the money of Pope Pius the 5th. lay encamped about Raab (where a sad Fire happened about this time) not offering to stir to the relief of Sigeth, nor to the suppression of John Sigismund who aided with a great body of Tartars (his own Army amounting to 15000 men) had ruined the Territories of of Patach Munkacs, and Bereckshez, sparing neither age nor Sex. Fockay was defended against him by the valour of Jacob Ranuger, and Matthias Caluasius; the same Tartars continued this their ravage of both sides the Tibiscus to the County of Bodroch and Samosch, intending the like upon Bihor, to such a desolation of the Country, that John afflicted with the sight of it, when he could neither regain the Captives nor persuade them to desist their cruelty, near to Debreczinum gave them battel, and victoriously freed his people of these Locusts and Destroyers; as, while Maximilian retired to Vienna having fortified Canisa, and thereafter disbanded his Army, Mahomet took in Babozza, and with the honour of the Campania retired to Belgrade, having met Selymus, in his return, at Valkovar, who followed his Fathers Corps (meanly attended in sign of humane frailty) to Constantinople, where it was interred in a most magnificent Mosque built by himself in his life time.

Their cruel
rapine makes him engage and vanquish
them.

The War in Transylvania was yet maintained betwixt Maximilian and John by their Generals Swendius, and Bebecus, who being inferiour in strength to Swendius thought by pretences of his Revolt to the Emperour to gain time, but the sagacity of Swendius disappointed his Plot, several Towns being taken from John by Seige during this Intrigue which we may not here enumerate; John therefore joyned his Army with Hasan Bassa of Temeswar, who turned

Various successes in Transyl-
vania.

the Scale of fortune and retook as many places, but in the midst of this successfull progeffe he was violently afflicted with an arthritical distemper, which like a Civil war in his Microcosme superseded his bent to the prosecution of his Quarrel: nor did Hasan at his departure meet with better luck at his arrival at Dedestla, in the plunder whereof, his powder took fire and blew up 400 Turks into the Air: by this means all parties were willing to a composure, which Cesar (the equallest esteemer of fortune, as preferring the commendation of his humanity, before the pleasure of revenge) had by his Ambassadors Veranczius and Tieffenbach effected at the Port, Selym being intent upon the Conquest of Cyprus.

Sigismund's foul Practises.

1567.

It was now the year 1567. when this outward peace was blemished with a foul and most nefarious design against the life of Maximilian, with the seizure of Hungary, by Dobo and Balassius (men highly obliged to him, and who had done him also many signal services) at the instigation of John Sigismund but motioned to them by George Boscay. It was discovered by George Rakoczi, and Ruberus by the divine peculiar protection of Kings: of this Treason they were both by a publick Solemn Tryal convicted and left to the disposall of Cesar, who (although Balassius broke prison and incited the Turks to new troubles, adding wickednesse to wickednesse) pardoned them both with admirable clemency. So that neither way of open War, nor

nor close Treachery advantaging John, he ran into an extreme hardly supposable, clapping up an offensive and defensive league against the Turk, and to be managed as Cesar should upon occasion direct, thereby renouncing to the friendship protection and favour he had received all along from the Ottoman Family, which caused 1570. divers discourses and reflections upon him, (but to be a Christian or not a Christian is of no concernment to the Law of Nations) although Maximilian at the same time being urged by the Venetians and the Pope to joyn with them in their league a while before the battel of Le-panto (when the Turk lost 250 Sail of Ships and Galleys, and 25000 men, Uluzales dexterously escaping with 30, and afterwards by his Fabian delayes, restored their naval power) most religiously refused.

By this Peace it was concluded that John The Peace should enjoy with the Title of most Serene Prince of Transylvania, the Provinces of Bihor, Carasna, Marmarosse, and the exteriour Szolnoc, Maximilian and Sigismund to have the same friends and enemies with Cesar, Selymus to be held in amity, and this Treaty to be concealed; but if it should happen that John should be expelled by the Turks out of Transylvania, he should then be invested in Opulia; all former differences to be put in Oblivion and himself to be under the Clientele of Maximilian.

With the confirmation hereof Bekeffius was sent to the Emperour, where understanding by

The death
of Sigismund.

1571.

Bekeffius
his ambitious designes upon the succession, but conferred on Stephen Bathori.

Blandrata that John could not live long, he designed the Government to himself, delaying the ratification by pretences of his indisposition and grief (and thereby his incapacity) for the languishing condition of his Prince; who being a Batchelor, and disappointed of the marriage of Joan Daughter of Albert of Bavaria, added that grief to his other distempers; which having horribly tortured him 54 dayes together brought him to his death at Georgyen, and was the last accumulation of the ruines of this Family. A man of a sharp and quick spirit, but infected with the Company of sordid and base people of both Sexes, and thereby prone to all vices, but of all those his contempt of Religion, was the greatest and most notorious.

By his death Bekeffius took courage to pursue his ambitious designs, relying on the Turk, and his interest in the Souldiery, but Selymus with the good liking of Cesar also, having preferred Stephen Bathori, a man famous both for war and peace to that Principality; Bekeffius mad with rage and shame, that he should be deceived in the opinion he cherished of the Souldiery (which he had boasted abroad) who concurred with Fortune against him, posted to Fogarasse and there laid up and secured John's Treasure, endeavouring all wayes and means to raise Enemies against Stephen; but the troubles of Moldavia by another change of their Vayvods deferred the publick eruption of the intended hostility lity, in which interval happened this Phanatick Story.

One Gregory Carachondius of Rivulinum, 1572. Surnamed Black from the event of his exploit, under the specious vail of sanctity and pretence of revelations had inveigled the vulgar in the head that God would by him expell the Turks out of Hungary, hereupon having collected a rabble of 5000 men, (who admired him not only for his spirit of Prophecie, but his strength of Arm, by which he would streighten a Horse-shoe) he marched to the Seige of Miklosum, where he said it was revealed him that either the Walls would fall down of themselves, or the Turks be burnt by Fire from heaven, which the Turks counterfeiting by setting Fire to bundles of straw and reeds about the Castle, these mad Fellowes took it for fulfilling of his prediction, but when they perceived near at hand, that the Walls and Castle stood, they drew off very melancholly, and were in that mood set upon by Sazvares Governour of Szolnoc and miserably slaughtered: notwithstanding their Captain would not desist, but pretending this losse to have happened for their sins, he laid Seige to Zolnoc, where he was disappointed in the same manner; from thence to Debreczinum where for contempt of his authority, he commanded the Mayor to be hanged, but a Tumult preventing the Execution, he was taken by the multitude and his Head chopt off, and shewed for a spectacle of whimsicall ambition. Yet was

A Phanaticke story in
Hungary.

even this wild fellowes death (such the madnesse of the infected herd) endeavoured to be revenged though after a short politique connivence suppressed by Nicholas Bathori.

1574.

The same
acted in Illyria.

The like Scene almost was acted in Illyria by the Boors there, who rebelled against the Nobility and Gentry, who had held them indeed in very hard servitude; their number was Ten Thousand, who proclaimed one Matthew Genbecz for the King, and unmercifully handled their former Masters, tearing like Dogs those that resisted them. But 800 men easily routed them. And their K. being taken, had his flesh pulled off with burning Pincers, and a red hot Iron Crown put upon his head, expiating by that regall embleme his affront to the Regall Dignity.

The seeds of new troubles in
Hungary.

Maximilian was now intent upon gaining the good will and favour of the Estates towards the settling his Family in the Supreme Power, having in his own fight caused his Son Rudolph to be crowned King at Presburgh, notwithstanding that the Burghers generally grudged that the *German*s were not removed out of the Kingdome, nor a Palatine created according to custome, besides that their liberties were infringed, &c. which inflamed at last into Tumults and uproars.

As also in Transyl-
vania.

Nor was Stephen Bathori's Government quiet or composed, for Bekeffius neither reducible by his menacing edicts, nor the intreaties and persuasions of the Nobility, was now beseiged in Fogarasse, which being ill manned, he privately upon

upon a swift Asian horse escaped to Cesar, the Castle was after delivered by Paul Giula afterwards Secretary to Stephen, and with it all the Treasure Bekeffius had hoarded, Fortune and Prudence deserting him together, for while he coveted Titles beyond his reach, he lost an ample estate, in his power to have preserved it. Bekeffius ruined. 1574.

Amurath the 3d. Succeeded Selymus in the Ottoman Throne, having seen five of his Brothers strangled in his presence, but more humanely inclined to a Peace with Christendom, as being by Dream admonished to a War against the Heretique Persians. This Tranquility stirs in Poland succeeded; for Charles the ninth of France, dying, his Brother Henry newly made King of Poland, withdrew suddenly thence, and left the Poles in an Interregnum and vacancy, as after they decreed at Warsaw, but could not agree about the Successor. The Competitors were Cesar, John of Sweden, and Ivan Vasilowich Duke of Mosco, for as yet Stephen Bathori minded not the matter, thinking it above his reach; but Samuel Sborovius then in Exile in Transylvania, for the slaughter of Vapovius Castellan of Primislaw, having every where proclaimed the worth of the person, drew Peter Sborovius then Palatine of Cracovia, to his opinion; Stephen by their Counsel therefore put in his Name and stood for the Election, by an unusual felicity being in a short time a Baron, Prince, and King. Nor was Affairs of Poland relating to Hungary.

Bathori's Successes.

1575.

Elected K.
of Poland His Generosity to Bekeffius.

was he unworthy of his Advancement. To detain him in Transylvania, Cesar Commissioned Bekeffius to attempt it, who came with such sudden secrecy as far as Radnot, that Bathori knew not of an Enemy, although in the middle of his Principality, and had been easily Conquered if Bekeffius had not lost by delays what he had gained by his good speed; for while he argued with Bathori about Articles of a new Agreement, the form whereof Bathori, thus surprized, desired to be mended and mitigated onely, he called in Mahomet the Governour of Lippa with his Forces to his Assistance, with which Couragiously he Vanquished Bekeffius. The Hungarian Prisoners he released freely, but his Transylvanian Rebels were thrall'd to the Turks. Such the Calamity of Victory, even when it favours good men, whose natural Clemency it perverts by its Revenge.

Bathori departing for Poland, quitted Transylvania to his Brother Christopher, having Married neer this time with Anne the Daughter of Sigismund Augustus his late Predecessor in that Kingdome, whither Bekeffius (fled from his Discomfiture to Scopusium) with an admired Confidence soon after followed, and in a prostrate manner address'd himself to the King, whose Generosity not only forgave him, the most implacable of all his Enemies, but preferred him to the Command of the Hungarian Forces then serving him against the Dantzickers Dantzickers quarrelling for their Priviledges, and the Muscovites, against both whom he was very successful, driving the last of the two out of Livonia. In the mean time a Quarrel and rupture happened betwixt the Turks and the Emperour about certain Prisoners taken by a Stratagem of Balassi, in revenge whereof, Aly Beg of Alba, seized several Towns belonging to Balassi; and though Istuanfi the Emperours Agent would have periwaded the Bassa of Buda that the League was still in force and those particular actions not to be construed as a breach thereof, yet the Turks prone to a new War, Invaded Illyria and brought a great Calamity upon it, Defeating Auspergerus the Emperour's General with all his Army neer Radonia, and after took in and burnt Businium (Czasi-um, Suacicium, and Szrinyum, as he had before seized Topusca, Bonitium, and all the places between the Rivers of Colapis, Dobra, and Mereszicia.

This Year 1576. Died Maximilian the Emperour, worthily renowned to Posterity for his Moderation and Justice, to whose Supreme Greatness, nothing was wanting but Fortune. Although he was very constant to the Religion of his Ancestors, yet was he not therefore severe to the Protestants, as requiring Piety onely: That Speech of his to the Bishop of Olomucza being very memorable, That Christian Religion teacheth rather to suffer killing, than to kill; and that it is a grievous Impiety

A new Rupture with the Turks.

The Death of Maximilian.

ety to lord it over mens Consciences, which is the same insolence as to Invade Heaven.

Rudolphus the second succeeds his Father
Maximili-
an.

1579.

RUDOLPHUS the second of that Name Emperour, Succeeded his Father to a troublesome and more unquiet Government; for the Turks playing fast and loose with the late Treaty of Peace, had made an Irruption into Sclavonia, and taken Gonsdanc in Sclavonia, and spoyled theit silver Mines, and had opened a way for their Excursions into Carniola. To stop which danger lest his patience might embolden the Enemy, Rudolphus dispatcht away his Uncle Charles to that Government (as he did delegate his Brother Ernestus to the Care of Hungary) while he intended some respite from bulinesse in Bohemia. This Viceroyship the Hungarians highly stomached, requiring their Election of a Palatine, and their Lawes, and inveighing against the intrusion of this new Example. Charles being arrived in Illyria, quietly reduced all the places taken three years before by Ferbates of Bosnia, and founded Carlostad in memory of his Victorys; the like Successe had Battyani against Aly Beg of Sygeth, who designing to disturbe his Fortifications at Barcai in the very nick of the Attievement of his Design, was by the Policy of Battyani encouraging his flying Souldiers with the shout of The Enemy runs, wrested out of a compleat Triumph and made a Sacrifice to the Vindictive Sword. The same Event attended Scanderbeg the Son of the Famous

mous Ulmus Governour of Posega, by whose overthrow Illyria was reduced in a manner to Rudolphus.

And as if Fate had treasured up her wrath against the Turk for this time, Sasvares the Sanjack of Szolnoc, thinking to have trapt Colonitz and Bathori, was caught himself; for having surrounded the Christians and oppressed them with Multitudes, even to desperation of any escape, just as they were yeilding to the Sword of the Enemy, came in to their rescue Rajbicius sent from Andrew Barbelius the Governour of Agria, who flanking the Turks with his Musqueteers hem'd in Three hundred of them and slew them, and took Prisoners Four hundred more, with thirteen Ensigns; which indignity Sasvares proudly resenting as Dishonourable for a Musselman to be beaten by a Christian, revengefully burnt and levelled several Towns, and with a full prey was returning home when Serinus and Raibicius gave him the second Course of the same Entertainment, He himself stript of his Vainglorious humour disguised in a Horse-rubbers habit hardly escaping to Tybiscus.

The news of this overthrow was soon carried to Constantinople, whereat Sinan Bassa the Prime Vizier, was transported into a most violent rage, encreased by another defeat given to Ferhates Bassa of Bosnia, who with Nine thousand Men Invading Carniola, had been pitifully overthrown by the Count of Tharn

1584.

Thurn & Erdœdius falling on his Reer, and with the losse of Four men, killing Four thousand. But these objections at the Port (as being done by way of Reprizal and Defence, the Tucks being taken out of their bounds with Christian Booty) Paulus Eyzingarius and Henry Lichtensteyn the Emperours Ambassadors so solved and satisfied, that Amurath declared that they suffered in their own wrong, nor would he support them therein, to the disturbance of the Peace.

1585.

Prodigies
in Hungary.

Soon after dyed Christopher Bathori Prince of Transylvania, who had enjoyed his Government the quiettest of all his Predecessors, leaving his young Son Sigismund to his Brother Stephen, who committed him to the Tuition of three Noblemen, but they rivalling the power thereof to the detriment of the publique good, the Governance of the Prince was conferred upon John Geczi the Provost of Varadin, a person eminent for his wisdom and integrity of life: at which time an Epidemicall Disease raged gradually through all the Parts of Europe, and in the month of September infested Germany and Hungary, it was called the Morbus Vervecinus, for that like sheep, the diseased were seized with a Cold and a Cough, there were also several Earthquakes at Presburgh, Vienna, and Zagrabia. At Bihigium in Chroatia in the middle of the night, a multitude of Ducks and Geese fought in the air, and next morning some Thousands of them were found slain with mutual 1586.

tuall wounds upon the grounds, affording plenty of good chear to the Inhabitants.

These portents signified the frequency of military actions; Hasan Governour of Sigeth depopulated all that hitherto untouch'd plat of Territory, lying between the river Mura and Dravus, and through the easie pursuit of Count Serinus escaped with a great Booty over the Arrhabon to his Garrison. Palsi requited this by counter-designing against Isaac of Alba, whom missing in the dark, by day break he found and put to the rout. Nadasdi, Speciacassus, Hussarus, and others took Coppanum from the Turks, and puffed up with the fortune of the atchievement would needs beseige Bnda, driving the Cattell away from about the Town, but Ferhates now Bassa of Bnda, so repayed their arrogance, that with the Losse of 22 Ensignes, they fled for their lives.

But a greater war impended out of Poland, 1586. Stephen Bathori being deceased, equally lament- ed by the Poles and Transylvanians; for the Sborovian Faction, whom Stephen for their Crimes had depressed, (although his Raisers) had deprived John Samoiscius (who had married Grisel the Kinswoman of Stephen) of his Chancellorship in that Kingdome. At the next diet there appeared these Competitors, Piestas, one of the Nobles, Theodor Duke of Musco, Maximilian the Brother of Cesar, Sigismund Son of John the third King of Sweden, and the son of the Tartar Cham, who pretended his power

Frequent
Military
actions in Hungary.

Affairs in Poland.
Decemb. 2.
Anno Reg-
ni 10.

er and sufficiency of Defending Poland, his frugality and Contenance; as to Religion, their Pope should be his Pope, their Luther his Luther. In fine, Sigismund by the endeavour and Interest of Samoyscius carried it from them all, the Sborovians labouring for Maximilian, the Lithuanians contrarily proposing the decision might be by Lot; but the Sborovians would by no means consent to it. In the mean while Zamoyshus aided by John Geczi out of Transylvania took Cracovia and therein the Regalia; and lighting upon Maximilian at Clepardia, with the slaughter of a Thousand, and three hundred prisoners, made him run to Bicini, where being in vain perswaded to a safer refuge he was besieged and taken and Custoded in Rodlone; his Brother a most unactive Prince regarding neither his Honour nor the danger. The Pope was therefore intreated to take the Cause into his hands by his Nuncio Aldobrandinus afterwards Clement the eighth, who so managed the businesse, that Maximilian for his Liberty with the further ransome of fourty thousand Dollars, quitted his pretences to that Crown, to which by the vanity of Sborovius and Stanislans, he had been a year so fondly wedded.

1587.

To return to Sazvares the busie Governour of Zigeth, now upon another Excursion between the Rivers Mur and Cernicia, where he ravaged with such insolence, that his Officers suspecting his Interception by some Ambush or Engagement, advised him to some private way of retreat, which he reflecting and vapouring that he would Face Serini before his Garrison of Canyfa, was encompassed at Paulinum by the conjoyned Forces of Nadasdi Trantmansdorff, Battyani, and Serini, and there with the slaughter of Two thousand, and as many Prisoners put to flight, he himself difficultly escaping, and respiting a Death by the honour of the Sword to a glasse of Poyson, ^{Salvares} which to prevent Strangling at Constantinople, ^{defeated;} he took in his way thither, as he was Command- ^{poysons} ed by the Grand Seignieur. The same Fate ^{himself;} befel Ferhates Bassa of Buda, who having raised the Contribution of the County to excessive rates, thereby to satisfie his Rapine, and over and above to bribe out his oppression, which the poor Peasants were unable to pay, was in his forcible levying of it (though accompanied with Twelve thousand men) totally routed by Two thousand five hundred Hungarians, under the Command of Sigismund Racockzi, Stephen Homonai and other, between Hernad and Barsonyos, Two thousand killed and Four ^{Ferhates} hundred taken, with the losse of Six hundred. ^{Bassa De} This Defeat cost Ferhates his Life, the just ^{seated by} price of his too eager Covetousnesse, as the Victory ascribed to the Hungarians was particularly referred to those Liberties and Privileges they lately enjoyed by the Concession of Rudolph at a late diet sometime before held in Presburgh.

OF

1590.

Military Actions in Illyria by the rupture begun by Bassa
Hasanes.

But these were but pastime velitations and præludia to the open War which ensued, for Sinan & Osman Bassa having after many ill successes and losses especially in the late Fight at Masul in Persia, Concluded a Peace with Mahomet Hodaband the King thereof, sought to peice up in the West what was diminished from their Empire in the East, by transferring the War into Europe, on which Sinan was so resolutely bent, that to remove all opposition, he caused the Musti zealously inclined against the Persian, to be poysoned ata Banquet; and Hasanes of Bosnia was ordered to seek an occasion of the Rupture, which he expiated with his own life. The Dance was begun by him in Illyria, where between Czifium and Ivanicia, he committed terrible spoil, and took several Towns; but upon his retreat to Gradisca, Labatius, and Michael Szekeley, set upon a Regiment newly passed the River Colapis, and cut it off in the view of Hasanes, who durst not make to their relief. In the same havocking manner, Hasanes surnamed the Little, the Governour of Sigeth, took Kiskamaromum by a sudden scalado, while the Other mad with Revenge, and assisted by Rustan and Erdeogli, encamping near Colapis, took Ranovicia and Gara, and founded Petrinia by a River of that name, which he afterwards finished. He stormed Siscia, but was beaten off by the Valour of Nicholas Micacius, who incensed him yet further by a Stratagem, for pretending a rendition of

of the Town, he received by Articles Five hundred Turks who were to take possession, all of whom he put to the Sword. All these outrages did Erdædius the Emperours Governour, bear with till now, when taking Arms he reduced Monozlone, and hence occasion was taken by the Turks to declare a War.

For Amurath being of himself sufficiently exasperated, was more enflamed by Sinan, and therefore Commands were sent away to Hasanes to provide that the Grand Seignours Provinces received no damage, and if any were offered, to revenge it; hereupon he besieged and took * Bihigium, and by private wayes making towards Erdædius, surprized him, in his expectation of supply and assistance, with his Camp and Great Guns. This losse Charles the Uncle of Rudolph, the next Governour no way remedied, things growing worse and worse every day in that Province, no lesse then Five thousand Christians being trodden down & surcharged by numbers neer Petrinia; Sciscia was the second and third time attempted by Hasanes, such his thirst of Revenge and the arrogance of his mind, with a battery of 24 Great Guns. When Fortune changed her Countenance, for although the abundance of Rain that fell of a sudden saved him the first of these times from an Engagement by Palfi and Nadasdi, which was attributed to his Conduct, yet the next bout he escaped not so, for having newly passed Copolis and arrived at Selinum, Erdædius with 1592.

*The place where the Prodigy of the Ducks and Geese lately happened.

The exploits of Hasanes

Hasanes
routed and drowned, 12000 Turks slain

other of the Nobility, and 8000 Men, fell Couragiously on him and shamefully Vanquished him, 12000 Turks being slain (so that Odera and Colapis were discoloured with Blood) among whom was Mahomet the Son of a Sister of Amuraths (whose Death at her solicitation did not a little put forward the intended Expedition) many Spahi, Officers, and men of Note. Hasan himself thinking to have escaped over the Bridge, already thronged with the flying remains, was with some of his valientest Souldiers forced off the Bridge into the River and there drowned. The Camp and rich Tents with all the Great Guns, Bag and Baggage came intirely into the Conquerours hands. So God arose in the Revenge of this perfideousnesse, being most wise to know, most equal to discern, and most just to punish. Petri- nia had been at the same time demolished by Erdeedius, but that his Colleague having a longing eye upon a Peace, diswaded him.

Amurath the more incensed by Sinan and his Sister, swore by God and Mahomet, he would be revenged, and thereupon denounced War against the Emperour, who first deprecated the same by his Oratour Poppelius whom with Presents he dispatched to the Port, al-leadging that Invaders are justly punishable;
but he perceiving the Turks bent, openly declared, that if the War were brought upon his Master, the Perpetual Law of Nature had directed and principled Men to resist and repel repel Force and injury by any manner of Defence. To which the matter being left, the money designed for the Tribute was staid at Vienna for better uses, as on the other side the Embassador was confined to a private house. The War thus opened; Hasan now Beglerbeg of Greece, dislodged Serini and Ekenperg obstinately bent upon the reduction of Perrinia, and by his peculiar fortune took the often mentioned Siscia, the besieged being in no hope of relief.

Sinan being arrived in person, took Vespri-nium yeilded by Speciacassius for want of water, amidst so many Springs, but possessed by the Enemy: as Palotta by the fear of Ornandus was rendred to him likewise. To obviate his further progresse Count Palsi, Serini, and Count Hardeck with 10000 Foot and 1000 Horse of Veterane Soldiers made up instantly to 40000. by the Confluence of Voluntiers from all the Towns hastned to engage him, but he retreating before them, and having stored his Garrisons, they set down before Alba Regalis, the outward Town whereof was taken from Isaac the Governour, by the valour of Peter Hussar, but while for want of great Guns the Seige was protracted, Mehemet and Hasanes with 20000. select men came before the Town unexpectedly, and there made a stand: Mehemet in contempt of the Enemy, as of an undisciplined and rude multitude, declaring, that they should have fair play for they Lives; but when

Sinan
Bassa
arrives in
Hungary.

both Armies came to be ranged in Battalia, they were so afraid of each others Aspect and Order, that they stood two hours gazing upon one another, without advancing a foot forward.

Hafanes &
Mehemet Bassa defeated at Alba Re-
galis.

At last Palfi vigorously began upon the Janizaries (to whose valour encouragement is given, both by Provision in their youth, and happinesse hereafter if slain in Battel the only incentive to great actions, as rewards and pensions are allowed to prolifick parents according to the number of their Sons, who succeed likewise to their pay and stipend when deceased, by which means there ariseth a Love of generation, and a vehement desire of dying) who so stiffly maintained their Ground, that they covered it with their dead bodies rather then to flinch from it living. Serinus and Hardeck did likewise so presse upon their Horse, that in fine, 4000 of them, with 6000. of their foot were slain upon the place. The news hereof being brought to Sinan he halted away back to Constantinople, but the reason of his sudden Departure was not to be guessed at. Nor did Christopher Teiffenbach, Bathori, and Homonnai lesse bestir themselves, prompted thereunto by Palfi, first reducing Sabaton by Rinia, then besieging Filek the Garrison whereof troubled with a new disease of the Vertigo, at Palfi's approach yeilded themselves, as did ten strong places more, the last of which was Palanka: all of them with Cesar's fortune, he came, see, and overcame.

Matthias

Matthias being made Governour of Hungary, at which time also to the Duke of Parma succeeded Ernestus in the Government of the Low Countries; Palfi and Hardeck to hold fortune by the Forehead, resolutely and secretly attempted Novigrad, the Governour Mehe- Novigrad neth seeing as soon as hearing of them, who and other notwithstanding manfully defended the place, places re- till Matthias came into the Camp, to whom duced by it was honourably rendred the 42. year after its the Hun- revulsion from the Hungarian Crown. With the Turks the same Current of successe Serini recovered defeated.
Bersencia, Segusdium in Illyria; and Tieffen- bach forced Jasbrynium, and besieged Hat- van, which Hasan of Buda attempting to re- 1594.
 lieve with ten thousand men, was there vanquished, and 25 Ensigns, with 17. great Guns left to the Victor.

But so speeded not Matthias, who with an Army of 50. thousand men besieged Strigoni- um, for although he had intercepted their re- Strigoni- lief by the Danow, by the valour of Francis um in vain Balassius, and was by the Treason of the Thra- besieged by cian Soldiers, possessed of the old Town, as Matthias.
 of the Mount of St. Thomas, by the fall of Caralibeg, and Isaac the Governours yet by a supply of 500. Janizaries, who by negligence of the guards slipt into the Town, and the news of the approach of Sinan the Vizier from Constantinople, he broke up his Siege; although Maximilian in Trial of his better fortune against the Turkish power in Illyria, had razed.

Petrinia, and had recovered Rastowitz, Gora, and Siscia.

Raab besieged and taken by Sinan Bassa.

The boldness and courage of the Tartars

Sinan followed with a 100 thousand Turks, and 60 thousand Tartars, having reduced Tata and St. Martin, came and beleagured Raab, by the ancients name called Faurinum, governed by Count Hardeck, who gloried that such a singular opportunity was afforded him, wherein he might give proof of his Virtue: but these proved but magnificent words: for Perlins Mounts being taken by the resolute Courage of the Enemy, wherein (for that Perlins was famous for fortification) the Garrison mainly confided, and Valentinus Torus his Bulwark subverted by mine; the Defendants who had no reliance now but upon Matthias, attending the Enemy neer at hand, grew faint-hearted. In the interim Cazy General of the Tartars, swimming the river over against St. Vitus, was bravely received by Palsius on the other shore, supplied with fresh men by Matthias, who at the same instant gave notice to Hardeck to make a brisk Salley; He himself making so vigorous an impression upon Sinan's Camp, reduced now to the number of 60 thousand, that without doubt had not Palsi received a dangerous wound, and could have been assisted with some naval power, the Turks had been overthrown; but being thus disappointed, he drew off in some disorder to Ovarum, which Sinan made advantage of, and slew a number of his men in his passing his bridge laid over the Danow.

Danow. Hereupon Hardeck and Perlinius not willing to wait two dayes longer for relief from Matthias, delivered Raab, for which being seized, they were both condemned and beheaded at Vienna. There were found in this well stored City 150 Guns; of the Garrison 6000 were slain, and 3000 dismissed. Thereafter Sinan forced Papa, but from Commorra he was repulsed with a vast slaughter of his men, in the opposite Isle of Czatlukoes by the valour of Praunius and Starcitius, and obliged to rise thence by the fear of the approach of Matthias; notwithstanding at his return to Constantinople he boasted that he had reduced Cesar to the necessity of intreating a Peace.

Count Hardeck the Governour & Perlini beheaded at Vienna.

1595.

Indeed the Emperour sent Stanislaus Paulovius, and Wenceslaus Berca his Embassadors to the King of Poland, requesting him to take Arms with him against the Enemy of the name of Christ; but Samoiscius the great Chancellor, and only Minister of State, put them off contemptuously, telling them that his King was in League with the Turks, and that Christ required he should observe it: nor could they be ignorant what punishment both Divine and Humane attended the breach of the Law of Nations. Sigismund Bathori was more pliable. Geczi his Tutor was newly dead, leaving him at the age of 17. years under the protection of the Turks, (by which his Provinces had flourished in all Prosperity) and a full Exchequer, but his youthful mind transporting him to the desire 1594.

Novemb.

Young Sigismund the Prince of Transylvania headily engages against the Turks.

His Declaration thereof to the estates; & their disallowance.

desire of Martial Employment, restrained only by his Faith given to Infidels, His Confessors perswaded him to send to Rome to Pope Urban the Seventh for Satisfaction of his Conscience, whether he were bound to pay them Tribute or no? when by the Jesuits Oracle, who are never without a new device to perplex and interrupt the general Commerce of the World, he was easily solved and freed from all manner of Obligation. After this discharge or dispensation, to colour his taking up Arms, he objects against Sinan Bassa, his Pride, Arrogance, and several injuries sustained from him by his people, and therewith summons a Diet or Assembly at Sebeffum, where he opened his purpose, but the Estates generally dissenting, and objecting the just defeat of Uladislaus at Varna, though absolved by Pope Eugenius, and that if Glory were the incentive to the War, he should remove all impiety with which Glory could not consist: but if wealth was aimed at the Enemy was more potent, nor could it advantage any man when gained by infamy; He dissolved this Convention, and called another at Thorda, where he declared that he believed in the Roman Catholick Church, by which being set at liberty, he was ignorant how he could yet be obliged to his Conditions with the Turks; but perceiving the same party to be too potent here also, he withdrew his presence, and having packt up his rich moveables, and committed the Administration to his Uncle Balthasar, with-withdrew out of the Principality with Josica his Chancellor to Kuevara.

Transylvania streight multiplied into Division, for Sigismund protested he would renounce the Government unlesse the Turk were abandoned by the Estates, bidding the people to follow some few factious persons, and see what would come of it; whereupon the vulgar in a rage, by a brute instinct readily complied with this Princes will, none daring so much as to mutter against it, and sent away Gabriel Kendi with two other Nobles to bring him back to Claudia-nopolis, where by the instigation of Stephen Eockskay Governour of Varadin, and Gasper Cornissius Governour of Marmorusse, he was highly incensed against the chief of the refractory Noblemen, whose blood he thirsted and liberally shed. Their Names were Stephen Lazar, and Michael Kalmandi, Captains of his Guard, Alexander one of his former Tutors, and Prince of the Senate, Gabriel Kendi, John Ifju, Gregory Barnomiza, the Son of him who was so renowned for his Service at Agria, and John Forro the heads and Ornaments of the Kingdome; all of them (such the rash fury and cruelty of Sigismund) of a sudden, and without any Tryal or Cause shown, beheaded in the Market place of the said City. They all suffered with exemplary Constancy, rather gratulating then grudging at their fortune, not a word coming from, though reproached by Sigismund as they went to execution, in any unseemly

His cruel
proceedings
with the refractory Nobility.

Strangles
his own uncle Bal-thasor with others.

unseemly regeſtion or Complaint. Not long after to ſatisfie his blood thirſtineſſe, his own Uncle Balthasor Bathori, Lupus Kovasoczi, once his Tutor, Francis Kendi, and John Bor-namifza, were ſtrangled at Gyula, whole large and ineſtimable Revenues he ſeized to himſelf; Lonyas, Salanczi, Szylvaſi, Gerendi, obtained pardon for the ſame fault. Sigismund boaſted of this cruel fact as his Juſtice, and while all other men trembled at the ſight of it, he with a dire Countenance unmoved beheld their Tragedies.

His League
with the Emperour.

This perpetration over, by Stephen Bocskay, he confirmed the League with the Emperour againſt the Turks, having engaged Aaron and Michael the Vayvods of Moldavia and Valachia, in the ſame confederacy. By that concluſion betwixt the Emperour and him, it was agreed that Sigismund ſhould hold and enjoy all Dacia without any tribute by the Title of High and Mighty Prince, as alſo what he ſhould recover and take from the Turks in Hungary, without any pretenſions by the Emperour, but his Family extinguished Transylvania ſhould be united to Hungary; He ſhould Marry Maria Chriſtina Daughter of Charles the Arch-Duke; & if it ſhould happen that he were beaten by the Turks, that he ſhould have a retreat into Bohemia or Sileſia.

While this was tranſacting, Amurath the grand Signior dyed, and Mahomet his eldeſt Son ſucceeded, having ſolemnized his Fathers Fun-

Funeralls with the death of 18 of his Brethren strangled by a Bow string, which scelerate beginning of his Raign the Christians succeſſe noted to the world : for Cesar having implored aid throughout Germany and Italy, was supplied after this large manner. The Pope ſent 1000. Horſe, and 12000. Foot under his Generall Sigismund Francis Aldobrandin, Florence 1000 Horſe, and 3000. Foot, Ferrara 1500. Mantua 1000. Tyrol 4000. Bavaria 3000. Foot, Bohemia 2000. Horſe, 600. Dragoons, and 6000. Foot, Sileſia 1500. Horſe, 2000. Foot, Austria 2000. Horſe, 6000. Foot, Franconia 1000 Horſe, Suevia 4000 Foot, the Nobility of the two laſt places and of the Rhine by themſelves 4000 Foot, which were numerouſly increased by the Hungarian Army under Count Palfi. Matthias was made by the Emperour Generaliſſimo, and under him Charles Count Mansfield (upon this occaſion created a Prince) who had lately done the King of Spain excellent Service under Erneſtus in the Low Countries ; Nor was he himſelf unfurniſhed of an Army, carrying with him under his own Enſigns, by the Conduct of Adolph Swartzenburgh, &c. a 1000. Curaffiers, 1000. Dragoons, and 6000. Walloon Foot out of Flanders.

Mahomet
the 3d.
ſucceeds

his Father Amurath.

The large ſupplies given the Emperour.

Count
Mansfield
Generall.

1584.

Strigoni-
um besieged by Count

Mansfeld.

The Courage of the

Walloon

a furlong distant from one another on the Mount of St. Thomas for the security of his Camp. Twice by the tumultuary onset of the Hungarians and Walloons, were the Walls attempted and they repelled, but the Walloons enraged with the repulse, renewed it of themselves singly, possessed the rampire and drove the Enemy into the Inner Town, while Palsius took the Fort of Parcanum, on the other side the Water opposite to Strigonium and razed it, and with the same Success defeated their relief under Hasan the Beglerbeg, and the Bassa of Buda amounting to Thirty thousand men, his own Forces making no more than the tenth part of them. He was engaged in an Ambuscade, but desperation not onely saved his own Men but put the Enemy to flight, nevertheless he must have fallen by their fresh numbers but that the Walloons came readily and unexpectedly to his assistance.

The
Turks attempting the relief
of the Town defeated, 14000.
slain.

But the Turks through very fear, and the consideration of the losse of the Town, came on very boldly (Mansfeld having taken the Charles Bulwark) and engaged the besiegers in a most terrible and bloody fight; but such was the chearful readynesse of the Christians, advantaged by those Castles aforesaid, which grivously annoyed the Turke with shot, that 14000 of them were slain and their Camp taken. Immediately after which glory accrued to those other felicities and accomplishments of the Noble Mansfeld, he fell sick of a surfeit (by by too greedy eating of Melons a common Mansfeld Disease among the Germans in Hungary) and dies of a died beiore the Town, much lamented and Surfeit. honoured by all men. The Seige was nevertheless continued by Matthias, who had newly welcomed the Duke of Mantua to the Camp, and the water-Town gained when the same defeated Turks endeavoured again its releif (their Life and Honour being concerned in it) but were routed by the Walloons again under Oberenprucius, who came opportunely to the Relief of Nadasdi beset with their whole Power, and too late expecting the Succour of Charles Burgrave: which being told Mahomet the Governour of Strigonium, distressed also for Water, he yeilded the City the fifty Strigoni- second year after its Captivity by Solyman; um yeilded and now Vissigrade, Vaccia, and all the Towns as far as Pesth, resounded with this Victory, which dismissed Matthias to Vienna, having placed Palfi Governour of Strigonium, and sent Maximilian with part of the Army into Upper Hungary to have an eye to the Affairs with Triffenbach in those parts.

In Illyria, Serinus and Hebberstain took Babocza; Erdædius, &c. Petrinia, restored to the Turks with Rastowitz and Gara. Greater was the Effort as greater was the Power of Sigismund, who having solemnized his Nuptials at Alba Julia, with the two Vayvods had shook off the Turkish Yoke, and had ignominiously treated his Envoy. For his General
George

Sigis-
mund's Enterprises and Successes conjoynd with the two Vayvods
of Valachia and Moldavia.

George Barbelius and his united Nobility, took in a great number of Towns; Michael the Vayvod of Valachia, and Albertus Kyrali sent him as his Assistant by Sigismund carrying the War further to prevent Sinan's Design upon them at home. By them Floccium near Nicopolis was seized, Arsena burnt, and Selistris plundered; Achomat the Eunuch sent by Sinan to their seizure with Twenty five thousand men, they engaged and totally routed, so that Thrace seemed to be joynd to Germany, and probably enough, if there had been as much Prudence in retaining as there was Valour in getting of it. Michael returned to Bucorestum, but Kyrali sliding over the Danow now frozen, warmed his fingers with the fire of several noted Towns in Bulgaria.

Sinan Invades Hun-
gary.

Sinan like a Tempest departed from Constantinople with menaces and curses against these Revolters, took Bucorest, and Fortified Tergowist the Metropolis of Valachia; Michael and Kyrali as unable to resist, passing over the untrodden Alps to Novigrad. In whose pursuit, Sinan being himself engaged, sent away Twelve thousand men to make an Invasion upon his Countrey, Ten thousand of whom were presently slain, and a Consternation brought upon the whole Turkish Camp; even Sinan himself was meditating of a flight, and hardly retained by the memory of his past actions, for he was so far forward, that he was crowded off the Bridge, straitned with runnawayes, and and two of his teeth beaten out; the shame whereof converted into Desperation, whereby he drove Michael into his furthest retreats amongst Rocks and Precipices: to which streights reduced, he experimented the present deliverance of Almighty God, being rescued by the advance of Sigismund with an Army of Twenty thousand Horse and thirty thousand Foot, enforced by the Siculi, Cosacks, and Valachians, upon promise of Liberty. By the notable Valour of these Siculi, Tergovist was regained, it being not advisable to leave any place possessed by the Enemy in their Reer. The news of this recovery made Sinan fly to Bucorestum, which Town he burned, and destroyed all manner of Provision, thinking want and Hunger would have stopt Sigismund's pursuit, and in great hast passed the Danow, but not with such speed; for Sigismund being at his heels surprized Eight thousand Turks, the Reer-guard of those Christians he was carrying into Captivity, of this side the River, every man of whom were presently put to the Sword and killed in a moment. Sinan hereupon partly with Greif and old Age, and not without suspicion of poyson, breathed out his unhappy Soul, obnoxious to the revenge of the Bassa's for the arrogance and insolence of his great Fortune, which is subject not onely to others Envy, but mens own miscarriages and misdemeanours. Sigismund entrusting the reduction of the Army to Boczkey, arrived at Stephanopolis, where he dis-

Michael
the Vayvod
distressed.

Sinan Bassa
defeated
as he in flight passed over the Danow Sinan's
Death.

placed Aaron from his Vayvodship of Moldavia as suspect of Perfidy, and settled Stephen Resvan; but him, John Samoiscius provoked by the slaughter & cruel usage of some Podolians, overcame and Vanquished after two or three successful Encounters, and having taken him drove a Stake through his Groyns and set him aloft for a spectacle, substituting in his place Jeremy Mogilla, as Tributary to the Turk, but Beneficiary to the Kingdome of Poland. Nothing is to be mentioned of Maximilian, but that he in vain besieged Szolnoc, being destitute of firing in a very cold and unseasonable Autumn, followed by a most rigorous Winter.

Revolutions in Moldavia.

1594.
Octob.

1596.

This February, Sigismund disquieted with the Care of the future, as the hatred of his past affairs, journeyed to Prague to the Emperour, where he was honourably received; but during his stay there was seized with a Fever which turned to the Small pox; at which time the Siculi Rebeled, pretending they were deceived of their promised Liberty, but were by Boczkey soon reduced and severely punished. Dalmatia had a share of these Troubles, Berthasius a Knight of Rhodes, having intelligence that Ibrahim Bassa Governour of Cliffa, was at the Mart of Drilon, having acquainted Lenkovitius with his Design, with Five hundred Segnians by a Hole in the precipice of the Rock not observed by the Turks, crept into the Fortresse, and mastered the Turks, whom they flew flew betwixt sleeping and waking. Ibrahim mad at this losse, came and besieged it with Apar di Bassa of Bosnia, whom Lencovitus with 5000 men drawn out of the adjacent Garrisons drove with much gallantry out of their Trenches and Leagure, with a total rout; but too secure of an unfledged victory, was by the unexpected return of Ibrahim (who had collected his scattered dispersed remnants among the Hills and Woods) himself discomfited, remembering nothing of the Encounter but the Prey they had lost: Lencovitus got into Clissia, whence fearing the want of water, he escaped with 200 men, leaving the rest to the Sword or Captivity; and Clissia fainting with thirst lost to the Bargain.

The Christians unsuccessful attempt on Clissia.

While Cesar was busied at his Diets held at Prague, Vienna, Presburgh, and Ratisbone, as Sigismund at Claudianopolis, * the noise of Mahomets vast preparations had terrified all those parts of Christendome. To be before hand with him therefore, Herbersteyn, and Dracovitus the Successor of Erdœdins (a man whose noble Acts had raised him beyond all Accessions of Felicity, so that he had nothing to fear but Fortune) invested Constancia, attempted to be relieved by Apardis of Bosnia, but he was beaten and the Town taken; with the like Fate Achomet the Eunuch with 20 noised to be a 100 thousand men, coming too late to his Assistance, besieged Petrinia joyntly with him; to the relief hereof Dras-

* Clausenburg.

The Turks
defeated before Perrinia in Illyria.

covitius, Lencovitius, Erdeodus, and Heberstain, assayed to passe the Colapis, but neither Ford nor Bridge being feasible, they retreated toward the head of the River, which the Enemy mistaking for a Flight, suddenly by swimming and wading passed over in pursuit of them, but was so gauled in his passage by Musquet shot, and so well received at his Landing, that happy was he could get back again, in which endeavour many of them perished.

At Siscia the Christians found passage, and the Enemy besieging it, whose Scouts they put to flight, sending with them the terror and rumor of a numerous Army, with which they advanced, and besieged the besiegers, who valorously attempted to break through, or to carry the place, but were at last, what by the Bullets from the Castle, and the Sword from the Camp, reduced to the Discretion of the Victor. Onely Aphus and Odaverdus, Achomet's Assistants, escaped away.

The Affairs of Hungary.

In Hungary the ballance of ill Fortune went equal, Solyman Bassa of Temeswar, and Ennehan of Belgrade, besieged Lippa, whence the obstinacy of the besieged, and the fame of Barbelius had repulsed them, and Sigismund subdued Nagylachum at the same time, together with the Tartar Cham, (who in most savage manner destroyed the Countrey) in the great plain betwixt Belgrade and Temeswar, and pursued him almost 30. miles: Maximilian also besieged Hatvanum aided by Swartzenburgh burgh, his forces amounting to 20000. Foot, and 15000. Horse: the Governour of this place was Arslanes the Son of Saralibeg, a youth of great virtue above his Age, who by a fortunate and vigorous Salley so terrified the General of the Ordnance that he abandoned his Battery. He was incited the more to this Gallantry, by his Mother Fatima, a Woman of a virile and noble Spirit, who set before him the reward of Victory or an Honourable glorious Death, if vanquished; but such was his fatal oversight, that while his men wearied with toyle and anguished with wounds, were taking their repose by his order, and had abandoned their Stations, the Christians entred, and with Turkish Cruelty put them all to the Sword. Arslanes making a resolute opposition fell not unrevenged.

The Siege of Hatvanum, taken by Maximilian.

This Slaughter at Hatvanum, Agria expiated; for Sultan Mahomet with 200 thousand men, a greater number then Solyman e're brought into Christendome, being arrived at Belgrade sent away Gyaffer Bassa an Eunuch before him to that place, the Christians as accustomed to the War, being no way daunted at his approach. His first Assault was with great constancy and courage repelled, and the maintenance of the Town resolved on by Terfco, Nyari, and Kinski the Commanders, but the Germans and Walboons being afraid of their Lives, articted and delivered it, although they saved not their lives thereby, being first stripped and then put to the Sword. Nyari hiding himself in their Camp, as Barisonius and Kinski in the Belgrade Tower, escaped away in the night. At length Maximilian came to Rimaszombathum, and at Rimaszecsium Sigismund Bathori joyned his Forces with him, amounting to 32 thousand Horse, and 28 thousand foot.

Agria yeilded to Sultan Mahomet in person.

The Battel
of Kere-sture betwixt Mahomet and Maximili-
an.
1596.
26. Oct.

At Keresture both Armies engaged, and the Turks by the valour of the Fronteers of Swarzenburgh's, Palfi's, and Kyrali's Brigades, with the losse of 8000. men, and 43. great Guns, were driven back to the Camp, which Mahomet opposed to the Christians; Maximilian seeing the presentnesse and heat of the Souldiers, passed over the Morasse before him, and came to succour his Companions. Hereupon ensued in the Turks Camp, great lamentation and fear, Mahomet himself flying to Szolnoc, while the slaughter was continued upon his men. And now without dispute the Turk had been totally routed, when the Christians neglecting the pursuit, and disorderly rifling their Camp, were themselves put to flight. It is reported that there were not above 500. Turks that made this first resistance, by whose hardnesse Cicala Bassa streight collected 40. thousand more, and furiously prosecuted this turn of Fortune, slaying these Camp pillagers like sheep: of whom (by meer fear only) 10. others say 20 thousand were missing, with all the Baggage which fell to the Enemy: so that a brave victory was lost by Covetousnesse. Nor did did the Enemy carry away an unbloodyed Conquest, leaving behind him twenty, others write, fifty thousand slain. Mahomet to Constantinople, and Maximilian troubled in mind (and having gathered his dispersion) to Vienna, while Serini worsted the Governour of Zigeth (pust up with this Event) at his siege of Babocza, and Palfi confirmed the wavering Towns of Strigonium and Vacia.

Mahomet returns to Constantinople.

Sigismund to be installed and honoured with the Order of the Golden Fleece, took a journey to Prague, appearing much troubled at this unhappy issue of the War, and the Conscience of his Facts, being by nature more difficile to blot out the memory of them, than to commit them in his anger; and therefore now he resigned his Principality for fear of the Turk; and his own Concerns to Maximilian, although advised by Cesar that the affections of the People were more enclined to a Prince of their own Nation, and that the present exigence of affairs could not but cause some discontents in the State; notwithstanding he persisted in his Humour, and gave a Divorce to his Wife, Conditioning for the Principality of Opulia, fifty thousand pounds, and a Cardinals Hat to be obtained for him by the Emperour; he seeming to loath the unstable state of Greatness, being yet himself the ficklest of all.

Sigismunds despondencies and fluctuations.

Maximilian stood more firmly to his business resolving to recompence his late losse; and suddenly (accompanied by Palfi and his other

Valcia's successes
in Hun-
gary.

Generals) forced Tata with a Petard, and besieged Papa; the Governour whereof Semendrus had sent him word to know, whether he that had dared to fight with Mahomet would try his force upon his Castle? if so, let him but come and give him liberty to draw his sword given him by the Sultan; and to a person of such Valour and boldnesse as him, the Gates should be opened. This Garrison being forced at last to render, the Walloons in Revenge slew most of them, the rest were saved by the means of the above-named Commanders. Maximilian likewise beleagured Raab; but such was the Confidence of Aly Bassa the Governour thereof, that he set open the Gates and drove the Cattel out of the Town to graze, shewing much jollity at the businesse; for soon after came Mahomet the Vizier, with 80000 Men, and took Vacia and Tata, after a siege of five weeks, & Maximilian being of no Competent Force to oppose, having done sufficiently by Defeating the Tartars a little while before, retreated to Csallokena, where he encamped, and built several Castles to secure his Entrenchments. which Mahomet attempting, was by the Courage of Colonitzius and Nadasdi, with losse disappointed; as was Sigismund Bathori with 14 thousand before Temeswar, from whence he was dislodged by a numerous Multitude of Turks and Tartars; but yet so easily that he took Chanada in his return home.

The Estates being assembled at Presburgh,
Stephen

Stephen Szulai, Nicholas Istvanfi, and Bartholomew Pecsi, were delegated to receive the Government from Sigismund, as being fully resolved for a Private Life, by the Examples of Dioclesian, who retired to Salonas, and Charles the fifth, to the Monastery of Justus; but with greater Moderation than Constancy: passing now from Kovasockzium thorough Hungary into Silesia: So the Hungarians, Siculi, and Saxons, swore Allegiance to the Emperour, against whom the Turk having effected nothing by his Chiauxes, threatned an Army of Three hundred thousand Men; but Fortune had otherwise disposed a kindnesse for him at hand, by prompting Swarzburg and Palfi to the recovery of Raab, by the Device of a Petard and the secret close conveyance of the Design. Swarzburg to this purpose chose out 2050 of his most daring Souldiers, and Palfi 3000; these without Drum or Trumpet passed over the Memphon Woods in the silence of the night being guided by Felxremeth newly discharged out of the Prison of that place: but nothing contributed so much to the Successe of this Enterprize as the Confidence of the Enemy, who boasted, that When the Weather-cock upon one of the Towers should crow out, then Raab should be regained by the Christians. Being thus arrived unseen or unheard, to the Walls of the Town, Babacurtus to whom the lesser Petard was entrusted, found the outward Gate, and that leading to Alba (by the fatal negligence Palfi's & Swarzburg's Successful Enterprize upon Raab.

Raab surprized & taken after a sharp & bloody Dispute.

gence of the Enemy) not locked up , which he straightwayes opened , when they all took it for an Omen that the Presence of God was with them , and that he had been by Prayers interested in the attempt. To the inward Gate the Petard was applied which shivered it in peices, and broke the Bars and Hinges, making way for Babacurtus and Oberenpruccus, to enter and gain the Market place. Swarzenburgh staid at the Gate careful of the Event, as to avoyd Confusion among one another, and to secure them of Aid; and now the Enemy half naked ran to Arms ; but as if cold water had been poured upon them , were assoon stupified and amazed ; yet at the last raged with such fury in revenge of their unavoidable death , that three Fanizaries put five hundred to flight. In this hazzardous juncture Palsius came to the succour of Swarzenburgh , and one of his Horsemen refusing to alight , dismounted first himself, and by his example animated the rest to follow him. A Bloody fight being now renewed , Haly Bassa was slain, and the opened-day discovered an entire Victory to the Christians. A very great spoil was here divided; an Hundred eighty eight Great Guns sent to the Emperour, by whom Babacurtus the messenger was rewarded with 4000 Guilders, & a 1000 anually; Swarzenburgh with a hundred thousand Guilders , and the Town of Hustopecium and Government of Raab ; Palsius because it was a service due to his Countrey, was very very well content with a Cup worth a thousand pound.

But in Transylvania Fortune shewed her self partial in respect to this her indulgence at Raab. Michael the Vayvod of Valachia, a Valiant Prince, had voluntarily embraced the present state of the Emperours Affairs, by a League ratified with his Commissioners at Ter-govistium, by which the Sons of Michael were to succeed their Father in the Principality; to acknowledge the Emperour without any Tribute; his Family failing, the Estates shall have the power of Election; the League to be offensive and defensive. This affair so happily transacted in Valachia, was crossed by another in Transylvania. Sigismund with his usual inconstancy (his Crimes suffering him no where to be at quiet, but hurrying him from place to place) in a disguise arrived in Transylvania, and came to Claudianopolis, pretending non-payment of his Pension, and other dissatisfaction; and was there by the Magistrates received as their Prince, as to whose Government they had been accustomed. The like did Stephen Boskay Captain of the Guards, who partly with perswasions, and partly with terror, Awed his Colleague Cornisus and Moses Szekely Governour of the Siculi, to a Compliance with the Faction; the Force and armed Power whereof constrained the Commissioners above-named, who had in vain expected Sigismund Racockzi the Emperours General,

Sigismund
resumes
the Principality of Transylvania by means of Boczkey.

to

Sigis-
mund's
Excuses.

to swim with the present Current of Affairs, and to Complement his return to the Government; which the Vulgar so madly entertained that they were ready to limb Cornisius for putting them in mind of their Oath to the Emperour. The Commissioners were soon after summoned to appear before Sigismund, which as necessity required they obeyed, to whom he (as his Custome was) excused the business, complaining that the Principality of Opulia answered not the promises made concerning it: but neverthelesse he would continue his faith to the Emperour; and so dismissed them to Cassovia.

The Turks
intermeddle and besiege Va-radin but repulsed.

The Province thus in Commotion, Mehemeth Satergis Bassa with 60000 Men, came to fish in those troubled waters; and although deprecated by Sigismund, laid Siege to Varadin; the Governour whereof George Kyraly maintained it in the Right of the Emperour, who sent to him with supplies Nyari and Rederns. Thirty dayes the City was besieged, at the Expiration whereof the Turks incommodated with Rain and tempestuous weather were forced to rise: as did Matthias the same day, and by the same intemperance of the Weather from Buda, having besieged it just so many dayes together; but he lost not the whole Expedition as did the Turk, for in the beginning thereof he took Palotta, Vesprinium, and other places.

Sigismund thus Established endeavoured his re-reconciliation with the Emperour, and received his Wife again, so that there was again a right understanding, by the Clemency and good nature of Rudolphus, established between them; insomuch that he sent Basta with an Army to aid him against the Turks. But another Freak taking him in the head, while he seemed to intend a firmer and stricter Union, having substituted his Uncle, Cardinal Andrew Bathori, and the Bishop of Varmia (by the Policy of Sigismundus, who designed upon these Provinces) to the Government, he himself again repudiated his Wife, and breaking off the Treaty with Cesar, privily fled into Poland. by which means the Principality was engaged in great Troubles; for the Cardinal presently possessed himself of the whole Country, whereupon ensued Hostility betwixt him and Maximilian; Basta with his Army moving from Cassovia to the Expulsion of Bathori, having obliged Michael the Vayvod of Valachia to be constant to his late League; who the better to conceal his Design, pretended to take part with the Cardinal, buying Powder and Bullets in his Countrey which he intended to use against him; and first took Corona, and drew the Siculi to his party, and in a sudden encounter, (but obstinately maintained) put Andrew to flight, who hoping to escape over the Oytozian Alps into Poland, was there torn in peices by the Siculi. This Event determined the Allegiance of the Transylvanians to Maximilian, by

by his Commissioners Michael the Vayvod, and Basta

Mahomet the Grand Seignior being deterred by his Mother and his Cheif Sultana, from going any more in person to the War, having been so neerly endangered at Keresztur, that in his flight for hast he lost his Turbant, committed the Expedition to Ibrahim his Chief Vizier. To be ready prepared against this Invasion, Zwarzenburg, Palfi, and Nadasdi, reduced Tata, and attempted Alba Regalis by Petards clapt to the Gates; but their Designe being discoverd, the Garrison sallied out and routed the Frenchmen that had the orders of the Engine, and seized one of the Petards, which was carried to Buda, where the Barbarians, not daring to discharge it, Bastinadoed the Frenchmen they had taken to the Experiment, when it flew into peices and miserably mangled and killed the standers by.

Ibrahim
the chelf Viziers Expedition into
Hungary.

Ibrahim being arrived, pretended Peace, and gave notice thereof to Palfi, whereupon Deputies met in the Island of Vizze, equally distant between Strigonium and Buda. The Turk demanded Fileck, Strigonium, Novigrad, Raab, with future security; the Christians stand to their just possession of them; that Peace would be welcome, but not upon such terms. Ibrahim perceiving no advantage could be expected this way, the Christians also declining Battel, made an Irruption into the Countrey, and most barbarously laid wast all that that Tract of Ground which lies betwixt the Rivers Waegh, Nitre and Ippolus; multitudes of Sick and Diseased persons at the Pesthenian Bathes, were abandoned to the Cruelty of the Enemy, and crawling in the Roads made most horrible lamentations. Nor spared he any place Sacred, or Profane, or Condition of men; of whom with Children and Infants crying after their Parents, he carried 3000 away into Captivity. This Desolation Swarzemburg helplessly beheld, although instigated by Palfi to set upon those ravenous Miscreants; but he was loth to hazard his Army. Palfi himself therefore impatient of the Insolence, set upon a Party of Six thousand at Palankin, and destroyed them; and upon the retreat of Ibrahim, with the highest rage burnt down, & took in several Towns, and among the rest Coppan, and Dombo.

His ravaging Crueltys

It was now the Year 1600. famous for the great Jubile of Clement the eighth, when Michael the Vayvod of Transylvania, elated with his prosperous Successes, ambitiously affected the Sovereignty of all Dacia, and by keeping Transylvania in his Power began to be suspected by the Emperour, as he was likewise hated by other of his Neighbours for his Invasion of Moldavia, in prosecution of his Quarrel against Sigismund; who to revenge his Uncles Death, did now instigate Samoischus to send Aid to Jeremy of Moldavia, and to furnish him with an Army for an Expedition into Transyl-

The end of Michael the valiant Vayvod of Valachia.

Transylvania, in which he was assisted by Moses Szekely, Francis Vas, and Gabriel Bethlen (better known to the English by the name of Bethlehem Gabor) Michael having timely notice of their Embodiment (leaving his Wife and his Son Peterschones in Transylvania) speedily passed over the Alps, and at Nester fell unexpectedly upon Jeremy and Sigismund, and made a great slaughter of the Poles and Cossacks, with the Discomfiture of thirty thousand of his Enemies. By this Victory he possessed himself of Suchava and all Moldavia, and horribly havocked Bessarabia, Russia, and Podolia.

Samoyscius impatient of this Insolence, having Collected an Army at Bosorum, wrested the Victory out of the Victors hands, and drove him out of Moldavia into the abruptnesses of the Mountains by the River Sereczinum, whither having also pursued him by the incessant diligence of the Cossacks, he thence drove him round into Transylvania from whence he first began the War; when judging it neither safe nor necessary to engage his Polish Army in an Enemies Countrey, he Deputed Michael Szekhely to follow him & to seize the Principality. This Basta opposed, sending Csaka as from the Emperour, to bid them desist from Invasion of his Dominions; to which when Samoyscius answered that there was no other Design, but to prosecute Michael as the Common Enemy and onely Cause of

of these Troubles by the Turks; Basta enough offended against Michael, offered his own Army to his suppression, upon the same account as Csaki managed his Commission to Samoy-scins, to gain the Principality to himself. The Michael Vayvod understanding this Conjunction, sent ^{defeated} to desire leave that he might be heard in his ^{flies to} own defence, which being denyed, he levyed an Army of Twenty thousand men; but was again Defeated and forced to fly to Tergovistia, whence (being betwixt the Hammer and the Anvile, Basta & Moses Szekeheli) he escaped over the Severine Alps to Prague, where he hoped to vindicate and clear his actions, as Csaki foolishly, yet impudently laboured, in Csaki's the absence of Maximilian, for his Investiture in Transylvania; not Considering that Dignity is not hastily to be desired & prosecuted, although by a person of great Merits: Time must be attended in which it may appear that by such preferment a man hath rather given then received a benefit.

Intrigues.

As the distempers of the Great ones were The French monstrous, so was the malign dispositions of mutiny at the Souldiery. The French Garrison of Papa ^{Papa.} mutyning for their Pay, had seized and secured the Governour Michael Marochi, and slew all that opposed them, Conditioning with the Turk, for their Arrears, to deliver them the Castle; but the Turk, either mistrusting them, or too tenacious of his money, made no use of the advantage. News hereof being brought

Q

to

Their punishment.

to Swarzburg, he laid Siege to them, losing a great many men by a fierce Eruption of the French, who knew what they might trust to if taken, wherein himself also was slain by a Bullet. Kederus succeeded him in the Supreme Command, who beat the French back into the Town and there closely shut them up; but he also died of a sudden Disease before the surrender, and left the Atchievement to Nadasdi; who having reduced them to a dog-hunger, and starved them to skin and bone, made them yeild the place; at which time some few were by the pittiful Souldiers knockt on the head, the rest were tortured to death with most Exquisite Cruelties, some of them Choaked to death upon the Wheels of a Water-mill, after many Descents and Ascents; some Roasted with a slow Fire; and others given to the Dogs.

Sigismund
resumes
his Principality.

Transylvania is our next Stage, troubled with a smatch of the same disloyalty to the Emperour; who delaying his answer to their Commissioners, Sigismund again stept in and recovered the Principality, vacating those Powers and Instructions given them to treat. Next he imprisoned Cornisus, Pancratus, Senegus, and others, who favoured the Emperours Title. This afforded an occasion to Michael's Restitution, who being dismiss from Prague with a substitutory Command and Power, and seemingly reconciled with Basta by the mediation of Gonzaga Governour of Va-radin,

radin, joyntly engaged Sigismund and his Generals Barbelius (lame with the Gout and Cramp) and Moses Szekehely, as their Army (in a Confusion and without any care) was descending from the Mountain of Doroslone, Sigismund and soon put them to flight. Here were slain Defeated. Ten thousand, and a hundred and thirty Ensigns taken. This new Successe so Exalted the mind of the Vayvod that he could in no wise brook Basta's Superiority (by so many prosperous accidents transported indeed from a just and moderate man, to very ungoverned and rapinous actions.) They were both at Claudiopolis where the old Grudge seemed to have been wholly forgotten, when Basta by a crue of bloody *Walloon*s caused him to be assassinated; The Vay- and his Companions and followers to be dis- vods assassinated. persed and to fly for their lives; by which Artifice and impudence together, he imposed on the Emperour that he was killed in a fair manner and upon a just Quarrel, which the Emperour was glad to dissemble, while from this impune and flagitious fact he took courage to proceed to greater and more dedecorous and base practises.

For now under colour of Heresy and Schism and the care of the Emperour's Revenue; whatever Silver or other moneys could be discovered was seized by him, so that the People when they looked for a protection, perceived their was no such thing meant them by this Stork, who pilled and fleeced them to their skin;

' Glory is cherished by industry; when there is ' no room for that, Vertue her self is very un' pleasant, and where rewards attend the vici' ous, scarce any will be good gratis. Bistricia had refused to open the Gates to him, which he forced and barely plundered, seizing all their best wealth in money and attire to his own use, and then gave it a spoyl to his Souldiers, who left not a Covering to the Women. Nay, so miserable was the Calamity of the Transyl- vanians at this time, that they were neer famished, all their Cattel being driven into Silesia;
 and one measure of Wheat sold at 25 Guilders, which money would have bought formerly two hundred. Thus by leisurable degrees did the Divine Justice and indignation proceed to punish and revenge the breach of their League with the Turks, the heavynesse of the infliction computing for the delay of it. Sigismund fled to Brassone to excite and engage the Turks, in which affair after he had fruitlessly employed Moses Szekelehy, he began to sink and des-pond and finally cast himself upon the Emperour, of whom after a Truce condescended to by Basta, he obtained pardon, and a yearly Revenue of 50000 Guilders, with the Principality of Lobkowitz which maintained him among the Bohemians to an old & unreverenced Age.

Sigis-
 mund's &
 the Tran-
 sylvanians
 Breach of League
 with the Turks severely punished.

But the stirs in Transylvania ceased not with him: for another intestine War was kindled by Moses Szekelehi and Bethlen Gabor, in pretence of asserting their Countrey, but really,

it was a Turkish Design: these two Basta encountered between Alba Julia and Varadgya, & after a Bloody dispute put them to flight: both the Captains escaped, but whither? to Be-ctessus the Bassa of Temeswar, as more humane than the German Christians; whose outrages and their Generals uncontrolled power and insolence was solely imputable to the sloth and degenerate idleness of Rudolph. Basta used this Victory with all extremity of Fire and Sword, to such a ruine and destruction of the Commonalty, Gentry and Nobility, that they wished for Turkish and Tartarian Slavery.

The State of Syria in the Western parts of Affairs in Hungary was alike Calamitous, groaning under the Tyranny of the Enemy and the pressures of their lawful Sovereign. Ibrahim Bassa with the Aga of the Janizaries with a body of them amounting to twenty four thousand, arrived at Mohacz intending the siege of Strigonium; but at the intreaty of Nasuff Governour of Sigeth, whose Contributaries Herbensteyn had severely handled; they first blocked up and took Babocza, and then besieged Canyisa, where George Paradyser was Governour (the same who perswaded the surrender of Cliffia in Illyria) who with the height of Courage maintained it against the Turks, after he had sustained great losse by the blowing up of his Powder, which was supplied to him by George Serinus; and at the same time came Matthias

Canyfa
yeilded to
the Turks
by Parady-fer for which he lost his head at Vienna.

the Arch-Duke, and Philip Emanuel Duke of Mercœur, with 25, others say but Fourteen thousand to his releif. This Duke did excellent service against the Enemies Horse, and in his last Encounter with them gave them so notable a Defeat, that it was not doubted but that the Enemy would rise & be glad to be gone; but Provision being scarce in their Camp (of which the Turks are alwayes frugal and yet better provided) they were forced to forsake the Town, and that in such haste and disorder, that Paradyfer daunted therewith (although he knew the necessity of the Turks departure) for that the Horse had nothing but a few Leaves to feed upon, and was encouraged to hold out till their return, delivered the place to the Enemy, upon Condition of a free departure, which brought him to Vienna, where being publicuely Convicted he lost his head upon a Scaffold. Ibrahim after this Acquist was very solicitous about a Peace, but while it was negotiated he died.

Ferdinand, afterwards Emperour, the Nephew of Rudolphus by Charles his Brother, was at this time Governour of Styria, Carniola, and Carinthia; he in the Year 1660. had Married Mariana the Daughter of Will. Duke of Bavaria, which Lady being a zealous Catholick, would not enter the Limits of his Dominions until purged of Hæresie, & the Libertys granted to those of the Augustan Confession were taken away; which the Arch-Duke at the instance of the Jesuits rescinded, and by Oath

Oath obliged himself to the Pope that he would severely handle the Professors of the Protestant Religion within his Dominions, and hereupon they were either banished and forced from their Houses, or plundred and killed, with such inhumanity that the Papists blowing up their Churches with Gun-powder, raged against the bones of the dead and the graves of them, common and allowed to all men; insomuch that what the Turks had spared, was not spared by them.

To these outrages, the Protestants opposed the Treaty at Passaw; and challenged the assurance and faith plighted by the Arch-Duke himself, by which in 1581. he confirmed his Fathers Agreement with the States, during which space of eighteen years and upwards, he had received the sum of Nine hundred thousand Florens of the Rhine, the price of their Liberty of Conscience; but notwithstanding this manifesto they were commanded to depart, and those that stayed spoiled and undone. No hopes of redresse appearing, and the rumour of Bozckay's proceeding in Hungary in favour of the Religion inviting them thither, they forsook their Countrey and prosperously Seated themselves there. To omit the barbarity practised on the inhumed Corps (as the demolishing of their Churches at Gratz) of William Zimmerman the Protestant and an eminent Minister of the place, which they threw into the River Mur.

Canyla
besieged by Ferdinand

But Ferdinand's successe was answerable to this injustice, he was engaged in the siege of Canyla (assisted therein by Aldobrand the Popes Legate with his Italian Forces) wherein none but Roman Catholics by the advice of Sigismund Count of Thurn, afterwards drowned, were suffered to be lifted, lest the impiety of the Protestants might cause the Enterprize to miscarry. The Governour of the Town was Hafanes, who with 800 men and as many more received from Zigeth and Buda, (by the negligence of Orphus Gallonius the General of the Ordinance) resolutely maintained it; this Orphus in filling the ditches with Wood from the adjoyning Forrest (which work went slowly forward) was shot with a Culverin bullet and killed. Nor did Cesar Porta his Successour make much more haste or speed, being tired out with the Enemies salleys: no more then the relief from Matthias to animate his cousin, which consisted of 6000 men led by Christoph. Roseworm, and the Duke of Mercoeurs Lieutenant General: for by the unexperience of the General and Officers (who failing of their reinforced attempts had no mind to venture again) they protracted so long, till cold Winter with storms and frosts made them desert their stations (a thousand Horsemen being frozen stiff in one nights time) being also surcharged with snow, hunger, wearinesse, and which is worst of all, over-watching in attending the industrious Enemy; who now by their de-

The siege
broken up.

departure gained their Ordinance; and satisfied their Cruelty upon the sick and wounded persons left behind. Thus the Protestants, who were scandalized from being present, were saved from the ruine that involved the Papists.

Far more renownedly did the Duke of Mercoeur deport himself at Alba, which he besieged with twenty thousand Men; Christopher Roseworm with great labour and diligence passing a thousand men over the Bog to the Suburbs, two whereof the Insulary and the Desliacan were easily gained, others being encouraged by the adventure to follow them. The Alba 'Re-Enemy having nothing but the City to defend galis taken made a resolute resistance, but was in fine beaten off the Walls, and the Town regained in by the D. of Mercoeur.
 the 58 year after it had been taken by Solyman.
 This Victory the licentiousnesse of the Souldiers greatly blemished, the City being ransacked by them, where they spared not the bones of the Kings from which the Turks had Religiously abtained. The new Garrison consisting of a thousand German Foot, and six hundred Hungarians, was committed to the Government of Marcus Insulanus, famous for his Defence of Varadin, and Michael Vatai.

The report of this losse being brought to Hasanes, he joyned with the Vizier Bassa, resolving to attempt Mercoeurs Camp, to whose rescue very opportunely came Matthias; the fight was managed with equal spirit and strength till

Alba regained by
the Turks.

till the Hungarians began to flinch, at which time Amurath Bassa of Buda, with Mahomet Beg were slain with a Bullet, which changed the fortune of the day, and put the Turks to flight. There were slain 5000. of them, but yet they gave not over their design, for the next year, the noble Duke of Mercoeur being dead at Norimberg, Hasanes returned to Alba, and before the Governors had repaired the ruins of the Fortifications, was close at the Walls, whereupon the Germans basely betrayed the Town. The Garrison was dismissed, but Insulanus and Vatai being interrogated, if the Delivery was made with their Consent, to which they answered peremptorily in the Negative, were both of them laid hold on, and made Captives, the Turks saying, That their promise was made to the willing, nor were they obliged to them withwhom they had made no Contract.

The Sieges
of Buda & Pesth.

To maintain this violent Turkish War the Estates of Germany proffered 80 months pay to the Emperour, whose General Roseworm, to recompence the losse of Alba, besieged Buda, while Althamius who succeeded Palfi in the Government of Strigonium valiantly gained Pesth; Buda being hereby hard put to it, Hasan with 30 thousand men came to besiege it, and had beaten Roseworm, who passed the Danow to encounter him, to the very walls of Pesth, when Matthias came in and rescued him: but they parted so equally that both Sieges were carried on at the same time, in which nothing thing was memorable but an Engagement of Cracius, the General of the Horse, with the Turks, in which he was worsted, until Hasan for want of Provision departed for Belgrade, and left Roseworm in his old leagure.

The Christians were much animated at the sight of it, taking in after him Colocza, Paxus, and other places 60. miles below Buda, by the Heyducks; and the Budenses the more spirited and quickened to a resistance, as they made appear in their Salleys and resolute Eruptions, seizing their very Cannons, and nailing up their touch holes, which was acted while Roseworm was playing at Cards, and carelesse of the matter; This dishonour was seconded with a greater danger, Oner and Ibrahim Beg having drained the Garrisons of Alba, Sygeth, and Canysa, came afresh to their relief, but after a sharp Conflict they were overthrown by Nadasdi, &c. While Collonicz sustained and repelled the besieged. Notwithstanding such Buda's Seige broke up. was the unclemency of the weather, by showers, frost, and snow, that Matthias cursing the place where he had been so often unfortunate, was forced to draw off to Winter quarters, leaving Albert Princestayn to the defence of Pesth.

The Plague and Earthquakes in Hungary and Austria this year denoted the ensuing mutations in the Kingdome; for the Tartars and Turks by a most sudden irruption laid wast all the Country, extending Westward to Papa, the Mountain

* Herman-
stad.

Radulo
the Vay-vods Successes against the Rebels in Transyl-
vania.

tain of Camenesum, and what ground lyes between the rivers Dravus and the Mur to Perlatum, not without the indignation of Count George Serini, then lying on his death bed.
Transylvania was in the usual variable condition, there was a general famine, with a scarcity of money, and all other mischiefs arising thence; the Soldier demanded his pay and provision, which being not to be had, a defection followed, and the Army marched to Zac-mar. Upon their departure, Moses Szekhe-lij was constituted Prince, and did Homage to Mahomet, and aided by Beetessus the Bassa of Temeswar, and the affections of the people took in Caransebesse, Alba Julia, Clandia-polis, Cibinium*, and soon after possessed himself of all Transylvania, but this good fortune lasted not long, for Radulo the Successor of Michael in the Vaivodship of Valachia a friend of the Emperours, and who made good his predecessors League, surprized him by night, routed his Turks and Tartars, and sent 30.
Standards to Prague. There were slain in this Fight Moses himself, with many Nobles, and 4000. others, revenged in part soon after by the defeat of the Count of Solms who was sent Prisoner to Constantinople, the reciprocation of which ill fortune, befel the aforesaid Bassa of Temeswar, and Albertus Nagii, whom Henry Duval Count of Tampyrum, and Lewis Rakoczi totally vanquished, and again recovered Transylvania to the Emperour, who by
the

the advice of John Molard, and Nicholas Brukhayser, appointed a Decemvirate for the Government of the Province, which continued till annulled by Boczka.

Things succeeded as prosperously in Hungary, but the Covetousnesse of the Governours spoiled all; Nadasdi and Collonicsius subdued Laccum and Bolondvarum, and cruelly wasted the Country in revenge of the late irruption, and before Amurath of Bada could joyne with Hafanes, forced him to fight and routed him, at last came Hafanes, and faced Roseworm encamped at Strigonium, who no way declining the Encounter, which lasted till Evening with great fury, put the Infidels to the run, (the great Guns having peppered the Janizaries) with the losse of 7000 men.

The fruit of this victory was the reduction of Hatvanum, newly restored to the Turk, and the firm Munition and strengthening of Pesth. This year Sultan Mahomet, unable to go or scarce stand upon his Legs by reason of his fatnesse, died among his Concubines, Pathick boyes, and Troops of Eunuchs, leaving his Son Achmet a stripling to the Succession in the Government, who presently applied himself to Peace. In order whereto Commissioners met in the Fields neer to Rakos, but the Turks insisting on the Restitution of Strigonium and Raab, and the Emperour demanding Canyisa, the Treaty came to nothing.

The year 1604. began with the old grievances,

Persecution against the Prote-stanes in Tranfyl-
vania.

ces in Transylvania concerning Religion, and the great Church of Cassovia, that had been granted by Basta to the Cannennicks of Amna, besides that John Barbianus the Count of Belgiocosa and the Emperours Governour in that Town by his Jesuiticall and most severe inquisition was horribly dreaded by the Protestants, an infinite number of whom he had banished out of their Countrey: About this time came an Ambassadour from Hodabanda King of Persia, offering his assistance against the Turk, in this juncture of the minority of Achmet, and advising the Christians to Unity, which so encouraged Rodolph, that he resolved to employ all his Forces against that Enemy. Basta was therefore placed in the Command of Roseworm, thought too slow in the service, Barbianus made Governour of Transylvania, and Collonicz in the Room of Thurzo of that part of Hungaria which lyes beyond the Danow to Dravus. Hafanes hearing of these preparations took the feild and frightened the Governour out of Pesth and the Garrison out of Hatvanum, Strigonium was by him in vain beleiged, & thereby the Turkish power had in Contempt, for that the Hungarians perceived they were more oppressed by their own Souldiers and the feuds of their Commanders, then they were by their Enemies.

This, and some other Instigations and instincts concerning their privileges, the insolence of the Germans and the late Inquisitions, caused them to adhere to Stephen Bocskay, then appearing appearing in Transylvania, to which Province the Turks had preferred Gabriel Bethlen, but he modefter in prosperous then adverse fortune, had passed it to Bocskay, and made himself a Partisan to his Designs, having with Bectessus of Temeswar, attempted Lippa: but while he lingered there, Lewis Racokzi, and the Count of Tampirium, surprized their Camp and made a great slaughter, the Bassa and Bethlen made a shift to escape half naked and half a sleep; Bethlen leaving his Cloaths to be ransacked; where were found some Letters with the Heads of the Conspiracy agreed upon between Bocskay and himself, which were afterwards confirmed by some of the Prisoners.

Barbianus, the matter being so full of danger, instantly hasted to the Camp at Rekomaza, and put the Souldiers in readinesse, and summoned Bocskay, who made many tergiversations and delays but denyed the Confederacy. This encreased the suspition, and advised Barbianus to put it to a speedy decision by battel. The Heyducks were at first induced to take up arms with him, but understanding the peril of their Religion, although their Commanders had been newly ensnared by an Oath of fidelity to Cesar, they revolted to the Confederates. Thereafter ensued a fight at Adorjanyum, where Bocskay prevailed against Becsius one of the Emperours Generalls, by a casuall firing of his Train of Powder, and took his Camp richly furnished, which ill successe so ferretted Barbiani shut up

Bocskay
appears in Transyl-
vania.

The Imperialists worsted by Bocskay.

Bocskay's appearance in Transylvania !
assisted by the Nobility.

up by forces on every hand, and informed likewise that Valentine Homonnai was declared for Bocskay, that he departed from Tockay, as he fled before from Varadin (mistrusting the defence of both places) and came to Cassovia where John Bocacius the Mayor of the City being a Lutheran denyed him entrance, whose examples Eperjessum, Cibinium the lesse and other places soon after followed. Bocskay departing for Cassovia, sent before him Blasius Lippai (whom for his brute valour he raised from a sordid degree to a great Command, and afterward for his insolence beheaded him, and reduced his Wife to her former condition) who was well-comed and the Magazines and Treasures afterwards opened to Bocskay, soon after saluted and presented there with all the Princely Ensignes and Ornaments by Rakoczi, Homonnai, Nyari and other the chief Noblemen; In the meanwhile Blasius Lippai besieging Barbianus in Scepusium, was repelled by the valour of Thurzo, as Blasius Nemethus the Captain of the Heyducks ranging for prey, was intercepted by Basta, defeated, and his head struck off.

Basta with 15000 men shook the confidence of the confederates, whereupon they strengthened themselves with the assistance of Mahomet the Grand Vizier, and encountred the Imperialists at the River Moldava, where although they stood the first shock yet were they not able to endure the firm constancy of the Germans; who thereupon recovered Szendreia and freed Rubens, Rubens beseiged in Tockay: Basta being thus every day victorious admonished Bocskay, to lay down his Arms, and frame and compose his seditious mind to his Duty and Aleigeance; to which Bocskay answered, that war was better than Peace unlesse Transylvania were left wholly to him; and the Generals, Governours, and Castellanes of Hungary be all of that Nation, that the forraign Souldiery be put out of the Realm, and the free Exercise of Religion allowed. But this Confidence of Basta was soon blasted, for his Coveteousnesse having made him odious to his Souldiers who were without pay, they fell into a Mutiny and assaulted him in his Quarters (the Convoy of twenty nine Waggon laden with money and Cloth for the Souldiery, themselves having stolen and carried them away, part into Poland, and part to Bocskay:) nevertheless having something pacified the Souldiers he attempted Cassovia but in vain, & thence retreated to Lenchovia, his Army deserting him in the way; insomuch that Francis Redei with a small party of 2000 Heydukks, and the bent of the People, took in twenty Towns: besides many Castles betwixt the Rivers Sayon, Ippolus, and Waegh, revolted to him.

These Successes caused the Emperour to send away the Bishop of Vesprinium, and Sigismund Forgacz his Ambassadors to Bocskay, to whom (the Turk being very observant and intent upon his actions) he at the first audience publickly profest, that if they were sent

R

from

Basta deserted by his Souldiery for want of Pay.

Bockskays
answer to the Emperours Ambassadors.

from the Hungarian Nobility, their Embassy was welcome and acceptable to him; but otherwise, if they came from the Emperour it was to no purpose, for that he had engaged so far that he could not possibly recede. At a Diet held at Szerencsum soon after, he laid down the Causes of his present undertaking, namely, the Defence of Religion, the Liberty and safety of the People. At the end of which Oration he was confirmed by the Estates in the Principality, and the Roman, Lutheran, and Calvinian Doctrines received promiscuously. The Chief Præfecture of Transylvania, and the Supreme Command of the Army was conferred, the first on Sigismund Rakoczi, the latter on Valentine Homonnai.

His successes.

From this Diet in Hungary he returned into Transylvania, where he was met with a Turkish Chiaux, who presented him with the usual Ensigns of the Investiture from the grand Seignior, to whom he dispatched away Stephen Corlatus, and George Kikedi, his Ambassadors with the Homage and Presents, the more envious, for that some German Youths were added thereunto. From Cassovia, Bocskay invited Stephen Illyeshazi (fled for his Treason) out of Poland, and by the valour of the Heyduckes took Trincinum, Fueleck, Zackmar; as Nitria by the inconstancy of the Garrison was delivered to Francis Redei by Sigismund Forgacz the Bishop of the place. Which losses with want of money so disabled Basta, besides that that he was in great danger of his life, that he fled to Presburgh, where Collonitz endeavoured to relieve him, but his Souldiers turned sides; Tyrnam hereupon yeilded, and Stanislaus and Christopher Thurzo submitted to Redejus.

Hence the War was carried into Moravia by Eight thousand Heyducks and a thousand Turks, Commanded by Dengelegius who brought away 4000 Captives thence; and Tockay was at the last extremity delivered by Renberus, whose Fidelity and Valour Bocskay himself commended. The Revolt of the Isle of Csallockoes followed this rendition, and gave advantage to 6000 of the Confederates (so attempted were Bocskay's party called) to make an attempt upon Presburgh (burning in their way thither St. George and other Towns) whence being rejected by Basta, they turned their Invasion upon Austria, which they destroyed as far as Prinquelia. At the same time Nemethus to enlarge this Devastation passed the Danubius at Sabaria, to whom Nadasdi and other Noblemen for fear of their own Territories, joyned themselves; and even to the wonder of the Barbarians, sacked all that Tract of ground lying betwixt Layla and Arrhabon, pretending Religion as the incentive to this inmane Cruelty; although they unmercifully tortured the reformed Ministers, and sold very Infants for Slaves to the Turks, to such a detestation, that God caused Blood to drop out of Gold paid by a Turk to a Christian for one of those Captives.

R 2

This

Presburgh attempted and Austria invaded by Bocskays Party.

The like ravage
made in Styria by Nemethus
and others.

This Countrey Desolated, he fell next into Styria, and barbarously used the Town, situated betwixt Arrhabon, Pingua, and Lappinicia; and had almost shook the Allegiance of Drascovitius the Governor of Illyria; but he recovering himself, and assisted by Trautsmendorf, raised an Army of ten thousand men and drove Nemethus out of Sclavonia together with his Partakers, among whom were some Tartars, to Zigeth, Coppan, and other their respective Holds and Garrisons: by which means Drascovitius gained to himself great Authority and Renown. But these most horrid Divisions hastned the Common Ruin; for Mahomet the now prime Vizier, who had delivered Strigonium himself to the Christians, besieged it in person, which Bocskay quarrelled, alleadging that by his League with them no City in Hungary ought to be taken by the Turks; but being not Master of himself, he sent Homonnai either at the request or Command of Mahomet with 6000 men: and not long after the Town within ten years of its reduction, was delivered by William Oetingensis and his Germans; who diffiding in the Hungarians dismiss them out of the Town, not to this onely disadvantage, for they presently thereupon joyned with Redejus against the Emperour, to whom Ersekuyvarum was yeilded by the consent of Matthias, upon the promise of Redejus that it should not come into the Turks Hands, but be restored when ever the War should be composed.

Mahomet

Strigonium yeilded again to the Turks 1605. in the third year of the reign of Acemet.

Mahomet the Vizier now summoned Bocz-kay to Buda, to the Solemnization of the Marriage of the Bassa of that City, who met him on his way as far as Rakos, and introduced him in State, where Bocz-kay did Homage for Transylvania, and submitted it under the protection of the Turks: whereupon he was presented with a Crown as King also of Hungary (supposed to have been the Constantinopolitan Emperours, or the Despots of Thrace) and a Sword embellished with Gold, Jewels, and other Ornaments; all which (except the Crown) Bocz-kay accepted, but that he refused, acknowledging Cesar to have been duly crowned, for which his modesty was worthily praised, however he may be justly taxed of Sedition and Rebellion. By reason of this fealty the Vizier made him Tribute free for ten years, those expired, the yearly Tribute of ten thousand Guilders to be paid at the Port for the Upper Transylvania, at which agreement the Janizaries made great acclamations of Felicity, as expecting a Donative and Gratuity.

A Diet was soon after held by Bocz-kay at Corpona, whither came Sigismund Forgacz from Cesar, with Conditions of Peace, to which the Turk engaged by the Rebel Bassa's of Aleppo and Caramania, was inclinable: also in his own behalf, having first seen Bocz-kays Propositions. This Overture came to a Conclusion at Vienna, managed by Illyeshazi and Mlasodovitus, on the part of the Transylvanian

*The Emperor makes Peace with Bocskay,
the reason
thereof.* Cesar consenting to whatsoever Propositions, as knowing Boczkay must ere long dye without Issue. The Terms were, a general and mutual Amnesty and Oblivion, a Toleration of the Roman, Lutheran, and Calvinian Professions, a Palatine to be elected by the Votes of the Hungarians; the Chambers and new Courts to be abolished; The Treasury to be regulated by new Commissioners, the Hungarians to redeem the Castles pawned to the Germans; The Government to be administred by Hungarians; but Raab and Comorra may be governed by deserving Germans; All Transylvania, with that part of Hungary which Sigismund Bathori enjoyed, to belong to Boczkay, together with the Lordships of Tockay, Sacmar, &c. Which for want of Issue, shall revert to Cesar: if the Peace be not concluded with the Turk they shall joyn Arms; Bishops descended of the Nobility to have Voyce and place in Counsel, others not. This was ratified by the Deputies of all the upper Hereditary Provinces of the Emperour and firmed by the eminentest Nobility of both sides. Varadin was herewith yeilded to Bocskay, having all along been stoutly defended against him by Baptista Pecsius, as St. George and Bozinium were rendred to Illyeshazi.

The Articles of the Peace. *Peace with the Turk
also.* The Peace was also concluded with the Turk for 20. years. Achmet the Sultan to call Cesar Father, he Achmet Son, both to be saluted by the name of Cesars; all differences arising sing to be composed by the Governours of Ra- ab and Buda. The Castles and Fortresses to stand, but no new ones to be built; only the The Condi- Hungarians may repair Vaccia; Cesar shall tions of it.

 pay this year 200 thousand Imperials, but nothing afterwards; every three years the Emperours shall interchange Presents, and a faithful friendship shall be consolidated between them.
 This Transaction was followed by the Death of Boczka, who professed himself willing to dye, so that he had had the opportunity of purging himself, before the World and the Empire, of Sedition. He declared Valentine Homonnai by his last Will, for Prince of Transylvania, which Homonnai gaped after, but the Transyl- vanians chose Sigismund Rakoczi, and although Bocskay he made great reluctancy pretending several Ex- dyeth and cuses, yet at last they compelled him to Clau- appointeth senburgh, and made him assume the Principa- Homonnai lity, while Homonnai mad with rage, having for his sucplundered Boczka's treasures committed to the people him, retired to Ungnade; by whose Example chose Ra- Szecsi and Paul Nyari shared the like entrust- koczi.
 ments among themselves, the deserved and desired End of Goods got by Violence and Oppression.

Just before the Confirmation of this Turkish Peace, an Ambassador from Persia, came to Prague, and there by extolling his Masters power, and his resolution of destroying the Ottoman Name and Nation, put a demur to the ratification, which passed not till somewhat after,

after, when Matthias the Brother of the Emperour, was possessed of the Crown of Hungary; The Turk was instant to have it finished, and stormed exceedingly at the delay, for that Serdar Bassa who had possessed himself of Aleppo, Damascus, and Tripoli, with a formidable power, under smooth & dutiful pretences threatned Constantinople.

Matthias
gains to himself the Crown of
Hungary.

In the mean while (and the licentious rapines of the Heyducks upon all such Intervalls) Matthias, his Brothers Viceroy, prepared his way to the Crown of Hungary, urged thereunto by Illyeshazi, whose interest Rudolphus had used at the Diet at Ratisbone to prefer Ferdinand the Nephew of Charles his Brother; Hereupon Souldiers were listed by Matthias, to obviate the designs of the Spaniards, who would advance Ferdinand as more Catholick than himself: with these, under pretence of repressing the Heyducks, he came suddenly to Presburgh, and was received into the Castle by the Archbishop and Cardinal Pazman and Illyeshazi, at whose instances he possessed himself of the Crown. By him the late Articles of Vienna were confirmed (the Hungarians being obstinate to those terms) and upon that score Austria and Moravia also joyned with him, and vowed to live and dye in his Cause.

Having from hence raised an Army of 20. thousand men, he marched to Prague, where the Emperour delaying of his Grants to the Bohemians, hemians, (who had armed themselves in vindication of their Religion, and the same Privileges with the Papists) found himself so disappointed, that he condescended to the Inauguration of Matthias, in the kingdom of Hungary. He arrived at Presburgh the 22. of October, where he allowed the privileges aforesaid, the Election of a Palatine within a year after the others Decease, which Dignity had been vacant 46. years, ever since Nadasdi, together with the expulsion of the Jesuits. From thence he went to Cassovia, at which Diet held there, Sigismund Rakockzi, as Prince of Transylvania did him Fealty, and soon after resigned the Principality to Gabriel Bathori, having gained the Confirmation from Achmet, and an uninteressedness from Matthias. In all things, he shewed himself a person of great Justice and Modesty, in declining his assistance of the Rebels in Poland, and transferring this Sovereignty to another, when he was so beloved and courted by the people.

To passe by new commotions and discontents of the Hungarians about their Religion now invaded and infringed, but vindicated by the Elector of Saxony, and other Protestant Princes, who by arming themselves over-ruled Matthias; we return to matters of State: Ilyezhazi the new Palatine, built a new Fabrick in the Castle of Presburgh, for the Conservation of the CROWN; and Collonicus was advanced to a higher Dignity in that Kingdom, which

Prince Ba-
thori defeated by Radulo Vayvod of Valachia.

which had hitherto been in no condition to respect his merit. As to war it had its divertise-ment in Transylvania; Radulo the noble Vayvod of Valachia, refused Homage to Bathori, who incensed thereat (and designing the Seizure of all Dacia which the Turks had promised to Boczka) raised a puissant Army such as was hardly seen there before, and gave him Battle at Brassovia, where he was totally routed by the valour of the said Vayvod; which opportunity Matthias in Confederacy with that gallant person, so improved, that he possessed himself of Clansburgh, and other chief Holds by his General Forgacz, while Bathori betook himself to the Mountains.

He recovers his Losses again.
His infamous lust.

This Enterprize was the more easily carried on against him, for that his prodigious Lust made him odious to his Subjects; whose beautifullest Wives and Daughters he frequently and most openly vitiated. Notwithstanding such was his Fortune, that he beat Forgacz out of his Dominions, and forced him to hide himself in the Woods of Bohemia, after he had suffered very great Extremities. Yet the same Vicissitudinary fortune undid Bathori, betrayed by his Embassador Andrew Geczi to the Grand Seignior, who designed the Principality to himself, and whom the Bassa of Buda would have confirmed, but that Bathori betook himself (such the Reciprocation of these Interests) to the Protection & Friendship of Matthias, now elected Emperour of Germany, by whose assistance
the

the at instance of Thurzo the Palatine in the room of Illyeshaci Geczi was overthrown, & at the same time Bethlen Gabor substituted by the Turks to the same Dignity, at the price which Bathori had payed for it.

He enraged with this affront (besides that he was a man of a most incredible strength) ravagely fell upon his poor Subjects, who yet again bore with him while he renewed his debaucheries, whose vengeance every one of the Nobles incited. At this Juncture Bethlen made use of the Turks power and subdued Lippa, Aradum, and other places, whose rendition made Bathori suspectfull of all people, to betake himself by a speedy flight from Clausenburg to * Varadin, * Which he where admitted into the Castle, consultation rode in one was held concerning him by the Nobles, who day being advised Gregory Nadanyj, and George Szylasi distant 150 Eng- to assassinate him, and they after some reluctan- lish miles. cies of Conscience animated by the mortall jealousy of Decsius a Preacher of the Calvinist Faction, whose Wife Bathori most leudly loved, Prince Ba- at the second resolution assaulted & flew him in thori the street of Varadin called Velenze, as he was assassinated going to the Baths. by some of the Nobles.

Bethlen was immediately acknowledged by the Transylvanians, and confirmed for his presents & acknowledgments, both by the Turk and Emperour. His first Act was the vindication of Bathori's death, by the popular fury permitted upon his Assassins, whom he summoned to the dyet (with a salvo statu) then held at Medgy- sum.

sum. At the same time Achmet was ready Achmet in at Adrianople with an Army to invade Hun- preparati gary, but the Emir of Sidon (who derives him-on for war self from Godfrey of Bu'loyn) gave him a diver-in Hunga- sion; as did the Cossacks plague him in the ry dies Euxine Sea, by burning 24 of his Galleys, and 1617. infesting Thracia also by Land, but the chief remora of all was His death in the year 1617. Mustapha his brother succeeded him, but was presently deposed, and Osman Sultan O- Achmet's Son aged 16 years was saluted Em-manstrang- perour, who survived not long after, being led. strangled by Daout Bassa. Not to mention the War now commenced between the Emperour and the Venetians about Pyracies committed by the Uschocks and Chroats upon their Maritime Territories, as publick in a discourse by it self, which war was managed with great resolution by both parties in Dalmatia and Frinli.

The event of this unkind war, redounded to a good and amicable understanding between Matthias and Ferdinand, who was now adopted to the Crown, provided that he intermeddled not during the life of the Emperour; and the next year he was Crowned King of Hungary, at which time three Suns appeared denoting the mischeifs (if they may be so construed) that befell his Dominions in the ensuing War of Bohemia, first managed by Ernest Count Mansfeld for the reformed, and Count Bucquoy for the Emperour Matthias, who wearied with a lingring and continual distemper having lived

The Empe-
rors Matthias dieth.

62 years, and governed Hungary 12, as Germany 7 years, deceased with the blessings of a Peace to his Subjects.

FERDINAND the 2d. by the endeavours of Matthias being elected King, administered the Ferdinand Government by many alterations, the cause of which changes was the same the 2d. K. of Hungary with the usuall excesses of arbitrary Innovation, for he recalled the Jesuits in hatred of the Protestants, and very much infringed the Articles of Bocskay, which made them have recourse to the Count of Thurn then in Arms near Vienna.

At the same time the Bohemian Estates prevailing no more as to Liberty of Conscience, conferred the Kingdome on Frederick Count Elector Palatine, who animated by his Wife the only Daughter of James King of England, (of whose assistance together with the Dutch, he was made confident, as assured of a nearer help from Bethlen Gabor upon the same account of Religion) accepted thereof: The Hungarians raised hereupon by Teiffenback, thrust themselves into Silesia, more intent upon the prey then studious of the cause, while Bethlen having repulsed Homonnai, who had introduced the Jesuits into Claudiopolis, either hung or banished them, publishing a Proclamation against the entertainment or reception of any of that Bethlen Society.

And now in pursuance of his Confederacy takes part with Frederick K. of Bohemia with Frederick the Count Palatine, he rushed into Hungary, with an Army of 18000 men, of Bohemia.

and 18 great Guns, where meeting with a discontented part of the Nobles by the infringement of the abovesaid Articles, and strengthened by them, he took in Cassovia by his Lieutenants Redei and Szecsi, and by fair words cajoled Andrew Docrius the Generall of Upper Hungary by pretence of peace-making into a Captivity in Transylvania wherein he dyed. This proceeding so frightened the Jesuits and Friars, that they made what hast they could out of his way, so many places rendring themselves (led by the examples of the Mine Towns, of which Rosnoboiana was the first) as Fileck, Vaczia, Tyrnaw, Nitria, Posing, &c. that they knew not where to be secure, only Comorra and Raab firmly Garrisoned by Austrians withstood his Fortune.

Bethlen's
successes in
Hungary.

Part of the Army therefore was employed in an irruption into Moravia, the other being joyned with Thurn beseiged Presburgh, wherein was the Palatine of Hungary, with a small Garrison, and some Troops of Bacquoy in the Suburbs, the which he presently cut off, and thereupon the City yeilded it self with the Crown & other regal Ornaments, and gave him liberty by the seizure of some interjacent places, as Viscetis and Eberstorph to carry the terrour, with the sight of his Arms, to Vienna.

But here the misfortune that befell George Rakoczi, whom he had left his Vicegerent in Transylvania, impeded his further Progresse: George Honnonnai a firm adherer to the House of

of Austria, having fled from his late defeat into Poland, with a fresh supply thence, returned and encountred Rakoczi, by whom he was worsted; but recruited with present supplies engaged him again, which fight had lasted two dayes, when Homonnai by the counterfeit of a flight drew him into his ambushes and there discomfited him, the foot were all of them slain, Rakoczi and the Horse escaped by flight. This emergency recalled Gabor from Vienna, after he had caused himself to be proclaimed King of Hungary in defiance of Ferdinand, and contracted a firmer league with the Bohemians, to the designation of higher matters.

Rakoczi
his Vice Roy defeated by Homonnai.

Ferdinand was absent at the diet at Franckfurt, when the Bohemians revolted, where having complained, as also to the Kings of France and England of their insolence, he appointed Maximilian of Bavaria his Generall the Duke of Saxony and the Catholick Elector being also made sure to his Interest, and besides a truce was concluded on with Gabor to Michaelmasse. And now ready for a war in Germany, the French suspended it by their interposition at Ulms.

That not proving durable, Joachim Ernestus the Marquesse of Anspach, was entrusted by Frederick with the charge of the Palatinate and the Government of Heydelberg, who being ready to engage with Maximilian, was not only diverted and recalled by Spinola's arrivall, who took in Oppenheim, Baccharach, and other places

The Mar-
quesse of Anspach
his Treachery.

The Treachery of the Marquiss of Anspuch.

The King of Bohemia defeated at Prague.

Bethlen styled King of Hungary.

places, but corrupted also by his Gold, although the Prince of Aurange had engaged to his assistance. Maximilian freed of this Enemy, marched to Prague with an Army of 25 Thousand men, attended with Count Bucquoy, whose Troops in the night surprized the Hungarians, sent to aid the Palatine by Bethlen, that were quartered upon the White-hill and carried away 1500 Horses after a great slaughter committed on the Riders. This ominous defeat so heightened Maximilian that he dared the Enemy to an engagement, against the advise of Bethlen, who would have had the Bohemians temporize till he could personally assist them, but such was the Palatines fate, that a battel ensued, wherein at first by the rout of the young Prince of Anhalt, the Bohemians seemed to be fortunate, but the sudden flight of 8000. Hungarians altered the Case, and gave the Imperiallists a compleat victory. Frederick with his Princess fled to Uratistavia, and Bohemia as not long after Moravia and Silesia accepted of the Emperours Conditions.

Bethlen summoned a Diet in Hungary at Erseknyvarum, where partly betwixt Force and good will he was again Proclaimed King, the Majesty of which Title his Valour (as having been two and forty times present in Battel) Magnificence and Popularity very well suited, and now he began to Act as a King. Tamprinus Generalissimo of Hungary therefore opposed his Army consisting of ten thousand land men, and by Water and Land laid Siege to Presburgh, and took the Suburbs and the Fort before them; but while he unwarily viewed the Castle he was slain with a Dart. Tampiri slain. The Fall of the General made the Souldiers desert the siege, and suffer Bethlen to Ravage Austria, where he had effected great matters, but that the over-throw of his Confederates at Prague spoyled his Designs. The Elector Palatine being yet at Bratistavia in the Marquisate of Silesia, did very much urge him to proceed and to continue his Successes, for that speedily he would bring an Army out of England and Denmark to his Assistance. And indeed Ernestus Count Mansfield, Brother of Charles that was so Famous for the Siege of Strigonium, having gained Pilsa and Taborum, was advanced into the Palatinate, and had reduced things there to some better Condition; but in the meanwhile Bohemia was quite lost, lost. the Palatine proscribed, the Jesuits restored, and the Reformists driven out of the Kingdom.

The French King endeavoured a Peace between the Emperour and Bethlen at Hamburg, but with no successe; for Gabriel would neither renounce his Regal Title, nor give way to the Estates of Hungary to transact with Ferdinand, but called in an Army of Turks and Tartars, by which means he drew Envy upon himself, and the Estates grew eager against his Government and returned to their former Allegiance. George Szecsi was first received into favour, who drew a great many with him; and took Francis Redei away perforce, who languished away for grief not long after. As to matter of Action, Charles Longavall Count of Bucquoy, having subdued and tamed the Moravians, with an Army of 2200 men, and 22 Great Guns marched directly against Bethlen, who retreating into Transylvania, and the German and Hungarian Garrisons differing among themselves, recovered Presburg, with Tyrnaw, Ovarum, Schutt, and all that Tract of Ground as far as Newhausel, which he also besieged; and brought it to extremity; when Stanislans Thurzo sallied out upon the Foragers, and lighting upon Bucquoy, who too rashly engaged in their assistance killed him after sixteen wounds, his Horse being shot under him; his dead body with the slaughter of many Imperialists, was brought off and redeemed from the Hungarians, and in the beginning of July entered at Vienna.
S former

Newhausel besieged by Bucquoy.

Bucquoy slain.

1621.

Gabriel's new Enterprizes in Hungary.

By his Death the Affairs of Cesar were shaken, for the Walloons refusing another General, gave opportunity to the Enemy of reducing many places; Gabriel having raised a new Army and overthrown the Nobles of Hungary; Ersekuyvarum was also abandoned by the Garrison: so that finding the Kingdome naked and destitute of Defence, he joyned with the Count of Thurn and the Marquise of Jgerendorf and forced Tyrnaw; Presburg he in in vain attempted; whence by the Invitation of Fagerendorf he made an Irruption into Moravia, and seized and pillaged several places; but being opposed here by the Emperours new Generals, Esterhasius, Wallensteyn and Hanibal Donaw, who set upon him on every side, (and Fagerendorf departed from Silesia, as his Transylvanians for want of Provision were privily slipt home) he bethought himself of a Peace, which at the instance of his Ambassadors was first treated of at Oedinburg, but Concuded at Szentmicklosium, whereby Bethlen retaining A Peace betwixt Tockay and Cassovia, with seven other Lordships in Hungary, was to yeild up and resign Gabor & the Emperour. the Crown with all other places and Cities in that Kingdome; to forbear the Regal Title and be content with the Name of Roman Prince, should enjoy Opulia and Ratibor, the State of Religion, and the Jesuites to be restored to the places they were in before. Thus the Elector Palatine was disappointed here also, as Mansfield, and Christian Duke of Brunswick had been unsuccessful against Tilly, so that driven out of his Hæreditary Countreys, he fled into Holland; The Electoral Dignity was conferred on Maximilian of Bavaria; when, the Estates of the Empire perceived that the Power they had given the Emperour was used by him against themselves.

Fagerendorf being expelled out of Silesia, again implored Bethlen to the assistance and Support of the Churches; whereupon the flame

A new Rupture on the part of Beth-len Gabor

Gabor
deserted by the Turk
renews the Peace with disadvantage.

of the but newly quenched Conflagration broke out again. Bethlen delivered Vaczia to the Turks, with whom and the Tartars to the number of eighty thousand excited by the Count of Thurn, he Invaded Hungary; pretending first Religion, then the Money not paid, nor the Conditions of the Treaty at Oedinburg performed. At Tyrnaw he defeated the Regiment of Tieffenbach, and falling into Moravia drove Swarzburg before him and besieged him in the Metropolis, building four great Bulwarks before that part of the City where the onely Egresse was, and keeping strong Guards on that side where it was Fenced with the Lake and Woods: neverthelesse Swarzburg by a frugal apportioning of the Allowance of Provision, held out the place till the Winter, when the Grand Seignieur being rightly informed of the Quarrel by Cesar, with the menace of his Scymitar, recalled Bethlen; and the Turks and Tartars impatient of the delay and the Cold, refused to obey him, although some of them were therefore hanged up: Besides the aids out of Germany appeared not, so that he was compelled to make a Truce, and the Garrison (almost famished) delivered from the Siege. His Title of The Roman Prince, or Prince of the Romans, was abolished; his Coadjutors the Turks, left to get home as well as they could, in which return many were stripped and slain, and satisfied for their fellows cruelty, and plunder.

Hungaria and Transylvania. 261

In the beginng of May this year the Peace 1624. was confirmed, and redintegrated: Jageren- dorf quite disseised of Silesia, & Thurn expell'd out of Moravia, and Bethlen deprived of that part he held in Hungary, but restored to Opu- lia, and Ratibor taken from him in the beginning of these Troubles: And lastly, the Kingdome of Hungary acknowledged her old Soveraign, Ferdinand Ernestus Eldest Son of Ferdinand the second, being Crowned at Ova- Ferdinand rum, where were present his Father, his Queen the 3d. K.
 and Children, Caraffa the Popes Nuncio, and of Hunthe Spanish and Florentine Ambassadors; Beth- gary.
len also sent his thither, being taken up with the Solemnity of his Nuptials with Catharine the Daughter of John Sigismund Marquis of Brandenburgh, who was Married at Alba Ju- lia. At this Diet at Ovarum, great was the 1626.
 Unanimity and Concord of the Estates, by whose resolutions the Guards and Forts against Canyssa were strongly fortified, the License of Poly- gamy restrained, the Road secured, and the Tribute and Tax duely settled, and other things enacted which concerned the safety of the Kingdome. Ezterhesius was substituted to the Dignity of Palatine in the room of Thurzo.

Next succeeded the Coronation it self: The Regal Diadem, Robes, Sword, and Globe, with the noyse of the Cannon, and the gladsome Acclamation of the People (wishing all happinesse to the King and Kingdome thus restored) were conveyed from Presburg in this Order;

The Coronation of Ferdinand
the third.

First went the German Trumpeters, then the Barons, the Masters of the Horse with their Squadrons Armed Cap a pe; next followed the Hungarian Noblemen, the Deputies or Governors of Dalmatia, Sclavonia, and Croatia; then the Servants of the Palatine covered with the skins of Leopards and Tigers, then the Palatine himself in the midst between the German and Hungarian Barons, the Crown and the other Royal Ensigns being laid upon a Chariot. The Cardinal Peter Pazman, and Arch-Bishop of Strigonium, put the Crown on the King's Head in the Great Church; where were present a great Confluence of Schollars to attend the Cardinal, from the Colledges of Vienna, and Tyrnaw, and elsewhere; the Hungarians being here asked if they did accept him for their King, with one Voice answered, We do; We will and require it, let the King live and Reign long, and Govern us. The King (the Divine Service performed) turned his Chair towards the People, and laying the Sword of St. Stephen upon their shoulders, Created four Knights; when mounting his Horse, in an Hungarian Habit he galloped up a little Hill, and there brandishing his Sword four times to the four Quarters of the World, thereby declared his Majesty and his Empire: Medals of Gold and Silver being at the same time thrown among the People. For Conclusion, he was Nobly treated at a most sumptuous Royal Feast by the Nobles.

A new Storm over-clouded this Serenity: Bethlen instigated by Count Mansfield in the Month of July, invaded Hungary again, whether the said Count joyned with the Duke of Weymar (being beaten out of Germany, the Netherlands and Bohemia) was bending his forces, but both of them although additioned by forces from Bethlen, who resented his losse of Opulia and Ratibor, were vanquished by Wallensteyn. Who being afterwards recoyled by the Turks about Nitria, fought with dubious fortune against the said Mansfeldians, still recruiting upon every Disaster, as if they had been the Sons of Anteus.

But upon the news brought to Bethlen that 40. thousand Tartars his Confederates were slain in Poland, he found it high time to bethink of Peace, by which on shameful Conditions he departed out of Hungary, & quitted his Confederates Mansfield and Weymar, renouncing also his Tartarian friendship, with an Obligation to free all Christian Captives with the Turks. Mansfield suspecting this Collusion, with his most expedite and nimble Troops hastened to the Venetians, leaving the rest of his forces to Weymar, but taken in Bosnia with a Flux, proceeding (as some report) from poyson of Count he took into his bowells, he expired his busie and versatile Soul there. Weymar also having possessed himself of Hohenwold and Jabelunca, and designing his Efforts upon Hungary, discontented with those practises of the Transylvanian,

And of the vanian, soon waited away, aged 32. years, Duke of much beloved and lamented by his party for Weymar. his moderate, yet valiant actions and deportment in Silesia. Him Bethlen followed, tortured with such an excessive pain in his feet, that he commanded the soles of them to be lanced, to give passage to the fluid humour; to Sacer Ignis this was added the Disease of the Holy Fire, which gave occasion to the Papists Invectives, that all the Elements conspired against him, being persecuted with fire, water, iron, &c. and that his end was worthy of his Actions. He bequeathed to each of the Emperours a Horse, with Jewells, Trappings, and Furniture, worth 40. thousand Guilders, to his Wife a 100 thousand Guilders and as many thousand Imperials, and Florens, with 3 Royalty's, to hold and enjoy for her life; having given this testimony of Cæsar, that it was a very hazzardous thing to war with him, as a person who was neither deprest with adverse nor lifted up with prosperous fortune.

And of Bethlen
Gabor.

Anno
1628.

By his Death Cassovia, Tockay, and all the places granted to him for his Life, reverted to the Emperour; and his Widow, although proclaimed Prince of Transylvania, yet wanting Title and Right as being a Stranger, whether spontaneously, or against her Will, quitted the Administration, having procured Stephon Czakius whom she loved, to be named for Prince, and indeavoured at the Ottoman Port to have him invested; but the Transylvanians rejecting the Prin-

Princesses, were divided into two other parts, some would have Stephen Bethlen, the Brother of the deceased Gabriel; others stood for George Rakoczi, whose fortune and wonderful felicity, carried it from all his Competitors, Catharius the Agent at Constantinople, prevaricating and acting for Rakoczi, as did several Castellans by the liberality of the Princess granted unto Csakius, who took fortune to their Counsellour; Csakius speeds thither; and comes to Muncacksum, given him by the same hand and desired admission, but John Balling the Governour of the Place presenting the Ordinance against him, told him he had delivered it to Rakoczi, and had received the Hereditary Government of it for his rendition.

Divisions in Transylvania about Election of a new Prince

Bethlen at the same time possessed himself of most of the other places in Transylvania, but by the detestable disloyalty of his Son Stephen, and his Son in Law David Zolyomi, and the disaffection of all forraign Princes, he was forced to abandon his pretensions, for Rakoczi invited by those two persons came to Varadin, where by their Suffrage and Advancement, he wrested the Principality from Stephen, created Prince thereof, who being of a mild and quiet disposition, and more desirous of a private Life, by his own Interest promoted Rakoczi, against Csakius, and forgave his Son and Son in Law, not forgiven by God the just Avenger of their unnatural offence, (he himself receiving the name of Governour:) for not long 1631.

Rakoczi established Prince of Transylvania.

unnatural long after his Son Stephen, a youth otherwise of Disloyalty great learning and virtue, having been bred up punished. with his brother Peter at Leyden, dyed at Ec- sedium, his body being horribly eaten up with Worms: David Zolyomi was committed to perpetual Imprisonment by Rakoczi, whom he had helped to prefer.

Cesar likewise had dispatcht Esterhasius the Palatine of Hungary, with a strong Army to possesse himself of Transylvania, but before his Arrival Rakoczi had settled himself; and by Stephen Bethlen the Governour of Dacia, pro-hac vice, in an Irruption into Hungary, overthrew him and took several Cities; the Sultan himself, while yet the Peace was in force betwixt him and the Emperor, of his own accord sending 10000. men to Ersekuyvarum to his assistance, in testimony of his affection to, and approbation of Rakoczi, who wasted the Countrey on purpose to divert Esterhasius; wherefore the Emperour not willing to bring a greater War upon himself, by designing upon others, presently acquiesced. But this provocation determined not so on the part of Rakoczi, whose offence thereat, the Swede by an Embassy to him, so aggravated (finding the German War like to rest upon his own single Shoulders) by other fetches of the common Cause of Religion, &c. that Rakoczi began to arm, intending at once to be revenged of Cesar, Esterhasius, and Cszakius together, and to that purpose made sure of the protection and favour of the grand Signior

Rakoczi
incensed against the Emperour.

Seigniour, who assented to his proposed Enterprize, and Commanded the Bassa of Buda and the Moldavians to assist him therein.

Csakius no lesse vigilant in his affairs, being supplied with mony by Gabors Widdow, pressed an Engagement with Rakoczi, and continued and renewed it five several times by the indifference of Fortune, yet so distastful to Rakoczi, Csakius that he was willing to a Peace, whereby Csakius peace from was to enjoy what he held in Transylvania with- Rakoczi, out any molestation.

This Province thus settled, arose another intestine Feud; Stephen Bethlen with Peter his Son, had killed a Kinsman of Rakoczi's, and suspecting his Revenge, had gathered an Army of Turks and Tartars, and brought them to Gyula, out of meer fear intending to take upon him the Government, which he had for quietnesse before resigned. Rakoczi detesting this wavering faith of the Turks submitted to the Austrians, from whom he was supplied out of Silesia with three Regiments of Foot and one of Horse; against those the Turks opposed themselves, but by the cunning and Policy of James Gyori (a person skilled in their Language who pretended to be faithful to Bethlen, and betrayed his and their Designs to Rakoczi) Turks assist against Rakoczi and by the valour of Sigismund Cornicius, and are twenty five thousand of them were slain at Szalcula, defeated.

Soon after David Zolyomi having leavyed 2000. Horse to the assistance of the King of Sweden

The vengeance that pursued David Zolyomi.

1633.

Sweden, to whose War in Germany the Transylvanians were very much affected, Rakoczi either true to the Emperour, or suspecting this as some design for his Father in law, disbanded all his Troops. This injury stuck so close to Zolyomi that he resolved to kill him as he was a hunting, but his Conscience reclaiming, he warned Rakoczi that he should forbear hunting on his prefixed day, but to send some armed men, to such places, where they should find the Assassins prepared for the Execution, who being accordingly discovered and slain, Solyomi, bound in Chains of the weight of 50 pound was cast into a most squalid and dolefull dungeon, which had one onely prospect against a Wall by a Window, of a Cubits length and bredth, where he was kept from any humane converse the whole course of his life: so that in what he sinned by advancing Rakoczi before his Father in law in that he was thus severely punished, alleviated onely by the honourable respects shewed him by Urbanus Reoti the Governour of the Castle, who laboured all he could for his Enlargement; but neither Casars intreaties could prevail in that point.

Bethlen
raiseth a new war against Rakoczi

Bethlen, when he could neither obtain Oblivion and indemnity for his late actions, nor procure his Son in law's deliverance, invited the Turks again, who had excused their late Expedition in behalf of Bethlen, protesting their exact observation of the Peace; but the Palatine versed in those frauds of the Infidel listed the Heyducks

Heyducks, and watched every event. Many Encounters happned betwixt Rakoczi and Bethlen, and oftentimes with losse to the Turks, which so vexed the Sultan that he Commanded the Vizier to be fhead alive. But at last the businesse was composed by the mediation of Friends, and Bethlen restored acknowledged Rakoczi, whom the Turk again Confirmed.

Ferdinand the second, being now Deceased, 1637. his eldest Son the third of that name, succeeded him in all his Dominions, and seemed to have restored to Hungaria and Transylvania, a most blessed Peace; had it not been for the Jesuites who raised new Troubles: For the Catholick Nobles grudged that the Protestants by the former War had extorted some things in favour of their Religion, and the Lutherans had built a very beautiful Church at Presburg, Troubles about Religion in Hungary. which Cesar resenting had sent his inhibition, and disallowed his former concessions. The Protestants hereupon addressed themselves to Rakoczi as their Sanctuary and Anchor, who had been also offended with the Emperour upon this account: There was found at Varadin in the Vault of Ladislaus and Sigismund, a Treasure, with a Crown, Scepter, and Jewells, one of which being a Diamant (as my Authour hath it) was as big as a Hens Egg set in a locket, which glittered and shone like a lighted Torch, there being an Anathema added that no man presumed to meddle with them, while the necessity

Maintained and abetted by Rakoczi.
1639.

necessity of the Castle should require it: These Ferdinand demanded, but Rakoczi refused them. Add to this a worse Evil; It happened that some Hungarian Nobles, as Forgaczi, Illyeshazi, and others, turned Roman Catholicks, and some Catholicks obtained Lordships where the Protestant Religion was before exercised, which they took upon them to restrain, and converted their Churches to Catholick uses.

1642.
Rakoczi
slighted by the Empe-
rour.

These innovations and the force that obtruded them, Rakoczi desired the Emperour to remove, and to observe those Immunities and Priviledges which he and the Estates had confirmed to the Protestants; but the Emperour, either not valuing Rakoczi, or secure of Hungary (for that the Turk engaged in the East, had Concluded a Peace for twenty years) put him off with continual delayes; and raised an Army of Hungarians against the Swede, who neverthelesse would not stir out of their Countrey. Rakoczi on the other side held Intelligence with General *Torsten*son then in Silesia, and resolved to Arm, having in vain mediated but for the restitution of three hundred Protestant Churches shut up by the Emperour; besides that there was a present Pique and grudge between him and Homonnai, who had driven away all the Protestants out of his Government, and had seized the Wines of Tockay, which were to be sent as the Annual present to the Grand Seignior.

1644.

There was at this time at the Transylvannia Court, the Ambassadors of Poland, Sweden, France,

France, and Austria; the last of whom being slightly dismissed, Rakoczi Proclaimed open War against Ferdinand the third, and with 70000 men Invaded Hungary; the Reasons of which, published in a Manifesto were these; ^{war pro-} ^{claimed by} Rakoczi That since the last nineteen years, Hungary had ^{against} been reckoned among the Hereditary Provinces, ^{Ferdinand} That Civil and secular Offices were conferred upon Ecclesiastical Persons, and Lands of maintenance assigned them; and Protestants put by from all places, and Jesuites introduced, against their Consent and Will. His first Effort ^{His mani-} was upon the Castles of Homonnai, which he ^{fest and} ruined and demolished, committing great ^{successes.} slaughter and rapine, using Fire and Sword to Extremity. Next he compelled Cassovia to a surrender, in vain defended by Count Forgacz. To oppose his further progreſſe the Emperour dispatched away Count Buchain with twenty thousand men, while the Palatine was employed in raising Eight Thousand Hungarians; the first Encounter proved not so prosperous to the Transylvanian; but the continual revolt of the Hungarians was cheaper then Victory, which now favoured him in his repulse of Adam Forgacz, from Rimaszombathum; Puchain was advised by Nadasdi to make a diversion by the way of Agria into Transylvania, and so hem him in by getting below him; but in this he onely trifled away time, while Rakoczi (most of the strong places being possessed by the Catholick party) besieged Tyrnaw, which at last last opened its Gates to General Douglasse and his Son Sigismund, where the Bishops and Noblemen (now Crest-fallen) humbly intreated Canysius the Protestant Preacher of the place, to mediate with the Victor that he would take them into his Clemency; which was granted at his intercession.

Rakoczi And now Rakoczi distrusting this eager favour of Fortune, inclined to a Composure, yeilds to a Peace with which Cesar more desirous of, both for that the Climate agreed not with his forrain Souldierour.

1645.

ry, and the huge price of grain, the unsuccessful siege of Cassovia, with the forced retreat of Bouchain to Presburgh, readily consented to, and hastily concluded, to the great vexation and anger of the Swede. This Peace was Proclaimed on St. Bartholomew's Day, by which seven Lordships in Hungary were confirmed to the Transylvanian, 90 Churches restored to the Protestants, and the rest of their Priviledges confirmed to them.

General Torsten- Torsten- thus forsaken of his Confederate was abandoned by his Fortune, and forced son abandoned by to rise from the siege of Prunna. In the mean while died the Palatine, to whom Drascovius was substituted, and the Instrument of the Transylvanian Pacification was made publick,

Ferdinand notwithstanding both parties in Hungary were as embittered as ever about the Extermination of the Jesuits, and ready to draw one upon another. The next year Ferdinand the fourth, 1646.

was Crowned King of Hungary, the Peace con-

continuing with the Turks, but so fallaciously that three hundred of them were got privily into Raab, where being discovered by a Woman, they were all of them slain and the City preserved by the Divine favour and protection. Raab designed upon by the Turks.

In the Year 1648 died Prince Rakoczi, to whom Succeeded his Son George; as Ferdinand the fourth, Crowned King of the Romans, a Prince of more Hopes than Glory, after he had lived to the age of 22 years, Deceased in the Year 1653. and Leopold Ignatius his Brother, succeeded him in all his Dignities, Kingdomes, and Dominions. Rakoczi's and Ferdinands Death.

In the Year 1656 the Swede having Invaded Poland, and almost Conquered the hither part (so that the many Garrisons he was forced to Man, had almost drayned his Army) by his Ambassadors invited Prince Rakoczi to the Spoyl and his Assistance; and such was the evil Fate of Transylvania, and Rakoczi in particular, that allured by the great advantages the Ruin of that Kingdom promised him, he Confederated himself with the Swede, maintaining Correspondencies and intrigues with all his Allyes, particularly, with the pretended Protector of England, to whom he sent an Envoy to transact his Concerns of Money; to the payment whereof the King of Sweden had by pact obliged the said Usurper, the consideration and satisfaction whereof, are of no great moment to this discourse. The Swedes invade Poland. Rakoczi joyns with him.

The Transylvanians betaking themselves to T their

The Tran-
sylvanians
ravage Poland.

Cracovia
taken by the Swedes and Rakoczi.

their Arms, from which they had been longer disused than throughout the whole series of their History (the Turks having been sometime before engaged against the Persians, and lately against the Venetians, and labouring with their own mis-carriages and errors of Government) little imagined they should wear them so long (if ever it be their hap to put them off without parting with their Liberty and Religion) and to such a Calamitous Defence of their own Countrey. In fine, an Army of 16000 men was presently raised and put under the Command of Backos Gabor, which were the Van of those Forces that Rakoczi intended for this Expedition, himself following in person with another Army; who as soon as they were entered Poland in most horrible manner fell a ravaging and Sacking the Towns, and pillaging the Churches, and defacing the beauties thereof in hatred of the Roman Catholick Religion; so that a fearful Desolation was made as they passed.

To passe by other occurrents of his proceedings in this Kingdome, after he had joyned with the Swedes, the Enterprize of Cracovia may suffice for instance of his Hostility in this Kingdome, which he besieged, and after a short Defence had it surrendered to him (the Swedes and he, demolishing almost the City of Casimir, built on the other side the Weyfel) it being one of those places which was to be assigned him with the Palatinate thereof, for his share

share, in recompense of his Service. This place in the ballance of the Swedish Fortune being besieged by Feild Marshal Lubomirsky, Rakoczi came to its relief, and gave a notable Defeat to the Pole, who raised his siege and fled before him. The said Prince afterwards embodying with the Swedes in Lithuania, took in the strong City of Biscia Litinsky being there personally present with the King of Sweden, and where he took his last leave of him, returning to Samoysh, to secure his footing and maintain what he had gotten; but the Danish War interveening and calling the King of Sweden away to the Defence of his own Kingdome; and the Duke of Brandenburgh falling off likewise, and renouncing that Kings Interest; besides that, the Pole had newly made a League with the House of Austria, who upon Caution and Articles were to supply him with an Army of 16000 men, then upon their March out of Silesia; Rakoczi perceived that the whole brunt of the War was like to fall upon him, now deserted and abandoned by all his Partakers.

And therefore he thought it high time to apply himself to the wayes of Peace (the Turk having also countermanded him sometime before at the instance of the Polish Ambassador at Constantinople, who it was thought, had bribed Rakoczi into that disfavour and hatred with the Grand Seignior, who now peremptorily Commanded him, he having delayed to com-

And to surrender
his Principality.

ply with his first Orders of return, to surrender his Principality to his Cousin Reada or Rudus) and in tendency thereunto made offer of a surrender of all those places he had taken during this War, thinking thereby also to have satisfied the Turkish Emperour, provided he might have safe egress out of that Kingdome, which was now very hazzardous, for that the Poles and Austrians had way-laid him in the mountainous passages by which he must needs return.

Fights his way out of Poland.

But the Poles so stomached the loss & prejudice they received from him causelessly, especially his Church-robberies, that they delayed him with an answer to this effect: 'That being tied to such Articles with the House of Austria, and the King of Hungary, they could make no Agreement without them: which artifice being understood by Rakoczi, more Forces drawing likewise against him; besides that, another party of 12000. of them had Invaded his Dominions in Hungary, and in Revenge burnt down thirty six Villages; he resolved to make his way with his Sword while there was a possibility of effecting it, which with much difficulty and hazard, being several times set upon, and forced to fight his way; by good Guides and happy Conduct he atchieved, but brought a sorry Army home in Comparison of what he marched out with.

1657.

This same year Died the Emperour Ferdinand the third, leaving behind him two Sons, Ignatius

Ignatius Leopoldus, and Charles Joseph; the eldest of whom being a minor, much canvassing there was about the Election of a Cesar; for that by the Custome and Golden Bull of the Empire no person under the Age of eighteen years (of which he lacked one) is Capable of being chosen to that Dignity. Notwithstanding he had been Crowned King of Hungary soon after the Death of his Brother Ferdinand (who as was mentioned before Deceased in 1653.) with the usual Solemnities, which we forbear to recite, because mentioned at large before.

The death
of Eerdi-nand the 3d. Empe-
rour

Prince Rakoczi being thus retreated into Transylvania, was there again by a Chiaux Commanded to resign the Principality to Radus; but he, hoping either to make his Peace at the Port with the usual Purchase, and so countermine his Enemies, or trusting at last to his Interest in the Souldiery, and his People, and his own Abilities (as indeed he was a Prince very well skilled in Military Affairs, and of personal Valour, and great Spirit) delayed any such surrender, but strengthened himself all that he could, and dispatcht away Embassadors to crave Aid of the Neighbouring Princes against this threatned Encroachment of the Turks, but the Pole and the Austrians had conceived such rancour against him, the first for his Invasion, and the other for his League with the Swede, that they abandoned him to his Fortune.

The Vayvod of Valachia
worsted in his Quarrel.

Nevertheless the Princes of Moldavia, and Valachia, promised their assistance, as their Common Cause; while the Turk disturbed at home this Year 1658. by the Mutinies of the Janizaries and the Insurrections of the Bassa of Aleppo, permitted Rakoczi to be quiet; but the next year he thrust in an Army by way of Valachia, against whom that Vayvod making opposition was by them totally routed, and eight thousand of his men slain, and he forced by a timely submission and great Presents and promises of Hostility against Rakoczi, to purchase his Peace and Establishment in his Dignity.

Turks Defeated at Arad.

Soon after the Bassa of Buda being Com-manded upon the same service, marched to Lippa, and thence to Arad Town and Castle, whose Suburbs the Transylvanians fired, which the Turks Officers who had the Avantguard perceiving and supposing the Enemy had deserted the Place, in great hast and disorder marched to the quenching of the Flame; but the Transylvanian and Hungarian Forces not far distant, making advantage of this Rout, and falling upon them in the smoke, so routed them that they were driven back to their Body with great losse, where being received in with their Waggon with which they were barricado'd, the whole Army of Rakoczi advanced, and with their Great Guns so shivered them, that they were compelled to forsake their Camp, and to fly, in which many of them perished in in the River Mor. There were here taken Prisoners, Mustapha Beg, the Bassa of Agria, the Coll. Aga of the Janizaries, the Aga of Buda, and Aga of Lippa, the Beg of Waitzen was drowned, with many other men of note. For this defeat the grand Seignior threatned to flea the Bassa of Buda, if he did not presently bring him Rakoczi's head, and forthwith Imprisoned the Emperours and the French Kings Ambassadors.

In 1660. the Turk sent a greater Force then before, into Transylvania. In the mean while Prince Rakoczi march'd with a considerable Force before Hermanstad, and it came to a Bloody Encounter, wherein Rakoczi deputed himself valiantly, killing 17 men with his own hand; and so the Infidels for That Bout were forced to quit the Field, and leave the Victory to the Transylvanians, leaving likewise upon the Place, 6 or 7000 Turks, and Tartars. Rakoczi in the persuit received five wounds, and five dayes after this Fight (June the sixth) he was brought to Great-Waradin, where he departed this Life.

The Turks again defeated at Hermanstadt,

The death of Rakoczi.

The fall of this Prince ballanced the Advantage of the Victory, and exceedingly animated the Turks, who pressing more and more eagerly upon the Transylvanians, drove them every where to their strong Holds : Whereupon General Souches had Order from Vienna, to draw toward Transylvania, and make it good against the Turks ; and he forthwith march'd thither with a considerable Body, and possessed himself of several Holds.

July the 14 of the same year, the Turk with 100000 Men laid close Siege to Great-Varadin, which was stoutly defended by one Collonel Gaude a Scotchman, the Governour of the Town. During the Siege, the Turk sent abroad strong Parties to subdue smaller Towns, forcing the People unto several works, as the building of Bridges, and the Like, putting them to the Sword at last for their Reward : At one time killing 150 Christians, and at another, Loading 20 Wagons with Christians Heads which they carried away.

Varadin
yeilded.

On the 6 of August, That brave Souldier and Governour Collonel Gaude was slain by a shot, and (the Besieged being left without any hope of Relief) This strong place surrendered unto the Turk upon Accord ; being a passage into Transylvania, Hungary, and Poland.

After the death of Rakoczi, his Cousin Radus being disliked of by the Turk as unfit for his designs, there started up one Barckay a Creature of the Turks, making himself Prince of Transylvania, whom the Turk protected and supplied with Forces, whereby he undertook to reduce several places, siding in pretence with General Souches (who well understood this violence of the Turks, to be a design not only upon Transylvania, but also upon the Empire it self,) and making large promises under hand, hand, that whatsoever he got by the Turkish Ayd, was meant for the good of the Emperour, to whom he intended a just and Honourable Restitution, reserving only Waradin to remain under the Power of the Prince of Transylvania; but the matter proved otherwise in the end.

Toward the end of this Year, a Blazing-Starre appeared with the Tayl toward Dalmatia, and the Head toward Transylvania, which the ensuing Calamities portended sadly of the War.

Soon after This, the Labolizish Peasants Rebelled against the Christians in Transylvania, whom they partly put to the sword, some they took Prisoners, and others they sold to the Turk, the right Successour of Rakoczi was Remini Janos (by many Transylvanians received and entertained for such) who was bitterly persecuted by Barckay and the Turks.

In 1661. Janos fought them at Thassabat, and made a great slaughter: but at last, oppressed with Numbers, he left Transylvania, and retreated to Tockay. And now it appeared that the Turks Business was not to stop there, but to fall also upon Hungary. Whereupon his Imperial majesty granted Commissions for the raising of an Army, which was dispatched part of it into Transylvania. In the Interim; Count Nichola Serini began to look to himself, and raised a strong Fort on the Wall over against Canischa Naming it Serinswar: getting together

Remini Janos the successor of Rakoczi oppressed with numbers.

A Warbe-
gun in
Hungary.

together a strong Body of Croats, and other Nations, that lay heavy upon the Quarters thereabout : which the Turks stomach'd not a little, however they carried it fair at present, and a while they talk'd of nothing but Peace, but at last they brake out into high expressions, that they would have Serinswar demolished, Count Serini punish'd, and Transylvania subjected to the Power of the Turk by way of Reparation. None of which followed; but the Christians lookt upon it as every mans Interest to do his best to defend himself against the Ambition and Outrages of This common Enemy; and there being nothing now to be expected but a great Turkish Warre, which was already begun by Parties; the Christians entred upon the Borders of Turky, drawing toward Stul-Weissenburg, and Offen : and they subdued Zamock, Warda, Erzy, and Hirr : all these being inconsiderable Houses, and Castles, which with their Defenders were blown up, and fired.

While this was doing, the Turks gathered together a Mighty Army consisting of Asiatick, African, and European people. To this numerous Army, they had likewise provided an incredible proportion of Victuals, Ammunition, and Artillery. Neverthelesse, several Treaties were set a foot, which the Turk so long insisted upon, till he had gained his End, and drawn a formidable Power into the Field, to break in upon the Christians, who laboured as much as in in them lay, to preserve the Peace; seeming to take small notice of the Turks hostile preparations. The Army of the Christians in Hungary consisted of 38000 German Soldiers, who had the Turks for their Open, and the Hungarians for their Private Enemies (the Animosity being so great, that many times it came to Blowes betwixt the Germans and the Hungarians.) These Troups finding themselves under many inconveniencies, partly from the Hungarians, who denyed accommodation to the Germans, and partly from Diseases arising from the disagreement of the Climate, were much weakned and diminished. Hungary is questionlesse a very brave Country, and abounds in Wine and other Fruits; which taken to Excesse, breed dangerous Surfeits. The Hungarians in their deportment are generally Grave, and Modest, but being Affronted by the Germans, and others not of their own Religion, they are Apt to Revenge, and hard to be Reconciled.

Toward the Month of October, the Dutch Army was exceedingly pester'd with Surfeits, so that betwixt those that dyed; a Number that lay sick, and others that were carried out of the Country, it fell to a low Ebbe: and moreover; being then as far as Clausenburg, in Transylvania, they were put to some distresse for Victuals and Forage: the Enemy increasng daily more and more against them for in those Parts the Turkish Power was strongest. About this

The German Army
moulders
away.

this time, the Upstart Prince Barckay fell into disgrace, and the Turk preferred one Apassi to that dignity in his stead. Against Him, Remini Janos bore up, Opposing him, and his Promoters in the head of 8000 men, and fortune so far befriended him in the first Engagement, as to deliver his great Enemy Barckay into his hands, whose Head he caused to be struck off, and then for a while the people flocked in to him, and Augmented his Army; yet neither their aid nor his valor availed him when being surrounded on all sides, and striving to clear his passage, he seemed only careful how he might fall with Honour: for his Army through many skirmishes, Diseases, and great Scarcity of Provision, was melted away, and hope of Succour there was none left; the German Army by the like Accidents being weakened and put to a Retreat. Upon these Terms it was, that he committed himself to places of more security, and in Sakmar, He with others, expected the Issue of the Treaty. But the Turks, (as has been said already) making use of a Treaty only for their own advantage, put themselves into a stronger posture: In the mean time discharging their Choler with great indignation, as well against the Valiant Venetians, (that have held them tick so long in Candia) as against the neutral Valachians; and now and then against the half-conquered Transylvanians; but not a word all this while, nor so much as a look of displeasure against Hungary.

James forced to desert from his Claim.

This

This Deceit of a Treaty lasted till the Year 1663. and then the Fury of these Infidels brake out, not only upon Transylvania, and Hungaria; but upon some of the Emperours Hereditary Countries also.

Upon July the 17. the Grand Vizier came in great Pomp and Magnificence to Offen, en-camping himself in the Pesterfield, being four German miles in Compass. His Army was upward of a hundred thousand men, above one hundred great Guns, and of Wagons, and Beasts, a number not to be believed. His first work was to lay two Ship-bridges over the Danube; the one near to Gran, and the other not far from Parkham. His forces being quarter'd about those parts in Prodigious Multitudes, it was as yet doubtful, whether he would fall upon Newhausel, or Raab; having his eye indifferently upon both, and lying still for a good while without action. But the design had shew'd it self much sooner, if a continual fall of Rain, and the Overflow of the Danube had not hindred him: However at length, he passed some Thousands of his Army over the Bridge near Parkham toward the side of Newhausel; when immediately a Report was spread by some of the Pesants that were turn'd to the Turk, that the River had torn their Ship-bridges, and that those 4000 Turks that had passed over, were now Cut off from the Main body. This Rumor it was that inveigled the Governour of Newhausel (Count Forgatz) into appear with a formidable Army in Hungary.

The Turks

Count For-gatz defeated.

into a Couragious but an unhappy Resolution , which was to fall upon those 4000. Turks, upon the supposition , that the Miscarriage of the Bridge had cut off their Retreat. It is very true , that he was earnestly dissuaded from that Attempt , and told , that the Body was greater then he imagined , but still persisting in his Resolve to fight them , upon the 28 of July , with his Hungarians , Hussars and Heyducks, and 11 Troups of Germans, and 500 Musquetiers (in all 6000 strong) he marched up to them , and finding the Enemy four times stronger then he expected , became sensible of the Abuse although alas ! for the Infidels having gotten certain Intelligence of the Christians design , and of their coming, caused the Bridges presently to be repaired , which they had purposely disordered , and marching over with a strong power surrounded them. The Hungarians and Hussars , that were appointed to stand for a Reserve , seeing the Enemy come on so strong , betook themselves to flight ; but the Germans and Heyducks that gave the Onset behaved themselves stoutly , and sold a dear Victory to the Turks. At last by Multitudes they were overcome , and those that could not get away were miserably Cut , and Mangled. Forgatz, and some few others escaped to New-hausel. This Combat lasted about three hours , and about 3000 of the Germans, and Heyducks were put to the Sword.

After

After this Victory, the Turks being there-with encouraged, and the Christians not a little dejected, the Enemy made ready to lay a Formal Siege unto Newhansel: which after many Attempts and Approaches they Battered so furiously, that Frederick and Serin-Sconces were beaten to the ground, and with incredible Labour and delving, raised a Mount of Earth so high that from thence, they could command the Town, and beat the besieged from the Walls. The Siege of New-hausel.

Whereupon the Hungarians whispered one another to Surrender, (out of a fear to dispute it any longer) which moved the Germans likewise to speak of an Accord, and sent to the Grand Vizier demanding honourable Conditions, whose Answer was, that they should set down their own Terms, leaving only their Great Guns in the Fort.

On the 26th of September the Christians marched out with 2422 Sound, and Armed men, and four Peice of Ordnance. At this Surrender, the Enemy got seventy Piece of Ordnance; great store of Arms, Powder, Wine, Meal, and Corn. In the mean while, some 1000 of Tartars, Moldavians, and Valachians, as bad Brutes as the worst of the Infidels, drawn hither in hope of plunder, made their way over the Waegh by force, putting those Christians to the Sword that Guarded the Pass, and so crossing the Mountains, they entred into Moravia, and the parts about Olmitz, An Invasion into Moravia.

mitz, which Towns, together with a great number of the neighbouring Villages, they burnt to the Ground. Their Guides and Leaders they had from among the Boors of the Country, who most unnaturally and treacherously shewed them the ways and passes, and had therefore for their pains some share of the booty.

This Havock lasted in Moravia 10 dayes, and then they pass'd over the March-stream into Austria (at which time, the Country People with their best moveables were fled to Vienna.) At length, having laden themselves with all manner of Booty, they return'd to the Camp at Newhausel, where they exposed the Men and Beasts, which they had taken up in several places, to common-sale in the Market: While these things were doing, the Turks busied themselves against the Fort Serinswar, and by way of Stratagem attempted Clausenburgh in Transylvania; but at both Places they were repuls'd with losse and shame. At which time Count Serini with a considerable Body of Cro- atians, and other neighbouring People; made a sudden Incurfion into Turky, to the great damage of the Infidels. At his Return the said Count was made Generalissimo of all the Emperors forces, then rendezvouzed at Presburgh under their former General Montecuculi.

Count Serini made Generalissimo.

Newhausel being reduced, which was supposed, and vainly hoped, would have disappointed the Turks progresse, and successe for
this

this year (being declined so far as the depth of Winter) the Grand Vizier undertook some farther Conquest; and with his Army, leaving a sufficient Garrison, and other numbers to repair and better fortifie the Fort, by bringing the River Nintre round about it, marched towards Presburgh, the Capital City or Mehropolis of Lower Hungary, and with his approach gave out rumours of his resolution to attaque it, relying on his first Fortune, and those popular insinuations he had spread abroad of his reality, justice, and tendernesse to such places as should come into his Masters Protection, with which thriving Artifice he had already gained upon the credulity of most of the Pesants and indefensible places.

Besides the Honour of the place, as the Repository of the Crown of Hungary (which the Hungarians most Religiously reverence, as placing the safety and Glory of their Nation therein, and which being seized, would have Intituled the winner and wearer to the Kingdom) the convenience thereof as freeing his way to Vienna, on one part; and to Commorra, Raab, or Newhausel on the other; and contrarily incomodating his attempt upon the Island of Schut, by its Neighbourly Correspondence and Assistance in case of Danger, where at present the General Count Serini was enquartered, was a great motive and enticement to an Attempt against it. But such had been the Vigilance and Care of Count Strozzi, a

The Grand
Vizier's
aspect upon Pres-burgh.

Famous

Famous and experienced Souldier, in providing and furnishing the City, wherein the hope of the Kingdome was concerned, and his Courage, and all other excellent qualities of a Governour, so known and believed by this Discreet Vizier, that contenting himself with the submission of Modern, St. George, Possing, and other places that lay open and exposed to his Power, and the bravery and gallant Designment of so high an Enterprize, with the unimpeded conduct of the Affair; he retreated honourably: and as if he had proceeded so far meerly upon a plot and Designe to surprize some places by his sudden Return, he presently invested Nitra, a place neer Newhausel, and as well Fortified, and more respected, because of its Ecclesiastical Concernment, as being a Bishops See; and by terrifying Menaces and preparations for a storm, soon wrought upon the Defendants to a Surrender, who by the Articles thereof were conveyed to Presburgh.

Nitra
taken by the Vizier.

Tyrnaw
likewise
and other places.

The speedy and lucky Event of this rendition, was effectual to his practises on other places; for upon the same score Tyrnaw, and some other Towns thereabouts, opened their Gates and submitted to him, upon his Common terms of Religion and Liberty; which Success invited him to the siege of Schinta, a very strong and considerable Fortresse, and a Magazine of a great and the best quantity of the Emperours Artillery; but by the Fidelity and Valour

Valour of the Governour and his men, was repulsed thence, and glad to abandon the Enterprize, for that October was more than half spent, and the Climate did much incommode his Asian and African Souldiery.

Therefore to provide them of warmer Winter Quarters, to keep them well and in health ^{comes before} against the Spring, he repassed his Great Guns ^{Schin- ta in vain.} with some of his Army, over his Ship-bridge to Gran or Strigonium, rumouring that when he had disposed of those unuseful peices in the depth of Winter, he would return himself with his Europeans to prosecute the War; but in fine, he passed over his whole Army, being followed in his Rear, in expectation of advantage, by General Serini, who having parted ^{The Vizier departs out of Hungary.} with General Montecuculi (conjoyned in attendance of the Newhausel Design upon the Island of Schut) did at last cut off some six hundred Janizaries, with two hundred Besonio's, or Baggage people, engaged in the defence thereof, which they resolutely maintained, by barricadoing themselves among the Waggon, so that Serini's Hussars were forced to alight and follow them a foot in their advantages, and there Couragiously flew them. This was some expiation of that Defeat given to Count For- ^{His rear attacked.} gatz very near the same place, as a fortnight before his Brother and he had Defeated two great parties, but not with so great successe. This happned about the last of October, and so those parts of this side the Danow, conceived

ved some joyful hopes of a respite till the coming of the Spring.

But the Vizier by those other after accessions had so strongly fixt himself, by leaving a Garrison of 4000. men in Newhausel, and 1500 in Nimre, besides a body of 10000. men to be ready to assist upon all occasions, that the Christians are still kept to their Arms, to attend their motion and to Guard themselves. And to increase the Danger, Apaffi the Prince of Transylvania, whom they looked upon as under a Constraint of Compliance with the Turks, and a secret well-wisher to the Christian Cause, discovered himself a Declared and profess Enemy, being inveigled with an investiture of those places taken this Campaigna, and upon the total Conquest, with the Crown of Hungary: For as soon as they were rid of the Infidels, he with his half Christians, Valachians, Moldavians, intermixed with Tartars, and his own plundering Transylvanians, undertook the Lieutenant-ship of the Winter War; those Nations being better able, as inured to the Climate, to undergo the extremities of the weather.

His Actions Apaffi's first Designe was upon the Berg Towns, or Mine-Hills, whence the Hungarian Gold is fetcht, which as soon as he had parted with the Grand Vizier, then retreating to Belgrade, he attempted, and this the easier for that there was no resistance in readiness to oppose him; the Forces that were raised raised by the Counts of Cochary and Tekelly, in the Upper Hungary, for the most part (for that the Lower was already joyned with Serini, or awed by the Turks) were a little before (maugre the Enemys Design of impe-He Attempts the Mine

Towns.

The two first obstacles of his Design upon the Mine-Towns; and which barred his entrance, were the two Towns of Levents and Novigrad, reputed one of the prime places of Upper Hungary; Levents was also well appointed, having in it a Castle Manned with Novigrad and Le-ventz yeilded to Apaffi.
 Couragious Souldiers, and firmed with thick Walls, flankers, and Turrets, that accordingly gave the Enemy a rude and unwelcome entertainment, but their numbers being not to be wearied, and no Relief to be expected by the besieged, it was yeilded by Agreement, and the Articles, according to the modern Policy of the Turks, punctually observed.

From thence Apaffi marched to Novigrad, lying further in Upper Hungary, which after a stout but short resistance. not without suspicion that the Governour was of Apaffi's party (more obvious now by his retreat into the Enemies Countrey, and the neutrality or rather assistance of the whole Province, as to the generality, towards Apaffi) was rendred
likewise

likewise and the Garrison dismiss, but not into Christian quarters, being set to work, and enjoined to be in a readinesse to assist their late Besiegers.

Apassi seized some of the Mine Towns.

The Enemy encroaching thus upon the Mine Towns, some Regiments which could be best got together, were sent to enforce them, and to hinder the enemy from settling their Winter Quarters in those places, which were nevertheless much despaired of, for that Apassi with his Aids threatned Cassovia the Metropolis of Upper Hungary with a present siege, as he did in effect beleagure Fillek, some ten miles distant, prejudging that the Christians, if once able to take the Field, would carry the War into these Quarters, of which therefore they would betimes possess themselves; and therefore notwithstanding the prevention aforesaid, they soon after seized on Shomnitz, Cremnitz, and other Towns of the Mines; and by threatening Letters and Summons terrified the People thereabouts to an acquiescence and submission under their Command: They faced likewise Tockay (the strongest Hold of all) with Parties; but neither their Courage, Multitudes, Practises, or Hopes, served them to the Adventure of a siege.

Navertheless to countenance such resolutions, they spread rumours abroad, as if the Grand Vizier would presently return, and Orders were indeed to that purpose dispatcht to the Magistrates of Frystad to make ready two Bridges

Bridges over the Waegh, so broad as that whole Squadrons might passe over there a breast, upon the design of another Irruption into Moravia.

This news caused Count Serini, who till then continued in the Island of Schut, observing the Designs of them at Newhausel, to put himself into motion, which presented him with some considerable booties (but inconsiderable parties) designed for Constantinople; and that was all he was able to do; the Auxiliaries of the Empire amounting in all not to above 8000. men, under the Command of the Count of Hohenlo, (whose Ancestors were famous in the Low Country War) by their surfeits upon the Fruits of the Countrey, which are in great abundance in the Hereditary Dominions, being so Diseased that they were in no condition or capacity for any field service; to increase these Auxiliaries the Swedes were neer their arrival from Bremen, with seven hundred Horse well mounted; but now like to have met with some danger at Erford, as the Hessen Darmsted Ayds perished with a greater misfortune upon the Danubius in their passage to Vienna.

Count Serini moves from his Quarters.

Neither were the Frontire Garrisons better Conditioned, by want of many necessaries, even Raab, and Commorra, where the Officers that surrentred Newhausel had ben newly acquitted, so that amidst so many exigences and streights every thing was feared to excesse. The Emperour himself was at this time departing from

*The Empe-
rour to the diet at Regens-
burg.* Vienna to the Diet he had summoned at Re-genspurgh, to Consider with the Princes of Germany of some quick expedient to redresse those evils, leaving the Arch-Duke Charles Joseph, to Govern in his absence, who (to add

*The Death
of the Arch-Duke
Charles
Joseph.* affliction to misery) is since Deceased, and the direct Line of the Imperial Family (save in the Person of the present Emperour) totally extinguished; a matter of no small moment to some Designs in the world, especially since the Pope and the French were so neer a Rupture; yet to alleviate the present distresse, Providence was pleased to bestow on the Vigilance and Conduct of Count Serini, a very remarkable successe. Some Forces of Apassi intermingled with Tartars, and many Turks, pursuing their Design of another Invasion into Moravia; having also an eye upon the Island of Schat, had privily laid a Bridge over the River Mur, and had passed two thousand Horse already over it; of which Serini having good and timely notice by a discharge of a Cannon, he rose from his post, and with his Troops so fiercely charged them, that betwixt surprized
and dismayd, and fairly worsted, they betook themselves back to the Bridge, where rancountring with numbers of their fellows passing over in great haste to them, they could neither go forward, nor backward, but were forced to take the River, which spared none: there escaped very few of those two thousand. This was done in the morning, Novemb. 27. when Serini

Serini brought two field peices and 300. of his Foot to face the Enemy, who stood on the other side the Water and managed a revengeful Skirmish all the day long, and then retreated towards Canisia, from whence they are dread- ed to reinforce this their first attempt, being exceedingly enraged at this disgraceful disappointment.

The Turks
defeated in their passage over the Mur, by Count
Serini.

There was mention made in the Diet, of Marf. Turenne to succeed in the Supreme Command in Hungary, by means of an Invitation and request to the French King, but it was more out of complement to oblige that King, then any such resolution of the States of the Empire, who have found it the greatest difficulty of the whole affair as to the Ricks aid, to satisfy the Pretensions and Ambitions of their own Princes to that Command, and in fine have concluded without constituting any Generalissimo, but left the Army to their distinct Generalls of Horse and Foot. The Emperours General is Count Mountecuculi, the Feild Marshalls are the Paltgrave of Sultzbach for Horse, and General Spar a Subject of the Marquesse of Brandenburg, of Foot. Over the Ayds, the Generall of Horse is Leopold Marquesse of Baden; of Foot, Ulrick Duke of Wittenberg, with Count Fugger M. Gen. of Horse, Duke Adolph of Holstein, Duke Gustave of Durlach, (the Younger House of Baden) and Baron de Souches Major General of Foot.

The

The force of the Empire summed up.

The Ayds of the four Circles of the Rhine without their Auxiliaries will amount to 28000 men, the other circles out of which the hereditary Provinces of Austria, Bohemia, and are to be excepted will make as many more, which with the 13000 advanced by the Pope, and the French Forces, and the aforementioned Auxiliaries will make up a body of 80000 men, besides the Emperours own Army, which will amount and is to be made up to 40000 men Effectif.

Severall places revolt in Transylvania to Ap ff.

In the mean time of these consultations at Regensburg, Apassi the Prince of Transylvania, was driving on his designs in that Province, working upon the Emperours necessities and the discontents of the Garrisons of Zekelkeyt and Clausenburg, which in conclusion for want of pay, dismiss their Officers and submitted the Towns to Him, having been held by the Emperour ever since the Troubles and death of Prince Rakoczi. Zacmar also wavered, but was happily reclaimed by some moneys that came opportunely, to satisfie the Souldiers.

The year proving very mild and gentle in the depth of winter, had frustrated many designs of the Tartars, who had taken up their Quarters in Hungary to be ready for some Invasion, whereupon overburdening the places and Garrisons they were in, and provisions growing scarce, after some quarrels 'twixt the Turks and them for victuall, they dispersed themselves for better accomodation. At the same time
Count

Count Nicholas Serini the Emperours General took advantage of this their separation, and the benefit of a sudden Frost, and with his Army consisting of between 30 and 35000 men, among whom were the German ayds under Count Hohenlo, made an Invasion into the Turks Countrey, in the lower Hungary and parts of Croatia, as far as Esseck near the conjunction of the Danow and the River Dravus, a place infamous for the descent of Cacxianerus King Ferdinand's the First's Generall, and the noble Lodronius, defeated there hard by, by the policy of the Turks, as mentioned before.

Count Serini's expedition into the Turks Country.

This Bridge is the onely passage the Turks have, besides sudden shifts by boats, &c. for conveyance from Belgrade, otherwise called Greek Weissenburg, and those parts possessed by the Turk, both for Waggon and Artillery, so that the said Count well knowing what disadvantage the breaking down thereof would cause to the Turks designs at the approaching Campaigna, resolved to destroy it or render it unserviceable to the Enemy; and fortune so favoured the Enterprize, that Maugre all opposition made by the Enemy, he in one night and day had so maimed and disjoynted it, that a great part of it fell into the Dravus, the rest being set on Fire towards the Turks side, but hastily quenched by them; since when they have been very busie in repairing it, the Grand Vizier storming exceedingly, that it was no better defended, and (for which he hath called the Officers appointed appointed to maintain it, into question for their lives) but it is judged impossible, that it can be reedified this Summer, so as to be made able to bear Carriages, which will be a great stop to the Turks progresse by way of lower Hungary.

The Bridge of Esseck burnt by him.

Count Serini lays waste the Country round about.

Count Serini having finished this exploit with so good successe, laid waste all the Countrey round about of this (that is) the Northern side of the Dravus, betwixt that and the Danow, among which were many places formerly the possessions of his noble Ancestors (who enjoyed a great and plentifull revenue in those parts, encreased by the additions of the patrimony of the Carlovitii and Torquati, which fell likewise to them) but now thrall'd to those Infidels; insomuch that some have reckoned a 1000 Villages burnt by him, but the Turkish desolation hath scarce left so many for him to destroy.

This work being over, and having thus revenged himself for the spoil of his Fortunes, he thought it time to return; for that there were severall confident rumours that the Enemy with a great body was marching after him, although it proved a meer lye raised and industriously spread by the Turks for fear of further mischief to be done them by his staying in those parts, where his name was grown most formidable, and the effects of his conduct highly dreadful.

But

But yet he made not such hast, but that in his way home he made a halt at Quinque Ecclesia The Town of Quinque Ecclesia and summoned it, which the Townsmen seemed to entertain, and by that means drew some of his Forces not suspecting Hostility under reach of their Cannon, which they furiously discharged upon them, and killed some Eminent Officers and men of valour; which Action so incensed Serini, that he gave order for a present storm, by which the Town was mastered and entred, and the plunder thereof given to the Souldiers, and soon after sack'd and set on Fire, the Souldiers and such as escaped, flying into the Castle, which held out and was in prudence given over by the Generall, whose men having been so much toyled and wearied already were in no condition for a Seige, and a sudden attempt was improbable of successe. Here were slain many Officers, the greatest number whereof was of the Germans under Count Holenlo. stormed and sacked by him.

From hence, passing by Zigeth (the Town and Castle whereof were so famously defended by his Grandfather as too tite and tedious a peice of work) he fell upon Segess a Town distant Westward two Hungarian miles (18 English) from Zigeth, which he took by assault, with the losse of more Officers of note, requited upon the Turks by a promiscuous slaughter of them all (as for Tartars no quarter was any where allowed them) and there he left a Garrison in the very midst of the Enemies Country and Segess taken and Garrisoned by him.

Count Se-
rini's honourable Return.

Count Se-
rini's honourable
Return.

and came home by Canyfia, which place he had designed to besiege, but his Army being much diminished, the Enterprize is laid aside, till he shall be recruited with new Levyes, answerable to so great an undertaking, in which affair he is at present employed; but it is feared the sudden appearance of the Grand Seignior who will open this Campagna in person, will put him on other Councils and designs.

FINIS.

Bayrische
Staatsbibliothek
München

Howell, James,

Florus Hungaricus Or The history of Hungaria and Transylvania Deduced from the original of that nation, and their settling in Europe in the year ... 46 1, to ... the present Turkish invasion, anno 1664

London 1664

Austr. 5475 p

urn:nbn:de:bvb:12-bsb10012247-3